Five Are Killed In Two Berrien Weekend Crashes

Benton Couple, Friend Die In Cycle Smashup

Five people including a Benton township couple and a close friend were killed in two separate traffic crashes in Berrien county over the weekend.

The deaths accounted for all but one of the traffic deaths reported throughout the state during the weekend period, according to Associated Press. The count began at 6 p.m Friday and ended at midnight Sunday.

The three from Benton township and Benton Harbor were riding motorcycles when they were killed in a fiery smashup near Coloma about 3 a.m.

Dead were Melvin Louis Hall Jr., 27, and his wife, Linda Kay, 25, and Timothy Alan Doolen, 24.

The Halls lived at 1485 Reeder street, Benton township, and had been married just two days less than 16 months. Doolen, 1050 Colfax avenue, Benton Harbor, was described as a close friend of the couple by a family spokesman.

The couple was riding one motorcycle and Doolen another on Coloma road when a car slammed into one and then crashed head-on into the other.

Coloma township police said both cycles and the car were burning when they arrived and that the flames had ignited the Halls' clothing. Police extinguished flames on the two.

Mrs. Terry Rose Newnum, 27, driver of the car, has been charged in a warrant issued later yesterday in Fifth district court with three counts of negligent homicide. She lived at Chalet Du Paw Paw, Apt. 12, North Watervliet road, Watervliet.

Killed in the other accident in Berrien county were Gary Coan, 18, and Jerry Fulton, 21, both of Chesterton, Ind.

State police at New Buffalo said the two were in a car which crashed head-on into and Indiana & Michigan service truck on Red Arrow highway near Lakeside Saturday night. Police said the car, driven by Coan, crossed the centerline.

The five deaths boosted Berrien county's traffic toll for this year to eight.

The car then continued into the eastbound lane where officers said the second cycle, operated by Hall with his wife riding as passenger, had apparently turned to avoid a smashup.

Officers said they believed the cycles had been westbound single file when the eastbound auto first cut across the road. The crash occurred about a half-mile east of Boyer road.

Police said Mrs. Newnum told them she swerved when she saw the two cycles coming toward

President Rejects 'New Isolationism'

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Urging rejection of the "new isolationism," President Ford expressed confidence today that Americans know they cannot "resign from the world."

Ford argued for continued U.S. involvement in world affairs — and particularly for foreign aid programs — in a speech prepared for a special convocation at the University of Notre Dame campus near South Bend.

While Ford's Notre Dame text placed heavy emphasis on foreign aid, mainly economic assistance, he made no mention of his controversial requests for more military aid for Cambodia and South Vietnam. As in his other recent travels, Ford prepared a busy schedule today. Besides making a speech and receiving a doctor of laws degree during his first campus appearance of the year, Ford was to entertain newspaper and broadcast executives from six states at lunch, holding a locally broadcast news conference and having a working dinner with governors before returning to Washington.

Governors were invited from Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, Maryland and Virginia — all those from states east of the Rockies who did not meet with him during earlier trips to Georgia, Florida, Texas and Kansas.

In his Notre Dame text, Ford said he believed the nation had the capacity "to resolve our difficulties at home without turning our back on the rest of the world."

Noting that Notre Dame has students from more than 60 countries, Ford said:

"Let this demonstrate to all Americans that other people place a high valuation on what America has to offer. Let it demonstrate that the University of Notre Dame rejects the new isolationism."

While the President emphasized economic assistance, he made a passing reference to military aid without mentioning Southeast Asia. He said:

"While we pursue a peaceful world in which there is unity and diversity, we must continue to support security against aggression and subversion. To do otherwise would invite greater violence."

While saying more is required than "moralizing about the role others should take," Ford did offer advice to other nations, saying:

"In cases where countries have dreams, let them join in sharing with others. Some have helped. Others have not. We led the way and we will not shirk from future burdens. But all nations must cooperate in developing the world's resources."

Ford said all nations also must "realize the need for peaceful accommodation with

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

George Has A Point

Except possibly to some UAW and Teamster chieftains, he rates as a statesman of the first water in the blue collar ranks.

Those running the government for the most part wish he would get lost because Meany makes it his business to tell them how to run theirs.

Civil rightists and other activists still have not forgiven him for supporting Nixon and Johnson on Viet Nam.

What this mixture of adulation and detestation would average out to is hard to say, but its very existence shows the man is much like any other prominent person. He rings the bell. He also bombs out.

Recently the Jewish Labor committee had Meany for the guest of honor at its annual awards dinner. The forthright aging commander used the occasion to give his opinion of what's going on in the world and our country's role in that event-shaping. Following is the crux of his message:

"In the final analysis the cause of human rights in the world is dependent on the strength — the economic strength, the military strength, the moral strength — of the United States of America.

"If we falter, freedom is shaken everywhere.

"I don't say this because I am a jingoist or a chauvinist. I say it because I've been around a long time, because I read maps, because I read history, and because I can count."

It is unfortunate the circulation of his remarks was confined to a report in the Free Trade Union News and some limited reprinting from the original story because just about anyone holding the U.S. to be at fault for all the ills in the world receives instantaneous nationwide reproduction in the mass media.

That apologetic breastbeating is all right, up to a point. Self-examination and criticism are very much in order since no person nor any nation is perfect.

The trouble is that the proclaimed examiners of the American conscience never stop before the turn in the road. They prefer to run over the cliff, taking everyone with them in a suicidal joyride.

This fakery works, too much so for America's own wellbeing because the audience fails to ask what the speaker hopes to conceal, namely, "What have others done to help themselves?"

The other day Eric Sevareid, the CBS news analyst, gave the perfect illustration of the back to front reasonsing.

A wide collection of do-gooders are urging Washington to launch a worldwide food distribution scheme. What this grandiloquent gesture would to an already inflation-racked pocketbook here at home is blithely ignored.

Commented Sevareid, "What are the hungry countries doing to control their overpopulation as the first step to meeting the hunger crisis?"

The answer is nothing.

Why should anything be done when there may be an outsider willing to step in?

Meany and Sevareid were talking about specific issues but the thread is common throughout these and other questions.

Uncle Sam's first obligation is to keep himself in shape. The duty is equally imperative upon others to the best of their abillity.

Only when that duty has been met does it make sense to talk about sharing responsibilities.

Let's Worry More About 'Weather Underground'

A good case can be made that Americans should be worrying less about alleged covert illegal activities by the FBI and CIA and more about the government's sorry record in tracking down those whose illegal activities are as overt as an exploding bomb.

Since 1970, the "Weather Underground" has claimed responsibility for some 20 politically motivated bombings in the United States.

The number includes the Capitol building in 1971, the Pentagon in 1972 and the State Department last January. Another bomb planted at the same time in a military induction center in Oakland, Calif., fortunately failed to go off.

Most recently, in a stunning commando-like operation, three men identifying themselves as members of the "Weather Underground" leveled a 2-block rubber products plant in Shelton, Conn., because "we're fed up with the shape of things in this country."

The FBI, which has been looking for eight known members of the group from as far back as the 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago, when they called themselves the "Weathermen," does not dispute the claims.

How have these people been able to remain at large? Why has someone as well-known as Patty Hearst of the late, unlamented "Symbionese Liberation Army" never been found? How did Puerto Rican terrorists plant a bomb in a New York restaurant and kill four people and, so far, get away with it?

"This (Weather) underground," said FBI director Clarence Kelley after the State Department blast, "by utilization of false and stolen identities, continues its operations in a most clandestine manner and receives the help of an above-ground support apparatus allowing it to continue its terrorist attacks against the government."

Kelley did not elaborate on the "above-ground support apparatus." But obviously, there must be a great many people in this country with twisted loyalties who are under the delusion that these criminals, whether Weathermen or Symbionese "soldier" or Puerto Rican nationalists, are some kind of "freedom fighters" deserving of protection.

Maybe there should be less opening of Jane Fonda's or Bella Abzug's mail and more hard digging by our law enforcement agencies.

Reports Are 'Exaggerated'

Reports that the federal government will be spending $1 billion a day in the 1976 fiscal year have been exaggerated.

Based on the proposed budget, the actual rate of spending, says the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, will be $1 billion every 25 hours.

FARMERS URGED TO FIGHT BILL

Editor,

This is a message aimed primarily to the farm families of Berrien county.

There is a bill now under consideration by the Senate Taxation Committee — SB 372 and SB 373. These are amendments to the General Sales Tax Act and the Tax Use Act. What Sen. Bowman's committee is proposing is the removal of sales tax exemptions which farmers now have. These Bills would leave exemptions only on seed, feed, and fertilizer. As this would be a terrible blow to farmers we urge you to write your senator and voice your objection to this.

There will be a public hearing for farmers on Monday, March 24 at 1 p.m. in the Michigan room south of the Olds Plaza hotel in Lansing, (directly across from the capitol). We feel that farmers should turn out in as many numbers as possible to voice their opinions on these issues. This will be our chance to be heard on this proposal.

The farmer already carries a large tax burden, but if this measure is passed he can count on about quadrupling his state tax bill. It is true that Michigan is in need of making up revenue lost on food and drugs, but it is most unfair to expect the farmers, who are only about 5% of the population, to do this.

Please contact your local representatives for further information and express yourselves.

ANOTHER FOE OF PENETRATOR

Editor,

The enclosed letter was sent to Sen. Charles Zollar and Rep. Harry Gast with copies to Sen. Philip Hart and Robert Griffin and Con. Edward Hutchinson.

Raymond G. Jiral
3461 Middlebrook drive
St. Joseph.

Dear Sen. Zollar:

A rather depressing and certainly disturbing situation has developed concerning the proposed I-94 penetrator running between Lincoln and Washington avenues in St. Joseph township. Currently, a study costing in excess of $100,000 is being conducted, as required by the Federal government, to evaluate certain aspects of the proposed public opinion, long range planning and cost. Local citizens have been encouraged to cooperate with this study by expressing their opinions. While this appears to be a costly method of determining the advisability of a penetrator, we admit it is a reasonable approach.

At this time, however, reason has completely disappeared. According to the local newspapers, Michigan State Highway officials have taken the position that regardless of the findings of the study, the proposed penetrator will be started as initially planned. The highway officials have stated their position in a most emphatic and arrogant manner, showing a complete disregard for the community's wishes. In addition, this means the study, costing in excess of $100,000, is a sham.

It is our firm opinion that the proposed I-94 penetrator is not needed and not wanted. If we must spend tax dollars on a

Gun Right Is 200 Years Old

WASHINGTON — There is no argument like the gun control argument. Regarding the accumulation of bogus rationale, warped datum, and one-dimension philosophies the debate has no peer. One side says the regulation of private weapons would cure every social sore from crime to tennis elbow, the other believes the deed to be on a moral level with the raping of nuns. Everyone talks much but says less, the result being a perilously entrenched conventions: firearms violence.

Two dozen gun bills have thus far been presented to the 94th Congress (in the 93rd: 60); some would ban private arms althogether, others would repeal control laws already in force, but none gets to the heart of it. No doubt gun regulation is necessary in a nation that averages at least two weapons per home, but banning them or registering them without addressing the reasons for their being is like trying to sneak the dawn past the rooster; chances for success are low.

The plain problem is guns are as much a part of America as the garbage in Newark. They are the nation's way of live, as well as death, and trying to alter 200 years of this heritage with laws instead of logic is risky.

This is not to say the hoary argument of Constitutional rights is necessarily correct, merely that millions believe it to be; some congressmen are beginning to worry that even a passage of slight gun regulation would lead to unfortunate and widespread law breaking by millions of American gun owners who feel "the right to bear arms" is gospel and would refuse en masse to comply with any state interference.

The pious may gag at this. And in truth even if the Constitution did, in the 1700s, guarantee every man a howitzer, the right today may have to give way, as the FBI's Clarence Kelley says, for the good of the present majority. What was thought vital in a nation of 2 million may be poisonous to a population 100 times that. Surely Tom Jefferson did not believe that the preservation of liberty by individual pistols would be necessary in a country possessing 8,000 strategic nuclear weapons.

Still, the right to arms is 200 years old. And in fact it is indelible legacy, promoted until recently as patriotic. Private plinkers defeated the British, preserved the orderly infancy of the nation, helped keep it from division, won the west, reduced barbarism, strengthened defense capabilities, and turned wilds into agriculture. What could be more American, then, than Remington, Savage or Colt? Even today there is an argument to be made, in a nation of from 9 to 20 million crimes annually, that one should still teach a child to shoot rabbits against the day he may have to aim at wild animals assaulting his wife.

Given this, though, good sense argues for change. There is a pistol sold every 10 to 12 seconds in the nation. Homocides by guns have risen 48 per cent in the last decade, vs. 10 per cent by other means. Even if control would not dent criminal possession (and I think it would not), it would undoubtedly save lives and bloodshed; one study indicates that people buying guns for family protection are six times more likely to kill friends than enemies, often through accidents, but also, as the FBI adds, statistics indicate that as many as seven of 10 murders are the result of previously law abiding citizens who end arguments by reaching for gats.

This then, is what's needed: education. David Steinberg of the Committee for Responsible Firearms Regulations suggests it begin with presidential leadership and go all the way down to classroom curriculum.

Pets Stir Up Deep Emotions

WASHINGTON — Nearly every commercial or public building has a regulation against pets, because animals are considered unsanitary and a nuisance. Besides, they do not pay their way, nor will they grow up to do so later.

So it was not a surprise when State Department colleagues complained recently about Assistant Secretary of State Dixy Lee Ray's habit of bringing her two dogs daily to the office.

The Assistant Secetrary has apparently prevailed. Rank has its privileges, even when the privilege barks. Besides, she claims to have permission for her companions from the President himself, and he has not contradicted her.

The underlying problem, however, remains. It has less to do with things like accident spots on rugs and unexpected growls than with the simple fact that animals in any location strike deep emotional chords in humans. Hardly any person is neutral.

Some people think pets of any species, whether poodles or penguins, are adorable. Some people only like dogs, but treat them with more consideration than they might show another human. Some people only like cats, and tend to have several.

And a large number of people believe that pets are disgusting and humans who keep them slightly mad.

I have received more mail in response to a column about pets than any other column in the past few months, except for the times when I have written about abortion. The activities of the President and Congress are distant and often incomprehensible, but everyone owns an animal or knows someone close who does.

Periodically, cities have tried to regulate their pet populations. They have never been successful in achieving more than requiring dog licenses and leashes. Some cities have attempted to pass ordinances to require owners to scoop up deposits left behind by dogs on sidewalks where pedestrians tread. Such proposals invariably prompt greater public outrage and debate than anything but increased taxes. Enforcement, in any event, is a bad joke.

The latest pet-related phenomenon is the persistence of the rumor that starving humans are eating pet food because they cannot afford modern grocery prices. For some reason this is a most horrifying prospect to many people than other problems of the poor, such as inadequate housing or medical care.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. – Thomas Jefferson.

George Has A Point

Except possibly to some UAW and Teamster chieftains, he rates as a statesman of the first water in the blue collar ranks.

Those running the government for the most part wish he would get lost because Meany makes it his business to tell them how to run theirs.

Civil rightists and other activists still have not forgiven him for supporting Nixon and Johnson on Viet Nam.

What this mixture of adulation and detestation would average out to is hard to say, but its very existence shows the man is much like any other prominent person. He rings the bell. He also bombs out.

Recently the Jewish Labor committee had Meany for the guest of honor at its annual awards dinner. The forthright aging commander used the occasion to give his opinion of what's going on in the world and our country's role in that event-shaping. Following is the crux of his message:

"In the final analysis the cause of human rights in the world is dependent on the strength — the economic strength, the military strength, the moral strength — of the United States of America.

"If we falter, freedom is shaken everywhere.

"I don't say this because I am a jingoist or a chauvinist. I say it because I've been around a long time, because I read maps, because I read history, and because I can count."

It is unfortunate the circulation of his remarks was confined to a report in the Free Trade Union News and some limited reprinting from the original story because just about anyone holding the U.S. to be at fault for all the ills in the world receives instantaneous nationwide reproduction in the mass media.

That apologetic breastbeating is all right, up to a point. Self-examination and criticism are very much in order since no person nor any nation is perfect.

The trouble is that the proclaimed examiners of the American conscience never stop before the turn in the road. They prefer to run over the cliff, taking everyone with them in a suicidal joyride.

This fakery works, too much so for America's own wellbeing because the audience fails to ask what the speaker hopes to conceal, namely, "What have others done to help themselves?"

The other day Eric Sevareid, the CBS news analyst, gave the perfect illustration of the back to front reasonsing.

A wide collection of do-gooders are urging Washington to launch a worldwide food distribution scheme. What this grandiloquent gesture would to an already inflation-racked pocketbook here at home is blithely ignored.

Commented Sevareid, "What are the hungry countries doing to control their overpopulation as the first step to meeting the hunger crisis?"

The answer is nothing.

Why should anything be done when there may be an outsider willing to step in?

Meany and Sevareid were talking about specific issues but the thread is common throughout these and other questions.

Uncle Sam's first obligation is to keep himself in shape. The duty is equally imperative upon others to the best of their abillity.

Only when that duty has been met does it make sense to talk about sharing responsibilities.

Let's Worry More About 'Weather Underground'

A good case can be made that Americans should be worrying less about alleged covert illegal activities by the FBI and CIA and more about the government's sorry record in tracking down those whose illegal activities are as overt as an exploding bomb.

Since 1970, the "Weather Underground" has claimed responsibility for some 20 politically motivated bombings in the United States.

The number includes the Capitol building in 1971, the Pentagon in 1972 and the State Department last January. Another bomb planted at the same time in a military induction center in Oakland, Calif., fortunately failed to go off.

Most recently, in a stunning commando-like operation, three men identifying themselves as members of the "Weather Underground" leveled a 2-block rubber products plant in Shelton, Conn., because "we're fed up with the shape of things in this country."

The FBI, which has been looking for eight known members of the group from as far back as the 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago, when they called themselves the "Weathermen," does not dispute the claims.

How have these people been able to remain at large? Why has someone as well-known as Patty Hearst of the late, unlamented "Symbionese Liberation Army" never been found? How did Puerto Rican terrorists plant a bomb in a New York restaurant and kill four people and, so far, get away with it?

"This (Weather) underground," said FBI director Clarence Kelley after the State Department blast, "by utilization of false and stolen identities, continues its operations in a most clandestine manner and receives the help of an above-ground support apparatus allowing it to continue its terrorist attacks against the government."

Kelley did not elaborate on the "above-ground support apparatus." But obviously, there must be a great many people in this country with twisted loyalties who are under the delusion that these criminals, whether Weathermen or Symbionese "soldier" or Puerto Rican nationalists, are some kind of "freedom fighters" deserving of protection.

Maybe there should be less opening of Jane Fonda's or Bella Abzug's mail and more hard digging by our law enforcement agencies.

Reports Are 'Exaggerated'

Based on the proposed budget, the actual rate of spending, says the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, will be $1 billion every 25 hours.

FARMERS URGED TO FIGHT BILL

Editor:

This is a message aimed primarily to the farm families of Berrien county.

There is a bill now under consideration by the Senate Taxation Committee — SB 372 and SB 373. These are amendments to the General Sales Tax Act and the Tax Use Act. What Sen. Bowman's committee is proposing is the removal of sales tax exemptions which farmers now have. These Bills would leave exemptions only on seed, feed, and fertilizer. As this would be a terrible blow to farmers we urge you to write your senator and voice your objection to this.

There will be a public hearing for farmers on Monday, March 24 at 1 p.m. in the Michigan room south of the Olds Plaza hotel in Lansing, (directly across from the capitol). We feel that farmers should turn out in as many numbers as possible to voice their opinions on these issues. This will be our chance to be heard on this proposal.

The farmer already carries a large tax burden, but if this measure is passed he can count on about quadrupling his state tax bill. It is true that Michigan is in need of making up revenue lost on food and drugs, but it is most unfair to expect the farmers, who are only about 5% of the population, to do this.

Please contact your local representatives for further information and express yourselves.

ANOTHER FOE OF PENETRATOR

Editor:

The enclosed letter was sent to Sen. Charles Zollar and Rep. Harry Gast with copies to Sen. Philip Hart and Robert Griffin and Con. Edward Hutchinson.

Raymond G. Jiral
3461 Middlebrook drive
St. Joseph.

Dear Sen. Zollar:

A rather depressing and certainly disturbing situation has developed concerning the proposed I-94 penetrator running between Lincoln and Washington avenues in St. Joseph township. Currently, a study costing in excess of $100,000 is being conducted, as required by the Federal government, to evaluate certain aspects of the proposed public opinion, long range planning and cost. Local citizens have been encouraged to cooperate with this study by expressing their opinions. While this appears to be a costly method of determining the advisability of a penetrator, we admit it is a reasonable approach.

At this time, however, reason has completely disappeared. According to the local newspapers, Michigan State Highway officials have taken the position that regardless of the findings of the study, the proposed penetrator will be started as initially planned. The highway officials have stated their position in a most emphatic and arrogant manner, showing a complete disregard for the community's wishes. In addition, this means the study, costing in excess of $100,000, is a sham.

It is our firm opinion that the proposed I-94 penetrator is not needed and not wanted. If we must spend tax dollars on a

Gun Right Is 200 Years Old

WASHINGTON — There is no argument like the gun control argument. Regarding the accumulation of bogus rationale, warped datum, and one-dimension philosophies the debate has no peer. One side says the regulation of private weapons would cure every social sore from crime to tennis elbow, the other believes the deed to be on a moral level with the raping of nuns. Everyone talks much but says less, the result being a perilously entrenched conventions: firearms violence.

Two dozen gun bills have thus far been presented to the 94th Congress (in the 93rd: 60); some would ban private arms altogether, others would repeal control laws already in force, but none gets to the heart of it. No doubt gun regulation is necessary in a nation that averages at least two weapons per home, but banning them or registering them without addressing the reasons for their being is like trying to sneak the dawn past the rooster; chances for success are low.

The plain problem is guns are as much a part of America as the garbage in Newark. They are the nation's way of live, as well as death, and trying to alter 200 years of this heritage with laws instead of logic is risky.

This is not to say the hoary argument of Constitutional rights is necessarily correct, merely that millions believe it to be; some congressmen are beginning to worry that even a passage of slight gun regulation would lead to unfortunate and widespread law breaking by millions of American gun owners who feel "the right to bear arms" is gospel and would refuse en masse to comply with any state interference.

The pious may gag at this. And in truth even if the Constitution did, in the 1700s, guarantee every man a howitzer, the right today may have to give way, as the FBI's Clarence Kelley says, for the good of the present majority. What was thought vital in a nation of 2 million may be poisonous to a population 100 times that. Surely Tom Jefferson did not believe that the preservation of liberty by individual pistols would be necessary in a country possessing 8,000 strategic nuclear weapons.

Still, the right to arms is 200 years old. And in fact it is indelible legacy, promoted until recently as patriotic. Private plinkers defeated the British, preserved the orderly infancy of the nation, helped keep it from division, won the west, reduced barbarism, strengthened defense capabilities, and turned wilds into agriculture. What could be more American, then, than Remington, Savage or Colt? Even today there is an argument to be made, in a nation of from 9 to 20 million crimes annually, that one should still teach a child to shoot rabbits against the day he may have to aim at wild animals assaulting his wife.

Given this, though, good sense argues for change. There is a pistol sold every 10 to 12 seconds in the nation. Homocides by guns have risen 48 per cent in the last decade, vs. 10 per cent by other means. Even if control would not dent criminal possession (and I think it would not), it would undoubtedly save lives and bloodshed; one study indicates that people buying guns for family protection are six times more likely to kill friends than enemies, often through accidents, but also, as the FBI adds, statistics indicate that as many as seven of 10 murders are the result of previously law abiding citizens who end arguments by reaching for gats.

This then, is what's needed: education. David Steinberg of the Committee for Responsible Firearms Regulations suggests it begin with presidential leadership and go all the way down to classroom curriculum.

Pets Stir Up Deep Emotions

WASHINGTON — Nearly every commercial or public building has a regulation against pets, because animals are considered unsanitary and a nuisance. Besides, they do not pay their way, nor will they grow up to do so later.

So it was not a surprise when State Department colleagues complained recently about Assistant Secretary of State Dixy Lee Ray's habit of bringing her two dogs daily to the office.

The Assistant Secretrary has apparently prevailed. Rank has its privileges, even when the privilege barks. Besides, she claims to have permission for her companions from the President himself, and he has not contradicted her.

The underlying problem, however, remains. It has less to do with things like accident spots on rugs and unexpected growls than with the simple fact that animals in any location strike deep emotional chords in humans. Hardly any person is neutral.

Some people think pets of any species, whether poodles or penguins, are adorable. Some people only like dogs, but treat them with more consideration than they might show another human. Some people only like cats, and tend to have several.

And a large number of people believe that pets are disgusting and humans who keep them slightly mad.

I have received more mail in response to a column about pets than any other column in the past few months, except for the times when I have written about abortion. The activities of the President and Congress are distant and often incomprehensible, but everyone owns an animal or knows someone close who does.

Periodically, cities have tried to regulate their pet populations. They have never been successful in achieving more than requiring dog licenses and leashes. Some cities have attempted to pass ordinances to require owners to scoop up deposits left behind by dogs on sidewalks where pedestrians tread. Such proposals invariably prompt greater public outrage and debate than anything but increased taxes. Enforcement, in any event, is a bad joke.

The latest pet-related phenomenon is the persistence of the rumor that starving humans are eating pet food because they cannot afford modern grocery prices. For some reason this is a most horrifying prospect to many people than other problems of the poor, such as inadequate housing or medical care.

The rumor is totally without reliable foundation. But it is kept alive by careless references in magazines, by letters to the editor in newspapers from shocked persons who have just heard it, and by simple gossip.

It all started with a panel report to the Senate Select Committee on Human Needs, which quoted the Center for Science in the Public Interest as estimating that as much as one-third of the pet foods sold in ghetto areas was being used for human consumption. Dr. Michael Jacobsen, the source of the quoted remark, has since disowned the statement and said the Center has no information, documentation or other evidence to back it up.

The Food and Drug Administration has attempted to look into the rumor, and been unable to find any evidence to substantiate it. The Pet Food Institute and at least two major newspapers have also investigated and found nothing.

Polls Opening At 7 A.M. For SJ School Balloting

St. Joseph school district electors will ballot on two millage proposals Tuesday that total 25 mills.

Polling places will be open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. Voting will be by machine.

Voting will be at Milton Junior high school (Forres avenue entrance); St. Joseph High school (Lakeview avenue entrance); North Lincoln school; and Brown school. There are approximately 11,100 registered voters.

Proposal No. 1 is for 23.09 mills which is a renewal of a tax levy that expired last December with mailing of tax notices. It is for five years.

Proposal No. 2 is for 1.91 mills for one year. It is designed to raise $252,000 to cover increased costs of operation and enable the district to maintain the present program.

St. Joseph high school students literally beat the drum in favor of the two proposals Saturday. Students in trucks played "get out the vote" music with small, pep band size units.

Other students handed out flyers asking for a "yes" Yote. One error was noted in the flyer after it was printed, it asked for renewal of 29.03 mills. It should have read 23.09 mills.

The flyer noted the millage is needed "to run the system as it presently stands and will eliminate consequences of cutting school hours or extra-curricular activities and will maintain the current well-rounded program."

Students announced earlier they were supporting the millage proposals in appreciation for the present school system.

Area Police Roundup

Vandals Cut Wide Swath

Twin Cities-area police investigated a host of vandalism complaints over the weekend, including shattered windows, knocked-down trees and a house left in disarray.

Two apparently unrelated instances of vandalism were reported to St. Joseph police Sunday in which garage and car windows were shattered.

Ed Kehlstrom, 800 Broad street, St. Joseph, told police 12 garage windows and the windshield of his car were broken over the weekend.

Vandals also damaged a car owned by Richard Halliday, 906 Lions Park drive, St. Joseph. About $150 damage was done to the grill, hood, and other parts of the car, police indicated.

Police said the window may have been shattered by a car that hit the window and left the scene.

Berrien sheriff's deputies said ten small trees at Upton junior high school, 800 Maiden lane, St. Joseph, were knocked down Saturday.

Deputies said someone on a motorcycle apparently did the damage, estimated at $100.

Vandalism early Sunday was investigated by Benton Harbor police, who stated that lamps and furniture were overturned and several items broken at the residence of Shirley Echols, 741 Ogden avenue.

Police stated it wasn't known if anything was stolen, but the motive appeared to be destruction. Damage was all on the ground floor of the house. Mrs. Echols called police after returning home about 1 a.m.

Benton Harbor police apprehended three juveniles on charges of malicious destruction of property Sunday after rocks and bottles had been thrown at passing cars on Pipestone street.

The boys, ages 13, 14, and 15, were released to their parents and will be petitioned to juvenile court.

Police said a car owned by Mike Morrow, 560 O'Brien street, Benton Harbor, was struck with a rock at 8 p.m. while driving on Pipestone. In an earlier incident, Edward Spruell, of 942 Ogden, Benton Harbor, told police a glass bottle had been thrown at his car, cracking a rear window.

A Toledo, Ohio, man was arrested Sunday on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and driving under the influence of liquor, state police of the Benton Harbor post said.

Trooper Gary Schaffer reported a .22 caliber revolver was found on the driver of a car that was halted on Highland avenue at Butternut street, Benton township, at 9:20 p.m.

Berrien sheriff's deputies said power and hand tools valued at $500, all apparently stolen, were found in a Benton township farm field Saturday.

The tools were found in a field near Benton Center road and Red Arrow highway by a man who saw a suspicious vehicle in the area.

Ed Baushke, 23, of 3334 Hicks avenue, said he saw a man carry a bushel basket into a field and drive away in a pickup truck.

Deputies said they weren't able to determine immediately where the property came from.

Smith was booked and lodged at the county jail, police reported. A warrant had been issued charging Smith with forging and passing six checks that had been stolen from Al's Karate school, Benton Harbor.

The checks totaled about $500 and were stolen during the last part of February, police said.

Three youths were apprehended and charged with being in possession of stolen state and county road signs valued at $250, St. Joseph police said.

Police released Edward D. Cook, 17, of 3019 Thresa, Stevensville, after a $100 bond was posted. Two other boys, 14 and 16 years old, were released to their parents and will be petitioned to juvenile court, police said.

Police said two boys were apprehended by Charles McCoy, of 702 Hawthorne avenue, after he saw boys taking a sign near his home. A third boy was nabbed in a car by Patrolman August Bishop.

A 6 by 2-foot state highway department road sign and a county road commission speed limit sign were recovered.

Thefts reported to Benton Harbor police over the weekend:

—Four hubcaps valued at $100 stolen from a car owned by Jerry McAfee, Pipestone road, Eau Claire, and parked on Fourth street, near Paw Paw avenue.

On Community Development

Benton Slates Hearing

The Benton township board of trustees during its regular meeting Tuesday will hold a second public hearing on the proposed $3 million community development program.

Two public hearing are required under federal law, and the first was held last month.

During the initial hearing, it was reported that the program will cost $3 million over the next six years, with the budget for the first year expected to be $981,000. The program is expected to begin next June.

Funding is from the federal government, through the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The township last month gave preliminary approval to the program that would provide an array of projects, including a goal of 300 new housing units, that would be built for low-income residents by private developers. The developers would be protected through federal subsidies.

The community development program will begin nationwide, as a replacement for existing programs, including Model Cities and neighborhood development. Planned are an array of social programs, such as dental care, and capital improvements, such as street andsewer improvements. The township must file its final application by April 15, it was stated during the first public hearing.

Plead Innocent In Film Case

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Two men arrested in a raid of the Berry theater in Berrien Springs Friday night were arraigned in Berrien Fifth District court in St. Joseph Saturday.

Frank P. Griffin, 18, of Eau Claire, identified as the projectionist, and Elmer R. Danles, 36, of Holland, identified as the theater manager, pleaded innocent to charges of violating the village anti-pornography ordinance.

Danles, who was also arrested during the raid on a charge of illegal possession of amphetamines, was ordered held in lieu of bonds totaling $3,500.

He demanded a preliminary hearing on the drug charge.

Berrien Springs village - Ornoko township police state police from the Niles post, and officers from the county Metro crime unit raided the theater about 9:30 p.m Friday the first time officials attempted to enforce the recently adopted ordinance.

Village Atty. Donald Dick said four reels of the film 'Portrait" were confiscated in the raid and also confiscated were suspected amphetamines and a small quantity of suspected marijuana.

The ordinance became law in February after village councilmen heard complaints after village councilmen from community residents about X-rated films being shown at a theater in the village.

Polls Opening At 7 A.M. For SJ School Balloting

St. Joseph school district electors will ballot on two millage proposals Tuesday that total 25 mills.

Polling places will be open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. Voting will be by machine.

Voting will be at Milton Junior high school (Forres avenue entrance); St. Joseph High school (Lakeview avenue entrance); North Lincoln school; and Brown school. There are approximately 11,100 registered voters.

Proposal No. 1 is for 23.09 mills which is a renewal of a tax levy that expired last December with mailing of tax notices. It is for five years.

Proposal No. 2 is for 1.91 mills for one year. It is designed to raise $252,000 to cover increased costs of operation and enable the district to maintain the present program.

St. Joseph high school students literally beat the drum in favor of the two proposals Saturday. Students in trucks played "get out the vote" music with small, pep band size units.

Other students handed out flyers asking for a "yes" Vote. One error was noted in the flyer after it was printed, it asked for renewal of 29.03 mills. It should have read 23.09 mills.

The flyer noted the millage is needed "to run the system as it presently stands and will eliminate consequences of cutting school hours or extra-curricular activities and will maintain the current well-rounded program."

Students announced earlier they were supporting the millage proposals in appreciation for the present school system.

Vandals Cut Wide Swath

Twin Cities-area police investigated a host of vandalism complaints over the weekend, including shattered windows, knocked-down trees and a house left in disarray.

Two apparently unrelated instances of vandalism were reported to St. Joseph police Sunday in which garage and car windows were shattered.

Ed Kehlstrom, 800 Broad street, St. Joseph, told police 12 garage windows and the windshield of his car were broken over the weekend.

Vandals also damaged a car owned by Richard Halliday, 906 Lions Park drive, St. Joseph. About $150 damage was done to the grill, hood, and other parts of the car, police indicated.

Police said the window may have been shattered by a car that hit the window and left the scene.

Berrien sheriff's deputies said ten small trees at Upton junior high school, 800 Maiden lane, St. Joseph, were knocked down Saturday.

Deputies said someone on a motorcycle apparently did the damage, estimated at $100.

Vandalism early Sunday was investigated by Benton Harbor police, who stated that lamps and furniture were overturned and several items broken at the residence of Shirley Echols, 741 Ogden avenue.

Police stated it wasn't known if anything was stolen, but the motive appeared to be destruction. Damage was all on the ground floor of the house. Mrs. Echols called police after returning home about 1 a.m.

Benton Harbor police apprehended three juveniles on charges of malicious destruction of property Sunday after rocks and bottles had been thrown at passing cars on Pipestone street.

The boys, ages 13, 14, and 15, were released to their parents and will be petitioned to juvenile court.

Police said a car owned by Mike Morrow, 560 O'Brien street, Benton Harbor, was struck with a rock at 8 p.m. while driving on Pipestone. In an earlier incident, Edward Spruell, of 942 Ogden, Benton Harbor, told police a glass bottle had been thrown at his car, cracking a rear window.

A Toledo, Ohio, man was arrested Sunday on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and driving under the influence of liquor, state police of the Benton Harbor post said.

Trooper Gary Schaffer reported a .22 caliber revolver was found on the driver of a car that was halted on Highland avenue at Butternut street, Benton township, at 9:20 p.m.

Berrien sheriff's deputies said power and hand tools valued at $500, all apparently stolen, were found in a Benton township farm field Saturday.

The tools were found in a field near Benton Center road and Red Arrow highway by a man who saw a suspicious vehicle in the area.

Ed Baushke, 23, of 3334 Hicks avenue, said he saw a man carry a bushel basket into a field and drive away in a pickup truck.

Deputies said they weren't able to determine immediately where the property came from.

Smith was booked and lodged at the county jail, police reported. A warrant had been issued charging Smith with forging and passing six checks that had been stolen from Al's Karate school, Benton Harbor.

The checks totaled about $500 and were stolen during the last part of February, police said.

Three youths were apprehended and charged with being in possession of stolen state and county road signs valued at $250, St. Joseph police said.

Police released Edward D. Cook, 17, of 3019 Thresa, Stevensville, after a $100 bond was posted. Two other boys, 14 and 16 years old, were released to their parents and will be petitioned to juvenile court, police said.

Police said two boys were apprehended by Charles McCoy, of 702 Hawthorne avenue, after he saw boys taking a sign near his home. A third boy was nabbed in a car by Patrolman August Bishop.

A 6 by 2-foot state highway department road sign and a county road commission speed limit sign were recovered.

On Community Development

Benton Slates Hearing

The Benton township board of trustees during its regular meeting Tuesday will hold a second public hearing on the proposed $3 million community development program.

Two public hearing are required under federal law, and the first was held last month.

During the initial hearing, it was reported that the program will cost $3 million over the next six years, with the budget for the first year expected to be $981,000. The program is expected to begin next June.

Funding is from the federal government, through the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The township last month gave preliminary approval to the program that would provide an array of projects, including a goal of 300 new housing units, that would be built for low-income residents by private developers. The developers would be protected through federal subsidies.

The community development program will begin nationwide, as a replacement for existing programs, including Model Cities and neighborhood development. Planned are an array of social programs, such as dental care, and capital improvements, such as street andsewer improvements. The township must file its final application by April 15, it was stated during the first public hearing.

The township meeting next Tuesday is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the township municipal building, 1725 Territorial road.

Plead Innocent In Film Case

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Two men arrested in a raid of the Berry theater in Berrien Springs Friday night were arraigned in Berrien Fifth District court in St. Joseph Saturday.

Frank P. Griffin, 18, of Eau Claire, identified as the projectionist, and Elmer R. Danles, 36, of Holland, identified as the theater manager, pleaded innocent to charges of violating the village anti-pornography ordinance.

Danles, who was also arrested during the raid on a charge of illegal possession of amphetamines, was ordered held in lieu of bonds totaling $3,500.

He demanded a preliminary hearing on the drug charge.

Berrien Springs village - Ornoko township police state police from the Niles post, and officers from the county Metro crime unit raided the theater about 9:30 p.m Friday the first time officials attempted to enforce the recently adopted ordinance.

Village Atty. Donald Dick said four reels of the film 'Portrait" were confiscated in the raid and also confiscated were suspected amphetamines and a small quantity of suspected marijuana.

The ordinance became law in February after village councilmen heard complaints after village councilmen from community residents about X-rated films being shown at a theater in the village.

Fifth Grade Philosophers Learn From Professor

EAST LANSING — Put 23 ten-year-olds in a schoolroom and they'll giggle, squirm and tickle each other.

But let Martin Benjamin, a Michigan State university professor, enter that same elementary school room and the 23 children turn into philosophers.

Dr. Benjamin, bearded like Socrates, but who hates to use words such as "philosophy" or "logic," teaches ethics at MSU, but as a parent volunteer teacher in an East Lansing elementary school he turns kids into thinkers about things like "fairness," "consistency" and "individual rights."

He doesn't do it by reading Plato, Aristotle and John Stuart Mill to yawning, fidgeting kids, but books like "Shiver, Gobble and Snore" to attentive ones who all want to talk.

"Shiver, Gobble and Snore," one of Dr. Benjamin's key resource books is simply a fairy tale about a man who loves to sleep, a man who loves to eat and a man who is always cold. They get fed up with their king because he makes too many rules.

The trio leaves the kingdom to live with no rules at all and soon discover that things don't work — Gobble steals Snore's apples, Snore's snoring bothers Shiver and Shiver's fires fill Gobble's house with smoke.

"Because it's in story form, the concept of why people need laws becomes perfectly clear to the children," explained Dr. Benjamin, whose goal is to "help children think straight at an early age" without being "pushy" or "coming across as an authority figure."

The MSU professor first voluntered to teach philosophy to eight-year-olds during the 1973-74 school year, inspired, in part, by successful pilot programs conducted at Montclair State college in New Jersey.

From reading studies and from personal experience, Dr. Benjamin discovered that children love to discuss among themselves hypothetical situations they can easily relate to: a mother tells her three boys not to play with the scissors, and although two disobey and the third refuses all are punished.

"The kids will say this is unfair, but I get them to explain their reasons why and to discuss the mother's point of view," he said.

More discussion comes when Dr. Benjamin poses another problem: should a boy be required to salute the flag in school when his parents oppose the practice because of religious beliefs? And what should be done if the same boy needs a blood transfusion to save his life and his parents oppose the life-saving measure on religious grounds?

"Talking about these situations gets the children thinking about life's conflicts — the conflict between religious beliefs and life-saving techniques, or between parental pressure and peer group pressure," the professor noted.

Dr. Benjamin says that some of the more positive aspects of conducting the philosophy sessions an hour a week are the pleasure of hearing a child say, "Oh, I get it," the enthusiasm generated when all want to talk at once, seeing shy children suddenly become animated, and simply evidence that the kids are "thinking straight."

"I once asked the class if anyone there had ever had anything stolen from him," the professor said. "At first, each child thought he was the only one with a sad story to tell, but after listening to each other they realized that all people feel just as bad when something is taken from them."

Other practical considerations come to light through simple word games. Dr. Benjamin will mention some statement that is true until turned around: "If all fifth graders are kids, then all kids are fifth graders."

"It's important for children to be able to see the fallacy here, no matter how simple the statement is," he said. "One child will say his father says he should be an engineer because he's good at math, but if the child can reason that if all engineers are good at math, but not everyone good in math is an engineer, he's thinking straight."

The professor says that the children's teacher has noted more "straight thinking" lately — that her students are being more careful about exaggerating with statements like "everybody knows that," or "you let everybody do that."

Dedicated to a casual approach, Dr. Benjamin's philosophy sessions have sometimes turned into discussions of the real difference between people and animals since chimpanzees can use deaf and dumb sign language and how do scientists know that dogs are color blind. They even settled an argument about color that started in the art room.

"My friend says all colors mixed together make white," a little girl whined, unconvinced. Using a "little moron" joke to illustrate how one word can mean two things, Dr. Benjamin got the kids discussing color in terms of "globby paint" and in terms of light waves.

The professor, who wants to compile the results of his teaching experiences for the benefit of other teachers, says that philosophy should also be taught in high schools and that the great philosophers — Plato, Aristotle, Mill, Kant, etc. should be read "not because they're great but because their ideas are relevant to some problem at hand."

He recently ended one elementary school session with a variation of the old problem of if a tree falls in the forest, does it make a sound if there's no one there to hear. "How do we know when we leave the room the chairs are still here?" he asked.

First Celebrated In 1737

How old is St. Patrick's Day in the United States?

Sally Hopkins, researcher, says the first celebration was held 238 years ago, in 1737, by a small group of Irish immigrants called the Charitable Irish Society of Boston.

New York's first St. Patrick's Day parade was held March 17, 1776, and the parade's grand marshal was Gen. George Washington, according to Miss Hopkins.

Washington was an honorary member of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, an organization founded in Philadelphia in 1771.

First Celebrated In 1737

How old is St. Patrick's Day in the United States?

Sally Hopkins, researcher, says the first celebration was held 238 years ago, in 1737, by a small group of Irish immigrants called the Charitable Irish Society of Boston.

New York's first St. Patrick's Day parade was held March 17, 1776, and the parade's grand marshal was Gen. George Washington, according to Miss Hopkins.

Washington was an honorary member of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, an organization founded in Philadelphia in 1771.

Organized To Help Indians

State Commision

By MARYANNE BUTT
Staff writer

The Commission on Indian Affairs in Michigan is organized to help open avenues of opportunity, previously denied, to Indians, according to Philip Alexis, southwestern Michigan Indian Affairs commissioner.

Speaking March 13 to Algonquin Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the St. Joseph-Benton Harbor YWCA, Alexis said the Commission on Indian Affairs works to help existing Indian organizations in the state and to help develop social and economic security of Indian people.

Goals of the commission, according to Alexis, are educational betterment; employment and manpower development; community and cultural development, including political involvement; development of social services, and self-employment (business ownership).

There are nine commissioners, according to Alexis, seven who represent different areas of Michigan, with two "at large." Alexis represents area two, southwestern Michigan. There is also a director, an administrative assistant, four Indian representatives and two secretaries. All members of the commission are Indians, he said, because they are more aware of the problems facing Indians and therefore can deal more effectively with them.

The commission has a monthly publication, "The Michigan Indian," which is sent to various Indian organizations throughout the state. Its main function is to inform these organizations of the activities of the commission. Often working with the state commission, Alexis said, are the Legislative Advisory council, the Agency council, the Education Advisory council and the Indian Manpower Planning council.

The priorities of the commission, he said, are to better community relations, and to increase awareness among non-Indians; to procure programs — to help Indian organizations to learn how to go about obtaining federal funds for helpful programs; to help provide legal services for the Indians; to locally administer grants (when the commission receives a grant, they try to hand the money over to local groups for administration); to aid manpower development and employment, and to aid health, housing and education, the latter of which Alexis feels is extremely important.

Area organizations (southwestern Michigan) that the commission often deals with include the Potawatomi Indian Nation, Inc., of which the Potawatomi International is a branch, the Potawatomi of Indiana and Michigan, Inc., the oldest Indian organization in the area, Huron Potawatomi, and Southwestern Michigan Indian Center.

Alexis said that the various Indian organizations need to work together in order to be effective and attain their goals, and this is happening in southwestern Michigan, whose Indians, he said, are more progressive than many in the country.

Give Poet's Papers To AU Heritage Room

ADD TO COLLECTION: In the Heritage room at Andrews university, Elizabeth and Aron Ingle, seated, donors of papers of the late poet, Jessie Wilmore Murton, converse with the Heritage room curator, Mrs. Raoul Dederen.

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Andrews university Heritage room added to its historical collection this week the papers of the late poet Jessie Wilmore Murton.

The collection is a gift from Elizabeth and Adron Ingle, Battle Creek. Mrs. Ingle is the last living of the poet's six brothers and sisters.

In 72 years of writing, Mrs. Murton's poetry appeared in some 300 publications, including the New York Times, the Christian Science Monitor, the Washington Evening Star, Harper's Masterpieces of Religious Verse, Ideals Magazine, and numerous Seventh-day Adventist publications.

Among her many awards was a gold medal for what was judged to be the best poem from Michigan at a New York World of Tomorrow Exposition.

The poet was a resident of Battle Creek from 1911 until her death in 1973.

She was born in Kentucky and accordingly willed much of her work to the University of Kentucky, where it is now being held. The disposition of what remained, the oldest originals of hundreds of poems, books and assorted papers, she left to the discretion of her sister, who gave them all to the Heritage room.

Mrs. Raoul Dederen, curator of the Heritage room, said that the Murton papers are a valuable addition to her collection of the works of Adventist poets.

Lenten Meditation

Rev. Irvin L. Nussdorfer
Westminster United Presbyterian Church
Today's Scripture: John 8:46-47, 56-59

Jesus was confronted by many persons who would not listen or believe in his ministry.

In this passage there are those who claim Abraham as father, a relationship of both sanctity and privilege.

Jesus was cautioned that it is easy to claim the special relationship, but that it also involves the demand of special responsibility as well.

"It God were your father, you would love me, for God is the source of my being, and from him I come" (verse 42) is his challenge to them.

"You do not listen," he says. How often these words ring true in our own lives. We claim God as father, we confess Jesus as the Christ, we have the special relationship and all of the privileges. But we don't listen to him. The voices of hatred, fear, gossip, our own self-preservation overpower his.

Jesus reminds us that he points to God. "Before Abraham was born, I AM. I am the light of the world." We are reminded that he is validated in his speaking by God himself.

Confronted with the challenge of listening to him as God's Son, we are sometimes the ones who wish to cast stones when he speaks words we do not want to hear.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Kissing's Also Risky

Dear Ann Landers: Are you big enough to rectify your answer to Question Number One on the quiz you printed recently? It was a multiple choice test that had appeared in the Washington High School paper in Kansas City to help students recognize the symptoms of V.D.. learn how it is contracted and what to do if they think they have it.

It was terrific of that school to print the quiz and you were great to run it in your column so millions of young people all over the North American continent could learn from it.

The answer that needs straightening out was to the first question: "V.D. is transmitted by (a) sexual relations with an infected person, (b) toilet seats, (c) kissing."

The answer given in the paper was "a." It should have been "a plus c."

So many people depend on you, Ann. Will you please set the record straight? — H.A.

Dear H.A.: Thank you for giving me the opportunity to rectify not only an answer that was only half right, but to ease my conscience. I knew at the time that you answer was more correct but I felt an obligation to reprint the quiz exactly as it had appeared in the high school paper. I realize now I should have altered the reply when I ran the column.

Syphilis can indeed be contracted from kissing a person who has the disease if it is in the infectious stage and there is a sore on the lip or in the mouth (which is a sign of the disease). If the person being kissed has a bruised area on the lips or in the mouth which would allow entrance of the syphilis micro-organism, he may become infected.

A rather bizarre example of how this works occurred several years ago in the Veteran's Hospital in Washington, D.C. A surgeon who was performing an autopsy on a syphilitic cadaver cut his hand slightly through a rubber glove. He learned several weeks later that he had gotten syphilis.

Smoke Moocher

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a guy who can't believe I am writing to Ann Landers, but I've got a problem. It's this fellow I work with. He bums cigarets from everybody. If there is a pack on a person's desk, he'll help himself. He's not sneaky or anything, he always asks. Nobody says no.

What gripes me is the way he'll come over to talk. All of a sudden he'll reach into my shirt pocket without saying a word and help himself to a cigaret.

Don't tell me to quit smoking. Just tell me what to do about this cheapie who bums at least six cigarets a day and never once has offered to pay anybody back. — Suffolk County Sap

Dear Sap: Keep your cigarets off your desk, out of your shirt pocket and when he asks for a cigaret tell him it's time he brought a carton to the office for

Not Bored

Dear Ann Landers: I love to do needlepoint. When my husband and two pre-school children go visiting on Sunday afternoons I take my needlepoint along.

Recently I was criticized. The person said I must be awfully bored with her company if I had to bring something along to keep me occupied. I converse easily while sewing and had no idea I was insulting anyone. Please comment. — Seymour Ct.

Dear Ct.: Most needlepointers can visit and sew and do justice to both. Eye contact is important to some people. If you remember to glance up frequently at the person who complained, I bet that will satisfy her.

Don't get burned by a "line" that's too hot to handle. Play it cool with Ann Landers's guide to "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Erma Bombeck

Special Place For Him

As Dante would have said (had he owned a TV set), "There is a special place in hell for a man who walks into the room during the last five minutes of a tense drama and asks, "So, what's happened so far?"

Someone mumbles, "It's almost over."

"What time did it start?" he asks.

"Fifty-five minutes ago."

"Is that Mildred Natwick?"

"No."

"It looks like Mildred Natwick. Why are the police circling the building?"

"Why would he do a thing like that? Is this a rerun?"

"Please!"

"I think we're missing a special on the other channel."

"Shhhhhhh!"

"I don't know how you can watch this thing. It doesn't make any sense. I've been here three minutes and 15 people have flashed across the screen. It's like Mission Impossible. They're so busy screwing switch plates off the wall and crawling through heater ducts I never get the plot. Let me just see what we're all missing on the other channel."

When the ugly mob regains control of the knob, the theme music is playing and the credits are rolling by. None of us will ever know if the bomb was deactivated on time.

When the next TV hour begins, the entire family summons the agitator who yells from the bathroom, "I'm busy."

With precisely five minutes left in the drama, he reappears and asks, "So what's this one all about?"

One of the viewers takes a deep breath, "It's about a dwarf who sells encyclopedias who killed his tall basketball star roommate with a frozen rack of lamb and the chief of police is about to eat the murder weapon but he is suspicious because the B is missing from every set of encyclopedias he sells, pointing out his bizarre hostility."

"Is that Mildred Natwick?"

"No, it's Peter Falk."

Sixty-five per cent of American families watch TV together. Violence has increased 33 per cent among American families. The former figure is about to decrease; the latter increase.

Jim: "Deception at the bridge table is perfectly all right, provided you deceive by the actual card you play and not by the manner in which you play it."

Oswald: "You are even privileged to act fast, when you have a problem. You just aren't supposed to look like you have a problem, when you don't have one."

Jim: "West started out with three high hearts. East discarded the deuce of clubs on the third lead and South ruffed. South had already seen that he would have no problems unless trumps broke 4-1. If they did break 4-1, he would only come to nine tricks. So South led the three of diamonds at trick three. West thought a while before playing the six spot. Dummy's jack won. South proceeded to draw trumps; cash the four clubs, and chalk up game and rubber."

Oswald: "The play really shouldn't work. West should really be able to realize that South is trying to steal a diamond trick. If West rises with the ace of diamonds and leads a fourth heart, he will be establishing a trump trick for his partner."

I think my circulation is bad. How can it be tested?
Mr. J.W., N.J.

Dear Mr. W.:

I assume you have symptoms that suggest poor circulation. Cramps in the legs or coldness of the feet are two possible indications.

There are now many excellent and definitive ways to study narrowing of the arteries that bring blood to the legs and feet.

The blood pressure in the feet can be measured with special instruments. Pulsations of the arteries are an index of the free flow of blood.

Skin temperatures can be measured. This is an indication of the blood supply of the tissues below the skin.

Infrared photography, known as "thermography," adds much information about the blood supply.

Arteries can be injected with special dyes which, when followed by X-ray, clearly show any obstruction of the blood circulation.

There is no reason to just "think" that you have poor circulation. Examination can take the guesswork out of it. If it does not exist, you need not speculate. If it does, the cause will be found and treatment started.

Can you explain how the IQ is arrived at? Is it still considered a reliable indication of intelligence?
Mrs. L.H., Del.

Dear Mrs. H.:

The IQ, or Intelligence Quotient, is a numerical method to determine the relationship between a person's mental age and his chronological age.

Many variations of the test have been devised in recent years. The basic results are still used and are very important in determining intelligence levels.

The IQ is determined by this formula: IQ equals the mental age (revealed in the test) divided by the chronological age, then multiplied by 100.

If the MA is 6 and the CA is 12, then the IQ is 50. This is a level of retardation.

If the MA is 12 and the CA is 12, then the IQ is 100, or "average."

If the MA is 18 and the CA is 12, then the IQ is 150, or "very superior."

Kissing's Also Risky

Dear Ann Landers: Are you big enough to rectify your answer to Question Number One on the quiz you printed recently? It was a multiple choice test that had appeared in the Washington High School paper in Kansas City to help students recognize the symptoms of V.D.. learn how it is contracted and what to do if they think they have it.

It was terrific of that school to print the quiz and you were great to run it in your column so millions of young people all over the North American continent could learn from it.

The answer that needs straightening out was to the first question: "V.D. is transmitted by (a) sexual relations with an infected person, (b) toilet seats, (c) kissing."

The answer given in the paper was "a." It should have been "a plus c."

So many people depend on you, Ann. Will you please set the record straight? — H.A.

Dear H.A.: Thank you for giving me the opportunity to rectify not only an answer that was only half right, but to ease my conscience. I knew at the time that you answer was more correct but I felt an obligation to reprint the quiz exactly as it had appeared in the high school paper. I realize now I should have altered the reply when I ran the column.

Syphilis can indeed be contracted from kissing a person who has the disease if it is in the infectious stage and there is a sore on the lip or in the mouth (which is a sign of the disease). If the person being kissed has a bruised area on the lips or in the mouth which would allow entrance of the syphilis micro-organism, he may become infected.

A rather bizarre example of how this works occurred several years ago in the Veteran's Hospital in Washington, D.C. A surgeon who was performing an autopsy on a syphilitic cadaver cut his hand slightly through a rubber glove. He learned several weeks later that he had gotten syphilis.

Smoke Moocher

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a guy who can't believe I am writing to Ann Landers, but I've got a problem. It's this fellow I work with. He bums cigarets from everybody. If there is a pack on a person's desk, he'll help himself. He's not sneaky or anything, he always asks. Nobody says no.

What gripes me is the way he'll come over to talk. All of a sudden he'll reach into my shirt pocket without saying a word and help himself to a cigaret.

Don't tell me to quit smoking. Just tell me what to do about this cheaple who bums at least six cigarets a day and never once has offered to pay anybody back. — Suffolk County Sap

Dear Sap: Keep your cigarets off your desk, out of your shirt pocket and when he asks for a cigaret tell him it's time he brought a carton to the office for

Not Bored

Dear Ann Landers: I love to do needlepoint. When my husband and two pre-school children go visiting on Sunday afternoons I take my needlepoint along.

Recently I was criticized. The person said I must be awfully bored with her company if I had to bring something along to keep me occupied. I converse easily while sewing and had no idea I was insulting anyone. Please comment. — Seymour Ct.

Dear Ct.: Most needlepointers can visit and sew and do justice to both. Eye contact is important to some people. If you remember to glance up frequently at the person who complained, I bet that will satisfy her.

Don't get burned by a "line" that's too hot to handle. Play it cool with Ann Landers's guide to "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Special Place For Him

As Dante would have said (had he owned a TV set), "There is a special place in hell for a man who walks into the room during the last five minutes of a tense drama and asks, "So, what's happened so far?"

Someone mumbles, "It's almost over."

"What time did it start?" he asks.

"Fifty-five minutes ago."

"Is that Mildred Natwick?"

"No."

"It looks like Mildred Natwick. Why are the police circling the building?"

"Why would he do a thing like that? Is this a rerun?"

"Please!"

"I think we're missing a special on the other channel."

"Shhhhhhh!"

"I don't know how you can watch this thing. It doesn't make any sense. I've been here three minutes and 15 people have flashed across the screen. It's like Mission Impossible. They're so busy screwing switch plates off the wall and crawling through heater ducts I never get the plot. Let me just see what we're all missing on the other channel."

When the ugly mob regains control of the knob, the theme music is playing and the credits are rolling by. None of us will ever know if the bomb was deactivated on time.

When the next TV hour begins, the entire family summons the agitator who yells from the bathroom, "I'm busy."

With precisely five minutes left in the drama, he reappears and asks, "So what's this one all about?"

One of the viewers takes a deep breath, "It's about a dwarf who sells encyclopedias who killed his tall basketball star roommate with a frozen rack of lamb and the chief of police is about to eat the murder weapon but he is suspicious because the B is missing from every set of encyclopedias he sells, pointing out his bizarre hostility."

"Is that Mildred Natwick?"

"No, it's Peter Falk."

Sixty-five per cent of American families watch TV together. Violence has increased 33 per cent among American families. The former figure is about to decrease; the latter increase.

Report Use Of Drugs To Control Ill Children

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government and private investigators reportedly have discovered state institutions across the country are using a potent tranquilizer to control thousands of mentally retarded children.

According to investigators contacted by The Detroit News, the drug is being given in doses which cause the mental and physical conditions of the retarded child to worsen.

A federal food and drug adminstration consultant says the drug is used to make the children easier to control.

The News said in its Sunday editons that the Justice Department is preparing to take legal action to halt use of the drug.

FDA consultant Dr. Robert Sprague of the University of Illinois says phenothiazines impair learning ability and can trigger long-term side effects.

Sprague says many state institutions employ "poorly trained individuals." He says such staffers are "extremely skeptical about the potential of the mentally retarded to live a useful habilitated life."

He said that the institutions use the drug because of the belief that "custodial care with maximum restraint is philosophically the most appropriate treatment for retarded individuals."

Macomb Official Is Allegedly Being Paid By Engineering Firm

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit News says the U.S. Justice Department's Organized Crime Task Force in Detroit is investigating a Macomb County commissioner who is being paid by an engineering firm for helping that firm get county contracts.

The News, in a copyrighted article in Sunday's editions, said the probe centers on the activities of Commissioner Stephen Dane, 40. According to the News, Dane is being paid $400 a month by Ellis-Naeyeart Associates Inc. of Warren as a public relations consultant.

The News said that since the time Dane went on the firm's payroll 14 months ago, the firm has won $240,000 worth of contracts from Macomb County government agencies.

The News said that prior to Dane's hiring, the firm's only work for the county from 1970 through 1973 amounted to some $26,000.

U.S. Atty. Ralph Guy wouldn't comment on the investigation, saying only that it deals "into allegations of corruptions in Macomb County government."

Dane said "everyone" knows he works for Ellis-Naeyeart, adding that his commissioner's post is not a full-time job. He denies wrongdoing or conflict of interest. He said he has abstained from voting on contracts awarded to the firm.

The News said, however, that official county board minutes do not indicate he abstained from voting on a measure to hire Ellis-Naeyeart to design a $1 million juvenile court building.

Dane said failure to note his abstention was "a recording mistake by the secretary."

Roger Naeyaert, president of Ellis-Naeyeart, said Dane's job is to introduce the company to government officials "as a public relations man."

Naeyaert said that his firm hired Dane because it needed someone who knew how county government functions and to give advice. Dane has been a member of the county board since 1966.

The News said Dane already has appeared before a federal grand jury. The paper said other Macomb County politicians also are being investigated. it did not elaborate.

BELLAIRE, Mich. (AP) — Antrim County authorities say they're holding two men in connection with a fire early Sunday which destroyed a 100-year-old farmhouse near Clam Lake.

The owner of the farm, J. Oliver Smith of Royal Oak, said the restored home was priceless but had been appraised a few years ago at $50,000.

Report Use Of Drugs To Control Ill Children

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government and private investigators reportedly have discovered state institutions across the country are using a potent tranquilizer to control thousands of mentally retarded children.

According to investigators contacted by The Detroit News, the drug is being given in doses which cause the mental and physical conditions of the retarded child to worsen.

A federal food and drug administration consultant says the drug is used to make the children easier to control.

The News said in its Sunday editons that the Justice Department is preparing to take legal action to halt use of the drug.

FDA consultant Dr. Robert Sprague of the University of Illinois says phenothiazines impair learning ability and can trigger long-term side effects.

Sprague says many state institutions employ "poorly trained individuals." He says such staffers are "extremely skeptical about the potential of the mentally retarded to live a useful habilitated life."

He said that the institutions use the drug because of the belief that "custodial care with maximum restraint is philosophically the most appropriate treatment for retarded individuals."

Macomb Official Is Allegedly Being Paid By Engineering Firm

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit News says the U.S. Justice Department's Organized Crime Task Force in Detroit is investigating a Macomb County commissioner who is being paid by an engineering firm for helping that firm get county contracts.

The News, in a copyrighted article in Sunday's editions, said the probe centers on the activities of Commissioner Stephen Dane, 40. According to the News, Dane is being paid $400 a month by Ellis-Naeyeart Associates Inc. of Warren as a public relations consultant.

The News said that since the time Dane went on the firm's payroll 14 months ago, the firm has won $240,000 worth of contracts from Macomb County government agencies.

The News said that prior to Dane's hiring, the firm's only work for the county from 1970 through 1973 amounted to some $26,000.

U.S. Atty. Ralph Guy wouldn't comment on the investigation, saying only that it deals "into allegations of corruptions in Macomb County government."

Dane said "everyone" knows he works for Ellis-Naeyeart, adding that his commissioner's post is not a full-time job. He denies wrongdoing or conflict of interest. He said he has abstained from voting on contracts awarded to the firm.

The News said, however, that official county board minutes do not indicate he abstained from voting on a measure to hire Ellis-Naeyeart to design a $1 million juvenile court building.

Dane said failure to note his abstention was "a recording mistake by the secretary."

Roger Naeyaert, president of Ellis-Naeyeart, said Dane's job is to introduce the company to government officials "as a public relations man."

Naeyaert said that his firm hired Dane because it needed someone who knew how county government functions and to give advice. Dane has been a member of the county board since 1966.

The News said Dane already has appeared before a federal grand jury. The paper said other Macomb County politicians also are being investigated, it did not elaborate.

Offshore Oil Owned By U.S., Court Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that the federal government owns the offshore oil rights in the Atlantic Ocean claimed by coastal states.

In an unanimous opinion, the court rejected the argument of the states that prerevolutionary charters made them the owners of the oil rights.

The ruling came in a suit filed by the Justice Department against the 13 states bordering the Atlantic. The suit was filed after Maine began preparing to sell three million acres off its coast for development by private oil and gas companies.

Maine's plans conflicted with a 1953 federal law giving the states ownership of only the first three miles of seabed off their coastlines.

But Maine and the other coastal states claimed that colonial charters gave them domain over a 100-mile wide belt of the seabed. The states argued that they did not relinquish those ownership rights when they joined the union.

The government countered that England did not have that much seabed to give away and that, even if it did, the charters were invalidated when the U.S. Constitution was ratified.

Writing for the court, Justice Byron R. White said earlier Supreme Court rulings bound the court in deciding the Maine case.

The court ruled in 1974 in a California case that the states were not even entitled to ownership of the first three miles of seabed. Congress acted in 1953 to restore ownership of that area to the states.

"As the court viewed our history, dominion over the ... sea was first accomplished by the national government rather than by the colonies or by the states," White said.

Burglars Are Stuck With Canceled Checks

NILES — A .38 caliber revolver, $1,300 in canceled check taken Saturday night and an unknown amount of cash were reported in a break-in of the Andrew Moore residence, 2323 US-12 east: Milton township, Cass county, state police from the Niles post said.

Troopers said Moore reported the burglary about 11:30 p.m. Saturday after returning froma trip to Chicago with his family. Police said the house also served as a an office for Moore's business firm, A & G Distributors.

The house was entered by breaking open a door on the north side of the house, located just east of Niles, police said.

Police said Moore, 33, has been charged by federal authorities in the Chicago area with violating copyright laws in an alleged bootleg stereo tape manufacturing and selling operation.

Moore surrendered to FBI agents in Chicago on Feb. 12 in connection with alleged violations in Illinois of the federal laws.

His surrender came just 12 hours after federal agents and state police from the Niles post confiscated some 20,000 tapes with a retail value of some $80,000 to $120,000 from the Moore residence.

He has not been charged with any federal copyright law violations in Michigan.

African Adventure Film: Top-Drawer Entertainment

By STEVE SAGER
Staff Writer

"Oohs and aahs" interspersed with laughter were in abundance Sunday as a near capacity crowd became caught up in a film called "High Adventure in Central Africa."

The film is the next to the last in the 1974-75 Twin City Camera club film series. Ron Shanin's "High Adventure" can be seen tonight and Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the St. Joseph high school auditorium.

In the past two years the club has presented no better film.

Shanin's film highlights a 4-year safari in eight Central African countries. Among the best of Shanin's presentation:

—He relates his escape from a colony (2 inches wide, 3-4 miles long) of "safari" (army) ants.

—Footage of him being chased up a tree by a lion after an experiment at feigning death became too convincing.

—Film of Shanin being tossed on the horns of a wounded cape buffalo he volunteered to shoot for a game warden. (Shanin lost three teeth and sustained a wrenched back, but escaped when he scampered up a nearby tree.)

The entire film is not limited to shots of wild game. Included in the travelogue are pictures of beautiful African flowers, an African village along with some of the tribe's customs, and stops at modern cities such as Salisbury, the capital of Rhodesia.

For example, where else can roasted ostrich leg be eaten accompanied by a "nice" glass of rhinocerous milk?

The second half hour of Shanin's travelogue is mainly devoted, to the adventures of three pets he acquired while in Central Africa. The three are a dog named Rupert, a lion cub named Rhoda and a young baboon called Shadrach.

Writers and photographers along with other artists spend endless hours trying to capture the exhuberance, love and affection that Shanin displays inthe last 30 minutes of his film.

Shanin's three "pals" take on human characteristics as he films them exploring a world that includes encounters with elephants, snakes, crocodiles and skunks.

Shanin called Africa "The perfect escape from man's box-like existence" he had experienced while working behind a desk. His film may be the same type of escape.

Malpractice Insurance Help Is Sought

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Physician groups and government officials are seeking ways to provide relief for Michigan doctors threatened with the loss of malpractice insurance coverage in the next six months.

Officials said the proposals, which range from state-sponsored insurance to legislation designed to prevent patients from suing doctors, primarily are stop-gap measures.

They ultimately want to make Michigan more attractive to insurance companies.

Shelby Mutual, the state's second largest malpractice insurance firm, is dropping coverage of some 1,000 doctors on June 1 and pulling out of Michigan.

Some insurance companies are dropping "high risk" doctors — mostly surgeons and anesthesiologists — because of a mounting number of suits filed by patients.

State officials say they want some sort of plan set up before Shelby Mutual leaves.

The Michigan State Medical Society is trying to establish its own insurance firm for any and all of its members who want to join.

And the state legislature is considering two proposals that would provide at least minimum insurance for doctors who can't get it elsewhere.

State Insurance Commissioner Daniel Demlow has proposed that Michigan set up an insurance company — called the Medical Malpractice Insurance Fund — open to all the state's doctors.

Demlow said the fund would support itself on premiums from doctors who join and assessments levied on every doctor in the state.

Under a second measure, introduced by Sen. Daniel Cooper, D-Oak Park, all casualty insurance companies in the state — including those who do not now write malpractice insurance — would share coverage of doctors who can't get private insurance.

Asian Aid 'Doubtful'

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes says he doubts Congress will vote any additional military aid to Cambodia and South Vietnam this year.

Similar predictions were made Sunday by Sens. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., and Stuart Symington, D-Mo. Symington also said he believes neither Vietnam nor Cambodia is essential to the security of the United States.

Bar's Contigency Ideas Differ From Milliken's

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Delegates to the Michigan State Bar Conference approved Saturday a contingency fee plan that differs sharply from one proposed by Gov. William Milliken.

Under the bar plan, lawyers would get 40 per cent of the first $5,000 granted in a settlement, 35 per cent for the next $20,000 and 25 per cent for any amount in excess of $25,000.

The Milliken proposal, part of an overall malpractice insurance program, would put greater controls on doctors and lawyers and give more rights to patients.

The Milliken plan would allow attorneys to receive 40 per cent of the first $5,000, one-third of the next $45,000, 20 per cent of the next $50,000 and 10 per cent of any amount exceeding $100,000.

In larger settlements, lawyers would get more money under the bar plan than the one from the Milliken administration. Attorney fees in smaller settlements, however, would be greater under the Milliken plan.

Either plan would probably reduce overall fees now paid to lawyers in settlement cases.

In defending their plan, the bar delegates said high settlement cases usually are the most difficult to prepare and argue.

The delegates agreed that the state bar should draw up a fee plan before the state legislature establishes a contingency plan of its own.

High Pay, Short Hours

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal overtime regulations let some government inspectors at airports and other U.S. entry points earn 16 hours' pay for 1¾ hours' work, the General Accounting Office says.

Investigators from the accounting office found that some inspectors refused to seek jobs in higher classifications because the higher positions would have brought less overtime and would have reduced annual gross pay.

Federal inspectors were paid $47.6 million in overtime during fiscal 1974. Shipping companies and airlines reimbursed the government for $36.7 million for the services. The government is not reimbursed for overtime at actual border crossings.

The report recommends that Congress order a revision in the premium pay system. The study reviews the overtime procedures of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Customs Service, the Agriculture Department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, and the Public Health Service.

Inspectors from the agencies are stationed at border crossings and other points of entry, including seaports and airports. Most receive premium pay when called upon to work nights, Sundays and holidays.

The accounting office reported that more than 75 million ships, airplanes and vehicles arrived in the United States during fiscal 1974, ending last June 30, and the four agencies said 6,886 employes were used in port-of-entry inspections.

The rules allowed one inspector at Bangor International Airport in Maine to claim $692 in overtime pay for Sunday and holiday pay in one month.

An immigration inspector at Bangor earned $16,848 in annual salary, but an additional $29,299 in overtime, the report said.

It found that Customs Service work rules permitted 10 inspectors to receive 16 hours' pay each when they were asked to return to their duties at Boston's Logan International Airport to inspect passengers arriving at 12:25 a.m. one Sunday, a job that took 1¾ hours to perform.

The three immigration service inspectors assigned to the same flight were also paid for 16 hours' work, but were given administrative duties to perform to complete an eight-hour tour of duty.

An Agriculture Department inspector worked 2¼ hours on the same assignment but was paid for nine hours of work.

It Just Wasn't His Day

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — It just wasn't Jasper Churchill's day.

Churchill, 38, of Muncie was driving down East Main Street on Sunday with his two young children, Tracy and Kenneth.

He said a recklessly swerving vehicle forced him to veer off the roadway. His car jumped the curb, took out a row of street signs, sheered off a post supporting a 100-foot sign at a new car lot, then plowed into four new cars.

Two of the new cars and Churchill's vehicle were destroyed. Damage was estimated at $7,000.

Churchill was unhurt, but the two children suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Oil Overcharge Inquiry To Start

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal agents, probing allegations that oil companies charged illegally high prices, are going to investigate the records of every major utility in the nation, a Federal Energy Administration official says.

The investigation, which centers around the rapid rise of prices during the Arab oil embargo, was said to involve possible fraud and millions of dollars of illegal overcharges to customers such as the utilities.

Grand juries in Jacksonville, Fla., New York and Los Angeles already are looking into the possible price manipulations by oil suppliers, the FEA official said Sunday. Similar cases may also be presented to grand juries in Houston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Boston.

"We are going to investigate every major utility company in the nation," the FEA official said.

Under investigation are allegations that importers and suppliers falsified documents required by the Customs Service, such as mislabeling the country of origin of some oil delivered by tankers to the United States during the 1973 embargo.

For example, one alleged case of fraud reportedly involved a tanker in an East Coast port with oil claimed to be from Venezuela, the first nation outside the Arab bloc to raise prices to $10 a barrel.

But the oil reportedly was from Nigeria, where the price was still $5.50. That alleged overcharge came to $2 million.

In Los Angeles, customs agents reportedly were looking into purchases by the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power.

John Russell, a buyer for the department, said agents have checked department records several times. Russell said as far as he knows the probe involves only one company in Los Angeles but he declined to name it.

Customs agents reportedly were checking purchases by the department of oil at $25 a barrel, five times what it had paid before the embargo.

Russell said there was one instance where the department paid $25 a barrel for 150,000 barrels of oil from Peru through Cirillo Bros. Co. of New York.

The next highest amount paid was more than $24 per barrel for one million barrels from Coastal States Marketing in Houston, he said.

"Another term contract subject to escalation was a joint offering from International Gas Traders of Lugano, Switzerland, and Petrobay, Ltd., a Bahamas corporation with offices in Quincy, Mass.," he added.

Asbestos Cancer Found

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — A New York pathologist and cancer researcher confirmed Sunday the existence of a northeastern Minnesota case of a rare form of cancer usually caused by asbestos fibers.

Dr. Irving Selikoff of Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York City, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that he was familiar with a case reported Saturday by CBS television.

However, Selikoff pointed out that "no conclusions can be drawn from one case. I cannot emphasize that strongly enough."

The CBS news report said a man in Duluth had been diagnosed as having mesothelioma, a rare form of cancer affecting the lining of the chest and abdomen.

Selikoff said most cases of mesothelioma are caused by inhaling asbestos. He said many persons contracting the disease are employed in industries where asbestos is present in the air.

The CBS report said "...the fact that a case of asbestos-related cancer has been reported in a man living in a city where mining wastes with asbestos in them are poured into the water supply seems certain to touch of more controversy."

Selikoff, who prepared several reports and testified for the prosecution in the U.S. District Court trial of Reserve Mining Co. on charges of polluting Lake Superior, cautioned against connecting the Duluth case to Reserve's discharge of taconite tailings into the lake.

Testimony in the trial said Reserve's discharge contained the tiny fibers. However, there is no strong medical evidence linking mesothelioma with ingestion of the fibers, although inhalation is recognized as a cause of the disease.

"That's what we're trying to find out," said Selikoff. He said some researchers suspect that ingestion of the fibers, possibly through drinking water containing them, could be a cause of the cancer.

"There is one case in Duluth that I'm aware of," Selikoff said. "But, again, I don't think one case can be applied to anything substantive."

The Minneapolis Tribune reported in its Sunday editions that 12 cases of mesothelioma have been diagnosed in Duluth and other North Shore communities during the last 13 years.

The Tribune quoted an unnamed University of Minnesota cancer specialist as saying the number of cases reported by physicians in northern Minnesota was not unusual.

Shipping History Made At Gary

GARY, Ind. (AP) — The Philip R. Clarke, a rust-colored U.S. Steel Corp. boat loaded with 24,757 tons of taconite iron ore pellets, steamed into the harbor at Gary Works on Sunday and made history.

The delivery of ore from Two Harbors, Minn., ended the 1974-75 Great Lakes shipping season and opened the 1975-76 season — the first time one shipping period has blended into another.

From the time of fur-laden bark canoes, shipping on the lakes has been seasonal — an Easter to Christmas operation for the 19 American and Canadian fleets and their 200 fresh water vessels.

But, the arrival of the Clarke, and the expected arrival Tuesday of the Cason J. Calloway, have made year-long shipping a reality on Lakes Superior, Huron, Michigan and Erie.

Historically, economic life in the Northwest iron ranges and the Midwest steel-making regions has hibernated from December to April because of storms and arctic-like ice in the narrow inlets between the lakes.

Since the 1971-72 season, the Great Lakes fleet of U.S. Steel has extended its season until Feb. 8. This winter is the first continuous season.

The traditional limits on shipping were surmounted because of a relatively mild winter, a labor agreement between U.S. Steel and the United Steelworkers of America, and assistance from federal agencies.

Wintry ice storms were at a minimum this year and, where the ice did form, Coast Guard icebreakers met the challenge — especially in the St. Mary's River between Lakes Superior and Huron; in the straits of Mackinac between Huron and Michigan and in Lake St. Clair between Huron and Erie.

The Corps of Engineers, which operates the Soo Locks at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., kept the 32-year-old MacArthur Lock open for the U.S. Steel ships.

For much of the winter, seven U.S. Steel vessels brought an average of 25,000 tons of taconite pellets per trip from Two Harbors to steel plants in Gary and South Chicago and to rail transport depots in Conneaut, Ohio.

After the larger Poe Lock was closed Feb. 8 for winter maintenance, only the Clarke and Calloway could fit into the smaller MacArthur Lock.

Part Of FBI Hearst Hunt May Be 'Polite Backdown'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI agent in charge of the hunt for Patricia Hearst says the highly publicized attempt by the FBI to talk to sports radical Jack Scott could end in Scott's simple refusal to cooperate and the FBI's polite backdown.

Charles Bates told The Associated Press Sunday night that his men would have to "turn around and walk away" if Scott refused to talk to them.

Scott and his wife, Micki, have been sought for questioning since they were linked in news reports last week to an eastern Pennsylvania farmhouse where Miss Hearst and Symbionese Liberation Army members Bill and Emily Harris may have hidden out last fall.

He said there is no warrant out for Scott's arrest. "All we can do is tell him we'd like to talk to him. If he doesn't want to, he doesn't have to. If he refused, I'd say, 'Thank you very much.'"

Reports of new leads may convince Miss Hearst and the Harrises to turn themselves in "without anyone being hurt," Bates said.

But the fugitives could also reason: "'Oh, well, they know now where we've been recently and they may know now, so we'd better get lost or hide,'" he said.

"It's too early to assess. I'm hoping that it helps. But I won't know until the thing's over."

Bates denied published reports that Scott had eluded FBI agents in a high-speed chase in Berkeley last week and later abandoned his rented car.

He said of the reported chase: "Nobody would elude us once we found them. I don't know where that came from. There was never any chase. We haven't been out trying to grab him."

The Chicago Tribune said Sunday that Scott apparently left that apartment to join the fugitives at the Pennsylvania farmhouse rented by Mrs. Scott and that the FBI told the Wayne County, Pa., sheriff's department that Miss Hearst "was supposed to be pregnant or pretending to be pregnant.".

Bates said he could neither confirm nor deny reports that the fingerprints of Miss Hearst, the Harrises and indicted fugitive Wendy Yoshimura were found in the Pennsylvania farmhouse.

Asked if there were any basis for a warrant against Scott, Bates replied: "FOR WHAT? It's a lot tougher to charge a person than people think."

He said it could not be determined when fingerprints might have been made and there is nothing illegal in the mere rental of a farmhouse by the Scotts.

The San Francisco Chronicle said today that the revolutionary Weather Underground is believed by the FBI to have put the fugitives in touch with the people who have been helping them remain safely underground since a Los Angeles shootout with police last May in which six SLA members were killed.

Bates said the Scotts are just two additions "to the 27,000 people we've interviewed in the greater San Francisco Bay area since Feb. 4," the night last year when Miss Hearst was dragged screaming from her Berkeley apartment by members of the small, terrorist SLA.

Oil Overcharge Inquiry To Start

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal agents, probing allegations that oil companies charged illegally high prices, are going to investigate the records of every major utility in the nation, a Federal Energy Administration official says.

The investigation, which centers around the rapid rise of prices during the Arab oil embargo, was said to involve possible fraud and millions of dollars of illegal overcharges to customers such as the utilities.

Grand juries in Jacksonville, Fla., New York and Los Angeles already are looking into the possible price manipulations by oil suppliers, the FEA official said Sunday. Similar cases may also be presented to grand juries in Houston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Boston.

"We are going to investigate every major utility company in the nation," the FEA official said.

Under investigation are allegations that importers and suppliers falsified documents required by the Customs Service, such as mislabeling the country of origin of some oil delivered by tankers to the United States during the 1973 embargo.

For example, one alleged case of fraud reportedly involved a tanker in an East Coast port with oil claimed to be from Venezuela, the first nation outside the Arab bloc to raise prices to $10 a barrel.

But the oil reportedly was from Nigeria, where the price was still $5.50. That alleged overcharge came to $2 million.

In Los Angeles, customs agents reportedly were looking into purchases by the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power.

John Russell, a buyer for the department, said agents have checked department records several times. Russell said as far as he knows the probe involves only one company in Los Angeles but he declined to name it.

Customs agents reportedly were checking purchases by the department of oil at $25 a barrel, five times what it had paid before the embargo.

Russell said there was one instance where the department paid $25 a barrel for 150,000 barrels of oil from Peru through Cirillo Bros. Co. of New York.

The next highest amount paid was more than $24 per barrel for one million barrels from Coastal States Marketing in Houston, he said.

"Another term contract subject to escalation was a joint offering from International Gas Traders of Lugano, Switzerland, and Petrobay, Ltd., a Bahamas corporation with offices in Quincy, Mass.," he added.

Asbestos Cancer Found

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — A New York pathologist and cancer researcher confirmed Sunday the existence of a northeastern Minnesota case of a rare form of cancer usually caused by asbestos fibers.

Dr. Irving Selikoff of Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York City, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that he was familiar with a case reported Saturday by CBS television.

However, Selikoff pointed out that "no conclusions can be drawn from one case. I cannot emphasize that strongly enough."

The CBS news report said a man in Duluth had been diagnosed as having mesothelioma, a rare form of cancer affecting the lining of the chest and abdomen.

Selikoff said most cases of mesothelioma are caused by inhaling asbestos. He said many persons contracting the disease are employed in industries where asbestos is present in the air.

The CBS report said "...the fact that a case of asbestos-related cancer has been reported in a man living in a city where mining wastes with asbestos in them are poured into the water supply seems certain to touch of more controversy."

Selikoff, who prepared several reports and testified for the prosecution in the U.S. District Court trial of Reserve Mining Co. on charges of polluting Lake Superior, cautioned against connecting the Duluth case to Reserve's discharge of taconite tailings into the lake.

Testimony in the trial said Reserve's discharge contained the tiny fibers. However, there is no strong medical evidence linking mesothelioma with ingestion of the fibers, although inhalation is recognized as a cause of the disease.

"That's what we're trying to find out," said Selikoff. He said some researchers suspect that ingestion of the fibers, possibly through drinking water containing them, could be a cause of the cancer.

"There is one case in Duluth that I'm aware of," Selikoff said. "But, again, I don't think one case can be applied to anything substantive."

The Minneapolis Tribune reported in its Sunday editions that 12 cases of mesothelioma have been diagnosed in Duluth and other North Shore communities during the last 13 years.

The Tribune quoted an unnamed University of Minnesota cancer specialist as saying the number of cases reported by physicians in northern Minnesota was not unusual.

Part Of FBI Hearst Hunt May Be 'Polite Backdown'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI agent in charge of the hunt for Patricia Hearst says the highly publicized attempt by the FBI to talk to sports radical Jack Scott could end in Scott's simple refusal to cooperate and the FBI's polite backdown.

Charles Bates told The Associated Press Sunday night that his men would have to "turn around and walk away" if Scott refused to talk to them.

Scott and his wife, Micki, have been sought for questioning since they were linked in news reports last week to an eastern Pennsylvania farmhouse where Miss Hearst and Symbionese Liberation Army members Bill and Emily Harris may have hidden out last fall.

He said there is no warrant out for Scott's arrest. "All we can do is tell him we'd like to talk to him. If he doesn't want to, he doesn't have to. If he refused, I'd say, 'Thank you very much.'"

Reports of new leads may convince Miss Hearst and the Harrises to turn themselves in "without anyone being hurt," Bates said.

But the fugitives could also reason: "'Oh, well, they know now where we've been recently and they may know now, so we'd better get lost or hide,'" he said.

"It's too early to assess. I'm hoping that it helps. But I won't know until the thing's over."

Bates denied published reports that Scott had eluded FBI agents in a high-speed chase in Berkeley last week and later abandoned his rented car.

He said of the reported chase: "Nobody would elude us once we found them. I don't know where that came from. There was never any chase. We haven't been out trying to grab him."

Bates refused to comment on a report that Harris' fingerprints were found in a New York City apartment Scott left last September.

The Chicago Tribune said Sunday that Scott apparently left that apartment to join the fugitives at the Pennsylvania farmhouse rented by Mrs. Scott and that the FBI told the Wayne County, Pa., sheriff's department that Miss Hearst "was supposed to be pregnant or pretending to be pregnant.".

Bates said he could neither confirm nor deny reports that the fingerprints of Miss Hearst, the Harrises and indicted fugitive Wendy Yoshimura were found in the Pennsylvania farmhouse.

Asked if there were any basis for a warrant against Scott, Bates replied: "FOR WHAT? It's a lot tougher to charge a person than people think."

He said it could not be determined when fingerprints might have been made and there is nothing illegal in the mere rental of a farmhouse by the Scotts.

The San Francisco Chronicle said today that the revolutionary Weather Underground is believed by the FBI to have put the fugitives in touch with the people who have been helping them remain safely underground since a Los Angeles shootout with police last May in which six SLA members were killed.

Bates said the Scotts are just two additions "to the 27,000 people we've interviewed in the greater San Francisco Bay area since Feb. 4," the night last year when Miss Hearst was dragged screaming from her Berkeley apartment by members of the small, terrorist SLA.

Shipping History Made At Gary

The delivery of ore from Two Harbors, Minn., ended the 1974-75 Great Lakes shipping season and opened the 1975-76 season — the first time one shipping period has blended into another.

From the time of fur-laden bark canoes, shipping on the lakes has been seasonal — an Easter to Christmas operation for the 19 American and Canadian fleets and their 200 fresh water vessels.

But, the arrival of the Clarke, and the expected arrival Tuesday of the Cason J. Calloway, have made year-long shipping a reality on Lakes Superior, Huron, Michigan and Erie.

Historically, economic life in the Northwest iron ranges and the Midwest steel-making regions has hibernated from December to April because of storms and arctic-like ice in the narrow inlets between the lakes.

Since the 1971-72 season, the Great Lakes fleet of U.S. Steel has extended its season until Feb. 8. This winter is the first continuous season.

The traditional limits on shipping were surmounted because of a relatively mild winter, a labor agreement between U.S. Steel and the United Steelworkers of America, and assistance from federal agencies.

Wintry ice storms were at a minimum this year and, where the ice did form, Coast Guard icebreakers met the challenge — especially in the St. Mary's River between Lakes Superior and Huron; in the straits of Mackinac between Huron and Michigan and in Lake St. Clair between Huron and Erie.

The Corps of Engineers, which operates the Soo Locks at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., kept the 32-year-old MacArthur Lock open for the U.S. Steel ships.

For much of the winter, seven U.S. Steel vessels brought an average of 25,000 tons of taconite pellets per trip from Two Harbors to steel plants in Gary and South Chicago and to rail transport depots in Conneaut, Ohio.

After the larger Poe Lock was closed Feb. 8 for winter maintenance, only the Clarke and Calloway could fit into the smaller MacArthur Lock.

Hostess Perle Mesta Dies

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Perle Mesta, who entertained thousands of the powerful and the would-be powerful at her gay and informal parties as Washington's "hostess with the mostest," died in a hospital here Sunday night while her brother held her hand. She was 85.

PERLE MESTA
Dead at 85

Mrs. Mesta, famed for bringing together political foes, movie stars and foreign heads of state, moved here 13 months ago to be near her brother, D.W. Skirvin. She left Washington secretly because she "wanted no tears" and no farewell fanfare.

Skirvin had been commuting regularly between Oklahoma City and Washington to visit his sister after she suffered a broken hip in a fall two years ago. She never fully recovered from the injury.

In an interview last year, Mrs. Mesta discussed her role as reigning Washington hostess for nearly 30 years.

"My parties play a political role, definitely. If I'm interested in a bill, like the Equal Rights Amendment, I'll try to get people who are for it and against it at the party," she said.

She once said that a successful party is the combination of cool guests, hot food, cool music and a warm hostess.

It is said that many political compromises were worked out at Mrs. Mesta's parties, which were known for relaxation and a bit of gay abandon rather than laborious philosophical discussions.

Through the years, her guests were treated to piano recitals by Harry S. Truman, a Comanche war whoop from diplomat Patrick Hurley, a rendition of "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" by Dwight D. Eisenhower, a whistling performance by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Sen. Tom Connally's version of "My Old Kentucky Home."

Born in Sturgis, Mich., on Oct. 12, 1889, Mrs. Mesta moved to Oklahoma City after her father struck it rich in Oklahoma and Texas oilfields. Her father, who built one of the city's most luxurious hotels, the Skirvin, left his fortune to her.

She went to Washington in 1907, an accomplished pianist and singer with aspirations toward a career in opera. In 1916, however, she gave up her career plans to marry George Mesta, founder of Mesta Machine Co. of Pittsburgh. She inherited Mesta's fortune when he died in 1925.

Her name was later linked with numerous suitors, but she never remarried.

She was active in political campaigns, first as a Republican but later switching her registration to the Democratic party. She considered herself a liberal. A feminist and supporter of the women's liberation movement, she presided at the opening of the Woman's Party Headquarters in Geneva in 1939.

Her fund-raising activities for President Truman were rewarded with an appointment as minister to Luxembourg in 1949.

She stayed for four years, gaining a reputation for providing "open house" to American GIs.

"I entertained 25,000 of them, all at my own expense," she once recalled. "Those parties, they were the highlight of anything I've done."

Tax Cut Okay Due This Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — A massive tax cut to fight the recession may win congressional approval this week, although its reception at the White House could hinge on whether Congress makes some commitment to hold down spending.

Both the House and Senate plan busy schedules this week in preparation for an Easter recess that starts Friday for the Senate and March 26 for the House.

Emergency military aid for Cambodia is to get Senate and House committee action today and Tuesday and could go to the full House by the end of the week. Democrats in both chambers have criticized the aid proposal, and the House committee has already rejected one compromise.

The House resumes its consideration today of a bill to protect the environment against the abuses of coal strip mining. That mining method accounts for half the nation's 600-millionton annual coal production.

The measure to impose minimum federal environmental and reclamation standards on surface mining appeared headed toward passage, with both sponsors and opponents predicting approval. The bill is essentially the same one that President Ford vetoed last year.

The Senate passed a companion bill last week by more than the two-thirds vote needed to override another veto, and backers say they expect a similar margin of approval in the House.

Some congressmen planned to try to add to the bill today a ban on all strip mining on steep mountain slopes. A similar move failed in the Senate.

The Senate is scheduled to take up a $29.2 billion tax cut bill that was approved Friday by the Senate Finance Committee. That figure compares with a $19.9 billion tax cut bill approved by the House and a $16 billion cut asked by President Ford.

House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes said Sunday that he didn't think Ford would accept a tax cut as large as that proposed in the Senate committee's bill unless Congress gives "a hard and fast" commitment against enacting new spending programs. Rhodes spoke on "Face the Nation" on CBS.

Congressional leaders hope to complete work on a tax cut before going on Easter recess. If Ford signs the bill, rebate checks could be in the mail by May.

Another possible snarl in the push for tax cuts is the oil depletion allowance, which allows oil producers to deduct 22 per cent of their petroleum-related revenue for income tax purposes.

The House-passed tax cut bill would repeal the allowance. The Senate will consider the proposed repeal separately from the tax cut measure. Oil state forces have threatened a Senate filibuster to preserve the allowance, which saves oil producers an estimated $2.5 billion annually in taxes.

Fall Tuition Hikes Predicted

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Recession, rising costs and budget cuts have thrown Michigan's colleges and universities into a financial crisis that could lead to tuition hikes or program cutbacks by the fall term.

George E. Gullen Jr., president of Wayne State University, says the school is "several million dollars" short of the money it needs in the new school year to operate at current levels.

Robben Fleming, president of the University of Michigan, says the economic pinch may force U-M and other state colleges to lay off faculty and staff.

At Michigan State University, president Clifton R. Wharton Jr., says the state universities have cut costs and increased productivity all they can and still face financial difficulties.

Michigan's other state-supported universities and colleges report similar economic woes.

Gov. William Milliken's chief education officers, who notes that state colleges "complain every year" about money problems, adds: "This year their complaints are more justified."

The financial troubles facing higher education in Michigan, however, are not unique.

The National Center for Educational Statistics reports that spending by U.S. colleges and universities rose 6.8 per cent in the 1973-74 school year, while consumer prices increased 11 per cent.

Most of Michigan's higher education money problems stem from a state budget cut for this fiscal year and an expected tight, recession-conscious budget for the new year.

Last December, Milliken imposed a 1.5 per cent cut on the budgets of all state-supported colleges and universities in an effort to keep the state budget balanced.

The governor's budget recommendations for the next year fall below the amounts the schools say they need to operate with the same programs and services now offered.

The legislature last year approved $428 million in state funds for higher education, but Milliken cut the amount back to $422 million.

The governor's recommendation for the next school year calls for spending of $453.7 million, far below what the school's say they need.

Wayne would get a $5 million increase under the recommendation, but Gullen says the school needs $7 million to cover salary increases alone.

"If they'd just give us the money to cover our (employe) compensation, I'd be wiling to let everything else go and make do," says Gullen.

As a result of such rising costs, most of the state colleges say they will have to raise tuitions to balance their budgets, probably this summer after the legislature passes the higher education budget.

U-M did not raise tuition last year, and MSU raised it only for out-of-state students. Wayne State raised tuition as much as 20 per cent, and Oakland University hiked tuition by as much as 17 per cent.

Funeral Services Held For Young Fire Victims

HILLSDALE, Mich. (AP) — Four simple gray caskets formed a half-circle in the funeral chapel.

One held the bodies of Vicki Sue Brown, 11, and her sister Sheila Kay, 8. In another were the bodies of their brothers, Ralph Jr., 7, and Timothy Todd, 6.

The other two were assigned to Debbie Sue Patton, 16, and her brother Troy, 14 — half brother and sister of the Brown children.

More than 200 mourners crowded the small chapel Saturday to comfort Mrs. Della Fletcher, who lost six of her 10 children in a fire near Hillsdale last Thursday.

A friend, Joe Ackworth, who survived the fire along with Mrs. Fletcher and another daughter, Colleen Brown, 9, held Mrs. Fletcher with one arm and Colleen with the other.

Some mourned loudly in the chapel, which was so packed that some people had to stand. Many were former schoolmates of the children, who had attended school in Leslie.

Four hearses carrying the young victim then proceeded with the mourners to nearby Fitchburg Cemetery.

There, a site was prepared for the four caskets, which would lie side by side in a common grave.

Longtime residents said it was the first mass burial in the small cemetery that they could remember.

The children died when a fire engulfed their home in Cambria Township, seven miles southwest of Hillsdale. The 1½-story house, built of corregated sheet metal, was formerly used to process maple sugar.

The children were sleeping in a loft and could not be reached because of the flames. Colleen, who had been ill, survived the blaze because she was sleeping on the first floor.

George Patton of Stockbridge, father of the Patton children, was killed in a hunting accident several years ago. There also are three older Patton children living away from home.

Ralph Brown of Jackson, father of the Brown children, did not attend the funeral.

"He just wanted to be alone," said his sister-in-law, Mrs. Leonard Brown of Stockbridge. "He may have come to the funeral home late Friay night. He wanted to be alone with them."

Woman Killed In Fall From Parking Ramp

ANNARB,R, Mich. (AP) — Catheleen Calderone, 22, daughter of wealthy Grass Lake rancher Anthony A. Calderone, fell to her death Saturday from a parking ramp in Ann Arbor, police said.

Officers said Miss Calderone was pronounced dead-on-the-scene after her plunge off the top of the seven-story parking ramp. It was not known what caused the fall.

Expensive Paint Job Ready For Big Mac

ST IGNACE, Mich. (AP) — The twin towers on the Straits of Mackinac bridge are going to get a face lifting this spring with a $97,000 price tag.

The huge painting project has been awarded to the Ponn and Thomas Co. of Essington, Pa., lowest of six bidders.

The Mackinac Bridge Authority said the work would include cleaning, chipping, repairs, priming coats and an ivory base paint, similar to the present color.

Bridge spokesmen said it was the first time the towers have been repainted, with the work due to start in the Spring and be finished by Fall.

The Instant It Happened

TO BUGS, WITH LOVE

Jazz Age? Maybe to some. But to others it was The Booze Age, and seven hoods of George "Bugs" Moran are sitting around the shop in Chicago waiting to make a dishonest buck.

The date is February 14, 1929, and the place is 2122 North Clark street, and the sign out front says this is the S.M.C. Cartage company, which it ain't.

Bugs is out of the office but a load of hijacked hooch is due in, so, Valentine's Day or not, the boys have turned out. Put some coffee on. Wait. Take a sip. Wait.

Whatsis! There's three cops getting out of that car out front. Into Bug's garage they come with two men in civvies carrying machine guns and sawed-off shotguns. This a raid, captain? We ain't done nothin'.

The answer is a burst of gunfire that sets a record for gang warfare, even in Chicago: six dead and one dying.

The dying man refused to tell the real police anything when they arrived. With them came John "Hack" Miller, photographer for the Chicago American, who recorded the pleasantries for history and had an easy time with the captions.

Miller left with his pictures and the only survivor of the massacre, a young police dog which had been cowering under a car.

Hutchinson Raps Area Rail Plan

WASHINGTON — Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., has criticized a proposed railroad reorganization plan announced Feb. 26 by the United States Railroad Association (USRA), a government corporation charged with responsibility for consolidating and reorganizing bankrupt northeastern railroads.

Out of a total of 1,150 miles of railroad lines to be abandoned in Michigan 257 miles, or 22 percent of the total, are located in the seven counties located along the southern border of the state, comprising Hutchinson's 4th District — Berrien, Branch, Cass, Hillsdale, Lenawee, St. Joseph, and Van Buren counties.

Hutchinson said "discontinuance of rail service would be an economic disaster to many small cities in these counties and would ruin their chances of future growth, prospects of which until now have been excellent, located as they are between Detroit and Chicago."

Especially hard hit by the USRA plan, he said, would be Dowagiac in Cass County, a city heavily dependent upon rail delivery for raw product supply and shipment. Under the proposed routing, the city would be left without service except by subsidies designed to be phased out within two years.

Hutchinson stressed, the fact that the impact of the rail proposals would be felt by citizens and businesses throughout the district. Noting the proposed ConRail system, running primarily along Penn Central track, would eliminate service between Buchanan and Dowagiac, and between Dowagiac and Kalamazoo, through Decatur, Lawton, and Mattawan.

All ConRail through freight service would bypass southwestern Michigan, being routed instead through northern Indiana, Hutchinson said. East-west service through Niles is due to be phased out, possibly including all Amtrak passenger service.

He explained that track between Hillsdale and White Pigeon, through Sturgis, Allen, and Quincy is due to be excluded from the ConRail system, despite the fact that it has been labeled by the Senate of Michigan as one of the most profitable branch lines in the state. He said lines running from Lenawee Junction through Tecumseh to Clinton, and service to Adrian, Blissfield, Palmyra, and Riga, originating from Vulcan, Ohio, also are in jeopardy.

Hutchinson expressed concern about the techniques employed by the USRA in making their recommendations.

"Not only were they a complete surprise to everyone in view of the railroad reorganization plan drawn up last year by the Department of Transportation and the hearings which were held on that plan, but I seriously question the validity of the methods by which they compute branch line operating costs and revenue.

"Further analysis is essential to correct both errors in calculation and errors in procedure.

"The USRA study itself concedes that many of its procedures are highly debatable, and that the characteristics of each line are unique and deserving of separate study. By crippling rail service to southern Michigan, while providing increased service to their neighbors to the south, I believe that the USRA plan if accepted, without modification, will work to the serious prejudice of the economy in the 4th district."

Inventory Buildup Was Like A Glacier

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — During the past few years businesses went on a buying splurge to build up their inventories. In some respects it was a race against time, an attempt to stock up before prices got even higher.

Anticipation of an end to price controls, a general increase in the worldwide demand for raw materials and a threat of shortages resulting from the Arab oil embargo all played a role.

As a result of the inventory buildup, the recession that had been forecast was delayed several months. While the buying spree did force prices higher, it did in a sense prolong prosperity, too.

Unfortunately, the enormous buildup of inventories that created the illusion of a strong economy into last year was really the coming of another Ice Age. It was like a great glacier that dragged the economy to a halt.

Nothing that sellers tried seemed to encourage sales. Consumer sentiment declined. At the very time sellers had huge stocks of goods to sell, buyers decided to restrict buying. The economy fell into recession.

So long as those inventories remained unsold, there was little hope that factories would begin production of replacement goods, and that meant unemployment would remain high and probably continue higher.

For many months economists have been waiting for the great glacier to melt, and finally they have discovered a trickle of hope. For the first time in more than four years, business inventories in January declined.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss...and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss...but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair...now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation. Adv.

Hutchinson Raps Area Rail Plan

WASHINGTON — Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., has criticized a proposed railroad reorganization plan announced Feb. 26 by the United States Railroad Association (USRA), a government corporation charged with responsibility for consolidating and reorganizing bankrupt northeastern railroads.

Out of a total of 1,150 miles of railroad lines to be abandoned in Michigan 257 miles, or 22 percent of the total, are located in the seven counties located along the southern border of the state, comprising Hutchinson's 4th District — Berrien, Branch, Cass, Hillsdale, Lenawee, St. Joseph, and Van Buren counties.

Hutchinson said "discontinuance of rail service would be an economic disaster to many small cities in these counties and would ruin their chances of future growth, prospects of which until now have been excellent, located as they are between Detroit and Chicago."

Especially hard hit by the USRA plan, he said, would be Dowagiac in Cass County, a city heavily dependent upon rail delivery for raw product supply and shipment. Under the proposed routing, the city would be left without service except by subsidies designed to be phased out within two years.

Hutchinson stressed, the fact that the impact of the rail proposals would be felt by citizens and businesses throughout the district. Noting the proposed ConRail system, running primarily along Penn Central track, would eliminate service between Buchanan and Dowagiac, and between Dowagiac and Kalamazoo, through Decatur, Lawton, and Mattawan.

All ConRail through freight service would bypass southwestern Michigan, being routed instead through northern Indiana, Hutchinson said. East-west service through Niles is due to be phased out, possibly including all Amtrak passenger service.

He explained that track between Hillsdale and White Pigeon, through Sturgis, Allen, and Quincy is due to be excluded from the ConRail system, despite the fact that it has been labeled by the Senate of Michigan as one of the most profitable branch lines in the state. He said lines running from Lenawee Junction through Tecumseh to Clinton, and service to Adrian, Blissfield, Palmyra, and Riga, originating from Vulcan, Ohio, also are in jeopardy.

Hutchinson expressed concern about the techniques employed by the USRA in making their recommendations.

"Not only were they a complete surprise to everyone in view of the railroad reorganization plan drawn up last year by the Department of Transportation and the hearings which were held on that plan, but I seriously question the validity of the methods by which they compute branch line operating costs and revenue.

"Further analysis is essential to correct both errors in calculation and errors in procedure.

"The USRA study itself concedes that many of its procedures are highly debatable, and that the characteristics of each line are unique and deserving of separate study. By crippling rail service to southern Michigan, while providing increased service to their neighbors to the south, I believe that the USRA plan if accepted, without modification, will work to the serious prejudice of the economy in the 4th district."

Inventory Buildup Was Like A Glacier

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — During the past few years businesses went on a buying splurge to build up their inventories. In some respects it was a race against time, an attempt to stock up before prices got even higher.

Anticipation of an end to price controls, a general increase in the worldwide demand for raw materials and a threat of shortages resulting from the Arab oil embargo all played a role.

As a result of the inventory buildup, the recession that had been forecast was delayed several months. While the buying spree did force prices higher, it did in a sense prolong prosperity, too.

Unfortunately, the enormous buildup of inventories that created the illusion of a strong economy into last year was really the coming of another Ice Age. It was like a great glacier that dragged the economy to a halt.

Nothing that sellers tried seemed to encourage sales. Consumer sentiment declined. At the very time sellers had huge stocks of goods to sell, buyers decided to restrict buying. The economy fell into recession.

So long as those inventories remained unsold, there was little hope that factories would begin production of replacement goods, and that meant unemployment would remain high and probably continue higher.

For many months economists have been waiting for the great glacier to melt, and finally they have discovered a trickle of hope. For the first time in more than four years, business inventories in January declined.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss...and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss...but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair...now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation. Adv.

Jackie's Inheritance Near $120 Million

PARIS (AP) — Aristotle Onassis left about $120 million to his widow, Jacqueline, trust funds of $15 million each to her two children by President Kennedy and the bulk of his huge fortune to his only surviving child, 24-year-old Christina, sources in Athens report.

INHERITOR: Aristotle Onassis' daughter, Christina Onassis, 24, principal inheritor of her father's wealth, is said to have a good mind for business and growing maturity. (AP Wirephoto)

The fortune, estimated at about $600 million, is not expected to be diminished appreciably by inheritance taxes. The shipping magnate's numerous and varied holdings are spread through a maze of companies that mostly are domiciled in Monaco and other tax shelters.

Onassis' only son, Alexander, died in a plane crash in 1973, at the age of 24. Friends said grief over his son's death contributed to the father's physical decline.

Christina, Onassis' daughter by his first wife and a divorcee before she was 21, had grown closer to her father since his son's death and was with him when he died Saturday at the age of 69.

Onassis was married to the former Mrs. Kennedy for 6½ years. She had brought him from Athens to the American Hospital in Paris early in February after he became ill but was in New York when he died. She returned to Paris early Sunday and spent 15 minutes alone with her husband's body in the hospital chapel Sunday night.

A Mrs. Sirros, a member of the Onassis household, said the 45-year-old widow "is bearing up well and is okay."

Her two children, Caroline and John Kennedy, left the family's New York apartment early Sunday night and were believed flying to Paris. They also inherited multi-million-dollar trust funds from their father.

A source in Athens said Onassis would be buried Tuesday on Scorpios, his private island in the Ionian Sea, where he and Mrs. Kennedy were married and where his son is buried.

"Alexander is buried on one side of a 200-year-old chapel to the Virgin Mary, and Mr. Onassis wanted to be buried on the other side of the chapel," said Mrs. Sirros.

The source in Athens said the body would be flown Monday night from Paris to Actium, on the west coast of Greece, and Onassis' palatial yacht Christina would take it from there to Scorpios.

Mrs. Onassis and Christina were to fly to Athens Monday night to join other members of the family for the trip to Scorpios, the source said.

He added that the funeral would be attended only by the family.

The officers said the car traveled 122 into the westbound lane after hitting the mailbox to where it hit the first cycle and then into the eastbound lane where the second collision occurred.

Police said the victims were pronounced dead on arrival at Memorial hospital, St. Joseph, where autopsies were to be performed.

The crash near Lakeside in southern Berrien county occurred about 10:50 p.m. Saturday when the northbound auto dipped into the southbound lane.

Robert W. Marsh, 39, box 249L, Mayfair road, Union Pier, driver of the truck, told officers he swerved to avoid the car into the northbound lane to avoid the car, but that the car did also. Marsh escaped with minor injuries and sought his own treatment, police said.

8 Auto Deaths In Berrien County In 1975

The crash victims, police said,died of massive internal injuries. They were pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. Joseph Rambo, county deputy medical examiner.

Double funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Fairplain chapel, Florin funeral home, for Mr. and Mrs. Hall. Friends may call after 7 tonight. Burial will be in North Shore Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Hall was born Sept. 18, 1947, in Leechville, Ark. He was employed in the construction machinery division of Clark Equipment Company. company.

The driver was arrested after the second crash by the two troopers on charges of leaving the scene of a personal injury accident and driving while under the influence of intoxicants.

"An interdependent world cannot solve disputes by threats or force. People depend on each other more than they realize. For example, we import between 50 and 100 per cent of such essential minerals as cobalt, bauxite, tin, nickel, manganese, mercury and others."

One of the challenges that confronts the American people, he said, "is whether we learn nothing from the past and return to the introversion of the 1930s, to the dangerous notion that our fate is unrelated to the fate of others."

Jackie's Inheritance Near $120 Million

PARIS (AP) — Aristotle Onassis left about $120 million to his widow, Jacqueline, trust funds of $15 million each to her two children by President Kennedy and the bulk of his huge fortune to his only surviving child, 24-year-old Christina, sources in Athens report.

INHERITOR: Aristotle Onassis' daughter, Christina Onassis, 24, principal inheritor of her father's wealth, is said to have a good mind for business and growing maturity. (AP Wirephoto)

The fortune, estimated at about $600 million, is not expected to be diminished appreciably by inheritance taxes. The shipping magnate's numerous and varied holdings are spread through a maze of companies that mostly are domiciled in Monaco and other tax shelters.

Onassis' only son, Alexander, died in a plane crash in 1973, at the age of 24. Friends said grief over his son's death contributed to the father's physical decline.

Christina, Onassis' daughter by his first wife and a divorcee before she was 21, had grown closer to her father since his son's death and was with him when he died Saturday at the age of 69.

Onassis was married to the former Mrs. Kennedy for 6½ years. She had brought him from Athens to the American Hospital in Paris early in February after he became ill but was in New York when he died. She returned to Paris early Sunday and spent 15 minutes alone with her husband's body in the hospital chapel Sunday night.

A Mrs. Sirros, a member of the Onassis household, said the 45-year-old widow "is bearing up well and is okay."

Her two children, Caroline and John Kennedy, left the family's New York apartment early Sunday night and were believed flying to Paris. They also inherited multi-million-dollar trust funds from their father.

A source in Athens said Onassis would be buried Tuesday on Scorpios, his private island in the Ionian Sea, where he and Mrs. Kennedy were married and where his son is buried.

"Alexander is buried on one side of a 200-year-old chapel to the Virgin Mary, and Mr. Onassis wanted to be buried on the other side of the chapel," said Mrs. Sirros.

The source in Athens said the body would be flown Monday night from Paris to Actium, on the west coast of Greece, and Onassis' palatial yacht Christina would take it from there to Scorpios.

Mrs. Onassis and Christina were to fly to Athens Monday night to join other members of the family for the trip to Scorpios, the source said.

He added that the funeral would be attended only by the family.

8 Auto Deaths In Berrien County In 1975

The crash near Lakeside in southern Berrien county occurred about 10:50 p.m. Saturday when the northbound auto dipped into the southbound lane.

Robert W. Marsh, 39, box 249L, Mayfair road, Union Pier, driver of the truck, told officers he swerved to avoid the car into the northbound lane to avoid the car, but that the car did also. Marsh escaped with minor injuries and sought his own treatment, police said.

The crash victims, police said,died of massive internal injuries. They were pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. Joseph Rambo, county deputy medical examiner.

The driver was arrested after the second crash by the two troopers on charges of leaving the scene of a personal injury accident and driving while under the influence of intoxicants.

Tax Hike Bill Faces Formidable Senate

By MARY SCHEIER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bill to raise the personal income tax .7 of one per cent is headed this week for what some legislators believe to be its roughest hurdle — the Senate.

The measure, raising the state income tax from 3.9 per cent to 4.6 per cent, won a narrow 59-42 passage in the House last week — just three more votes than the 56 required.

The bill passed the House one day after the House Taxation Committee recommended it for passage. Floor debate lasted only 2½ hours before the vote was taken.

Before the Senate can vote on the tax hike, the chamber's Taxation Committee will debate and hear testimony on it and consider possible amendments. It is unclear when it will be reported to the floor.

Majority leader William Fitzgerald said the bill won't receive final action in the Senate this week, but it might be considered next week.

Among bills the House will consider this week are measures permitting right turns on red lights, permitting political activities by public employes, and setting fastening and covering requirements for trucks carrying loads on highways.

Fitzgerald, D-Detroit, said Senate bill won't be stampeded through the taxation committee, whose chairman, Sen. John Bowman, has consistently opposed it.

The Roseville Democrat has been holding hearings and preparing bills on alternate taxation plans, including taxes on services, an increase in cigarette or liquor taxes, removing sales tax exemptions business receive when purchasing new equipment, and reducing the tax break business gets for inventory storage.

Senate leaders say Bowman will not be an insurmountable obstacle to passage of the bill, although Sen. John McCauley, D-Grosse Isle, a committee member, predicts "the proposal will probably have rougher going in the Senate Taxation Committee than on the House floor."

Committee vice chairman Gary Corbin, D-Clio, said: "I'll favor whichever plan is most progressive and doesn't hurt the low-income citizens.

"The best route might be to blend several taxes like an increase in one of the nuisance taxes — like cigarettes — with a small hike of less than .7 of a per cent in the income tax," Fitzgerald said.

But if an alternative cannot be found, he said, "I'm prepared to support point-seven."

The income tax hike was proposed by Gov. William Milliken to replace $210 million to $220 million the state expects to lose anuallly due to repeal of the sales tax on food and prescription drugs by voters.

Milliken says the legislature must pass the bill by April 1 so the treasury department can have new withholding schedules mailed out by the bill's May 1 effective date.

Philosophies Are Colliding Over Gun-Toting Penalties

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Some basic crime-fighting philosophy underlies discussion of proposals to slap additional mandatory penalties on criminals convicted of crimes with a gun.

Two bills before the Senate Judiciary Committee seem simple:

They would impose an extra sentence of one or two years on anyone who had a gun during the commitment of a felony. Parole would not be permitted.

Backed by law enforcement officers and supported by the governor, the proposal is an effort to curb violent crime and punish those who use weapons illegally.

Still, there are questions.

Would they deter crime? Should a judge have his hands tied in sentencing criminals? Is the legislation a simplistic response to a complicated matter?

Two committee Democrats have expressed grave doubts on the bills.

The sponsors of the measures and law enforcement agencies argue such legislation would deter at least some criminals from toting guns on the job. While "crimes of passion" such as murder or assault may not be affected, they say robbery and burglary would be. And both citizens and police officers would be safer since the suspect wouldn't be packing a gun.

But committee Chairman Sen. Basil Brown, D-Highland Park, and Sen. Anthony Derezinski, D-Muskegon, raised several questions to the legislation. They suggested that:

—A judge should not be told what sentence to impose; he's there to impartially impose sentences at his discretion on the merits of each case. Juries might refuse to convict in some cases if they knew the defendant would get such a penalty.

—The bills would not deter crime. Offenders — especially first time — may not know of the law, and others, especially professional criminals, may gamble on not getting caught. When the maximum sentence for a serious crime ranges to a dozen years or more, an additional one or two years may not seem much to worry about.

Since most criminals carry guns illegally, they already face separate charges for that if they're caught.

—The imposition of the sentence, while mandatory, remains uncertain, since the defendant could plea-bargain to another charge to which the added sentence may not apply. It was suggested that plea bargaining would be encouraged by such a provision.

—The way the bills are written now, the mandatory sentence could be added for a crime in which the gun played no role — such as possession of narcotics where the accused happened to have a gun in his home.

In addition, an accomplice who had no knowledge of the weapon could be socked with the added time.

"I object to mandatory penalties," Brown said. "And I oppose consistency in sentences — we want lack of uniformity, and the judge should have the option on sentences."

Derezinski said such legislation only addresses itself to the "vengence" theory of law enforcement and deals with neither deterrance or rehabilitation.

Young Democrats Battling Cronyism

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A group of young Democratic state senators wants to end Senate cronyism and clubishness that they believe has cost the taxpayers dearly.

Led by Sen. Dale Kildee of Flint, the "young Turks" are chaffing at the hiring of former legislators and acquaintances of some key senators as $100-a-day "consultants," and at the expensive reconstruction of some Senate offices.

Kildee said he would ask other freshmen Democrats to meet this week to discuss improving the Senate's image.

Kildee says his group is not a splinter movement in the Senate, which now numbers 24-14 in favor of Democrats after 10 years under Republican control.

"Let's just say it is an identifiable group anxious that the Senate doesn't carry on its 'club' and 'crony' image that has existed in the public eye for so long," Kildee said last week.

"We are concerned about the club rules (that seem to provide special benefits for senators and friends)," Kildee said.

Kildee, 45, has said he is "sick ... and disgusted" that the Senate hired seven former lawmakers, lobbyists and other officials at $100 a day "consulting" jobs.

He also sharply criticized expensive remodeling in some Senate offices.

Veteran Sen. Joseph Mack, D-Ironwood, is getting the biggest office remodeling job at taxpayer expense — between $20,000 and $30,000 for everything from refrigerator, ceiling air conditioning, new carpeting and wallpaper to walnut paneling.

Senate Minority Leader Robert Davis, R-Gaylord, is getting a $17,840 redecorating job that includes a kitchenette, toilet, lighting changes, carpeting and wallpaper.

The toilet was needed, Davis insists, because "There is no public toilet for men on the ground floor on the Senate side of the capitol. The men's room is on the House end."

His personal office is expensively wallpapered with "grass paper," Davis acknowledges, but adds: "We picked the cheapest wallpaper we could find" for the new bathroom and his staffers' quarters.

Davis said he was refused when he asked Democrats for a leadership room that didn't need remodeling to accomodate GOP caucuses.

As leader, the young Detroit Democrat has approved the hiring of several defeated politicians as "consultants" and has blessed the remodeling that will run an estimated $150,000.

But Fitzgerald also has been viewed by some as an example of the new, young politician infused with a prickly social conscience and post-Watergate morality, similar to many Democratic freshmen who shook up the Congressional seniority system in Washington.

"Dale wants to keep an open dialogue on the course of the Senate and I'm in favor of that," Fitzgerald says. But he adds, "If there's going to be ay discussion this week, it's going to be spelled T-A-X," referring to debate already building over the House-passed income tax increase of seven-tenths of a per cent.

GOT TAX BREAK: Five-year-old Chuckie Day went before the Detroit City Council last week to help his mom ask for a tax break on their home which was assessed for $10,930 for 1975. Chuckie told the group: "A mouse is on the steps," breaking up the group. "Don't feed it or it'll become a rat." The council — sitting as a board of review lowered the assessment on Mrs. Day's home by $930. (AP Wirephoto)

Say Teamsters Try To Enlist Troopers

Teamsters Local 214 President Joseph Valenti said that while he believes the majority of the State Police sergea ?s and lieutenants favor Teamster representation, a state law f ars state civil service employes from joining a union which would represent them in collective bargaining.

George Bays, president of the State Police Command Officers Association, said the state is refusing to recognize the association he heads.

Valenti said the Teamsters union has the power and money to help the association in its battle for recognition.

Valenti said the State Police also are upset that their salaries, once among the highest in the state, now rank 47th.

Bays said if the command officers won bargaining rights, some 1,800 troopers would join the union quickly. The Teamsters presently represent about 1,600 police in Michigan.

Say Teamsters Try To Enlist Troopers

Teamsters Local 214 President Joseph Valenti said that while he believes the majority of the State Police sergea ?s and lieutenants favor Teamster representation, a state law f ars state civil service employes from joining a union which would represent them in collective bargaining.

George Bays, president of the State Police Command Officers Association, said the state is refusing to recognize the association he heads.

Valenti said the Teamsters union has the power and money to help the association in its battle for recognition.

Valenti said the State Police also are upset that their salaries, once among the highest in the state, now rank 47th.

Bays said if the command officers won bargaining rights, some 1,800 troopers would join the union quickly. The Teamsters presently represent about 1,600 police in Michigan.

Cass Downs Goliaths In Double Overtime

MARCH AGAINST SAINTS IN C CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

By JERRY DYKSTRA
Staff Sports Writer

LANSING — Cassopolis cut down the goliaths...now march in the Saints!

The mighty Rangers moved one step away from the pinnacle of prep basketball success Saturday night with a madcap 77-68 double overtime victory over towering Hamtramck St. Florian in a semifinal match before a limp, exasperated audience at the Lansing Civic Center.

Now all that stands between Cass and the cherished Class C state championship is Bay City All Saints, the defending champs.

But right now all loyal Ranger fans are still agog over Saturday night's 38-minute marathon of March Madness.

Cass, which had won its last three games by a total of seven points, survived its worst shooting of the season (34 per cent), a 56-45 rebounding deficit, 15 fewer shots than St. Florian, a 30-point, 30-rebound performance from the Lancers' Kevin Williams as well as a few other odds and ends.

"We didn't have the edge we did last Thursday but we still did the job when we had to. Our shooting was way off...but we still battled. We played a good last three minutes...that's what counted in the end."

Cass really didn't get its offense working until that second 3:00 overtime when the Rangers outscored St. Florian 15-6 while hitting four of six shots outcourt and seven of eight critical free throws.

Free throw shooting proved Cass' salvation. Both teams connected on 27 field goals but the Rangers hit on 23 of 31 charity tosses (74 per cent), including 10 of 12 in the two overtimes, while the Lancers managed 14 of 25 for 56 per cent.

"That was the ball game...they hit key shots and free throws and we didn't," moaned St. Florian coach Joe Zabrzenski. "They're an awfully good offensive club."

The Rangers, who now have a 10-game winning streak in a 24-3 season (the best in the school's history), put four players in double figures with Roger Walters' 25 points the tops. The 6-0 senior all-state candidate was off his usual shooting form (10 of 26) but his five points in the second overtime atoned for that.

Forward Mark Scott turned in his best game in the tournament with 21 points, which included seven of 16 afield and seven of eight free throws. Bill Dungey, the Rangers' fiesty guard, bounced back from a blow to the head which left him groggy late in regulation to serve as the catalyst in the last extra session when he tallied four of his 14 points. Center Gary Young (6-4) sank 12 points but his 13 rebounds and seven blocked shots, which included two tremendous swats of Williams' (6-7) shots, were more crucial.

St. Florian, an escape artist itself with 14 of its 21 wins this season by four points or less, got the 30-30 performance from Williams but the burly center needed 38 shots to sink his 14 field goals (37 per cent).

Williams, who repeatedly missed easy inside shots, only managed seven of 22 shooting after the first half while constantly harassed by the sagging Ranger defenders and upset by the officiating.

Terry Brunetti with 12 and Gary Radtke with 10 were the only other Lancers to reach double figues.

"We figured to let Williams get his 25-30 points but then stop the rest of them," noted Follett. "We also figured we'd put five in double figures. Well, I think we came pretty close to do what we wanted.

"Also I think our bench played a big role even though it didn't score much. Reggie Scott and Charles Wright got some key rebounds for us."

The Rangers, leading 12-11 after the opening period and 29-25 at intermission, never could break away and finally St. Florian fired in the last five points of the third period to deadlock the game at 39-all going into the fourth period.

After five ties, the Rangers took a comfy 57-51 lead with 1:55 to go. But St. Florian knocked off three straight buckets with Williams getting the tying hoop with 30 seconds remaining. A Ranger turnover with four seconds left gave the Lancers a chance at the winning points-...but Brunetti's jumper at the horn was off. Overtime!

This time the Rangers faced the uphill climb as they trailed 62-58 with one minute to go. But Young delivered two free throws and Walters a 10-footer with 25 seconds remaining. Overtime II!

Cass solved its shooting problems in the second session as it broke a 66-66 deadlock by outpointing the losers 11-2 over the final 1:17. Walters' 18-foot jumper gave the Rangers the lead for good and then Cass connected on seven straight foul tosses and a layup by Walters at the gun for the nine-point margin, the biggest of the game. Williams and Young both fouled out in the final minute with the Rangers' tasting victory when Williams went to the bench with 25 seconds left.

The Hamtramck club, averaging almost 6-4, experienced a terrible shooting night with 27 of 94 for 29 per cent. Cass was 27 of 79 for 34 per cent, 16 under its average.

The Rangers, who also got 11 assists from Dungey and 10 rebounds from Scott, had 23 turnovers, St. Florian 22.

St. Florian, co-champ of Division C-D of the Detroit Catholic league, bows out of the tourney at 21-5.

Cass now faces its biggest test ever Saturday night at 8:30 at Crisler Arena on the University of Michigan campus when it takes on No. 1 ranked All Saints (26-1).

"We've gotten this far, we might as well win it all," exclaimed Follett.

Cass once again had a big following at the game. The Rangers sold 1,200 tickets...that's from a town of about 2,500.

Indiana, Kentucky Bid For Regional Rematch

Central Michigan Plays Wildcats Thursday

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Top-ranked Indiana is credited with changing Kentucky's mild cats into Wildcats. And the Hoosiers could soon tangle with their rampaging creation since both teams appear to be on a collision course into the finals of the NCAA's Mideast Regional next Saturday.

Kentucky was manhandled by Indiana 98-74 in December and from the ashes of that defeat rose a different Wildcat team, one that sometimes confuses basketball and boxing. One coach said that after the Wildcats were wiped out by the rough-and-tumble Hoosiers, they began playing "a karate defense."

That brand of play paid off in the first-round NCAA game Saturday, when sixth-ranked Kentucky, led by poised seniors Jimmy Dan Connor and Kevin Grevey, rolled over No. 5 Marquette 76-54, ending the Warriors' 12-game winning streak and prompting Marquette Coach Al McGuire to say: "I think we lost to a much better club...(Kentucky) is a much better team than a lot of people think they are."

In Saturday's other first-round action, it was Kansas State 69, Penn 62 and Syracuse 87, La Salle 83 in overtime at Philadelphia; North Carolina 93, New Mexico State 69 and Boston College 82, Furman 76 at Charlotte, N.C.; Central Michigan 77, Georgetown 75 at Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Indiana 78, Texas-El Paso 53 and Oregon State 78, Middle Tennessee 67 at Lexington, Ky.; Cinncinati 87, Texas A&M 79 and Maryland 83, Creighton 79 at Lubbock Tex.; Louisville 91, Rutgers 78 and Notre Dame 77, Kansas 71 at Tulsa, Okla.; Arizona State 97, Alabama 94 and Nevada-Las Vegas 90, San Diego State 80 at Tempe, Ariz; Montana 69, Utah State 63 and UCLA 103, Michigan 91 in overtime at Pullman, Wash.

While the Wildcats, 23-4, are looking ahead to a possible revenge bout with undefeated Indiana, they first must beat Central Michigan 21-5, in a Midwest Regional semifinal game Thursday night at Dayton, Ohio. "We certainly want to play Indiana but we can't overlook the next one," said Grevey, a second team All-American who scored 19 points.

—Syracuse, 21-7, plays North Carolina, 22-7, and Boston College, 21-7, plays Kansas State, 19-8, in the East Regional at Providence, R.I.

—Cincinnati, 22-5, plays Louisville, 25-2, and Maryland, 23-4, plays Notre Dame, 19-8, in the Midwest Regional at Dayton, Ohio.

—Arizona State, 24-3, plays Nevada-Las Vegas, 23-4, and Montana, 21-6, plays UCLA, 24-3.

The winners of the regional semifinals will then meet Saturday night in the finals, and when the dust clears, there will be four teams on their way to San Diego March 29-31 to crown a new champion.

Indiana took another large step toward the coveted title by whipping Texas-El Paso. And, of course, the Hoosiers' doomsday defense played a vital role.

"There's no question that our defense is the most important part of our game," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "It was tough for them to come back against us."

Indiana, which broke the game wide open early in the second half with a 31-12 spurt behind Steve Green and Quinn Buckner, received an inspirational lift by the appearance of injured high scorer Scott May.

May, wearing a cast on his right forearm to protect a broken bone, didn't take a shot and was credited with one rebound in 51 seconds of playing time. "He's looking better all the time," said trainer Bob Young. "He can be used in certain situations."

Second-ranked UCLA, seeking its 10th NCAA championship in 12 years, barely survived a battle with Michigan. With two seconds left in regulation, Michigan's C.J. Kupec rimmed an 18-footer and the teams went into overtime. "C.J. was out a little farther than I would have liked," said Michigan Coach John Orr. "But we had planned to play for the last shot and he makes most of those."

Early in the overtime, Marques Johnson cashed in two foul shots and Richard Washington tossed in a pair of jumpers to keep the Bruins' season alive.

Third-rated Louisville used Junior Bridgeman's career-high 36 points and a strong bunch of reserves to bust open a two-point game at halftime. "I think the key was our bench," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "It was obvious in the last 10 minutes that Rutgers was not nearly as quick as they were in the first half."

Maryland guards John Lucas and Brad Davis fired long range against a tough zone defense to beat pesky Creighton. Doug Brookins scored 25 points and led a late Creighton charge but Lucas' foul shot with nine seconds left sealed the verdict.

No. 7 North Carolina, joining Maryland as the two Atlantic Coast Conference teams in this tournament and forcing defending NCAA champion North Carolina State to the sidelines, rode a 17-2 burst early in the second half to a romp over New Mexico State.

Arizona State raced to a big lead, had troubles with Alabama's full court press but held on to nip the Crimson Tide. "A lot of teams wouldn't have given that kind of effort," said C.M. Newton, coach of 10th-ranked Alabama. "I thought we showed a lot of class."

Syracuse made it into overtime when La Salle's Joe Bryant, who scored 25 points, missed a shot with three seconds left in regulation. Syracuse then hit 10 straight foul shots and got two clutch baskets by Kevin King to nip La Salle.

Chuck Williams and Carl Gerlach each tossed in 20 points in Kansas State's upset of 11th-ranked Penn. The Quakers, idle since March 1, closed to 63-58 with 1:57 left but Kansas State held on.

Highly-Rated UCLA Averts Big Upset

The two teams were winners in first-round play Saturday night and will meet Thursday in Portland, Ore.

"I fear looking past anyone...you shouldn't do that," Wooden said after his second-ranked Bruins defeated stubborn Michigan 103-91 in an overtime thriller.

"One of my strengths is that I'm afraid of everyone—they all look good to me. That helps keep the players from getting overconfident and satisfied with themselves."

"It hasn't been a secret that UCLA is the team that we probably would be meeting," said Heathcote, whose Grizzlies pulled a mild upset in disposing of Utah State 69-63. "We aren't thrilled about it, but, on the other hand, we're not scared to death, either. It will be a step forward for our program to see what we can do."

Heathcote almost lost the chance for that big step as the Wolverines came within inches of defeating the Bruins in regulation time. Michigan center C.J. Kupec's 18-foot jumper with two seconds to go went off the rim and the score stayed tied at 87-87.

Wooden wouldn't have been surprised if it had gone in. He said he "had a premonition" during the week that a loss was on the way and was fearful at halftime—when Michigan led 50-46—that it was coming true.

"I told the boys that it had been a long season and I would understand if they were anxious that it would be over," the veteran coach said. "But I was for giving it another try."

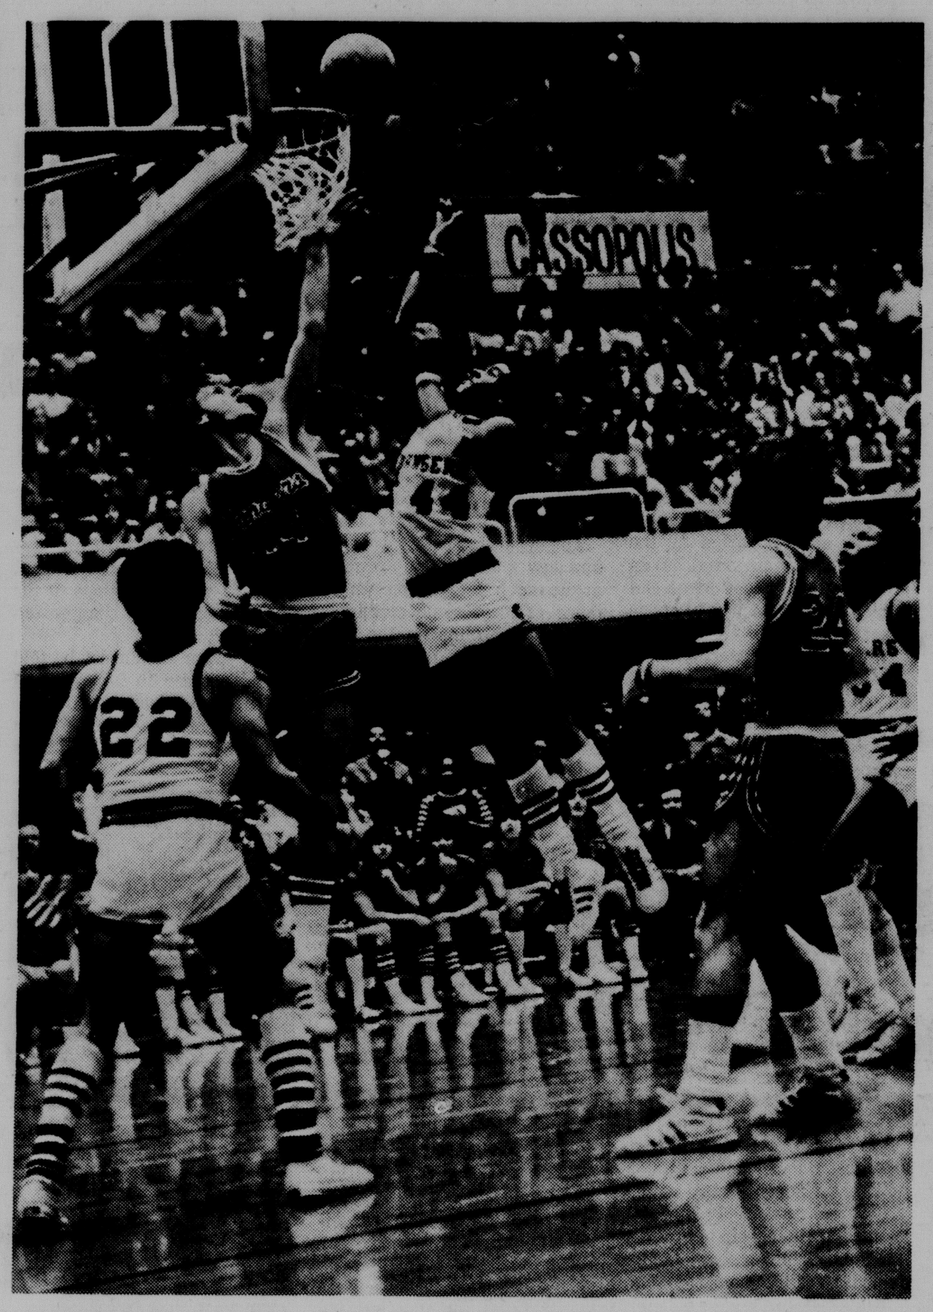
So were the Bruins, who seemed to be pulling away with 11:20 left in the second half and the score in their favor 68-67. But the Wolverines also had some staying power and Wayman Britt hit both ends of a 1-and-1 free throw situation with 1:23 left to tie the score.

The Michigan bubble burst quickly in the overtime period and the Bruins breezed to the win with a 16-4 burst in the extra period.

As usual, All-American forward Dave Meyers was the hero, scoring 26 points and dominating Wolverine ace Kupec in the second half. Kupec ended with 28 points but only eight in the second half.

Heathcote's Big Sky Conference champions, making their tournament debut, outrebounded the taller Aggies and held on to win after building a 13-point lead in the first 11 minutes of the second half.

Senior Eric Hays said he played the best game of his career in leading the Grizzlies with 25 points. Rich Haws had 26 for Utah State but the Aggies' Jimmy Moore was held to 10 points, about half his average.



UP AND IN: Cassopolis' Roger Walters (44) sweeps towards the basket with a flying shot while Dave Orbaczewski (44) of Hamtramck St. Florian sticks his hand into the nets in a vain attempt to block the shot. Looking on is Bill Dungey (22) of Cass and Terry Brunetti (24) of St. Florian. The Rangers won 77-68 in double overtime in the semifinal game Saturday night at the Lansing Civic Center. # Drake Takes NCIT With Home-Cooking

The least-surprised spectator in the slim crowd of 4,161 and a national television audience was Haralson's mother, Mae.

"I knew they were going to win. Larry told me so on Thursday when I had him and some other boys out for supper," she said.

Her Louisville-reared son, a mainstay on two straight Kentucky state title high school teams, responded to his homecoming by averaging 20 points a game in Drake's march through the eight-team tournament.

But the steady play of Haralson and teammate Terry McKissick, who were both named to the all-tournament team, was only half the strategy of Bob Ortegel, Drake's first-year coach.

Arizona's racehorse attack never got out of the gate as Drake methodically and calmly protected a 10-point lead throughout the second half. Deadly free throw shooting by the third-place entry from the Missouri Valley Conference sealed Arizona's fate.

Drake received a 24-point effort from McKissick and 20 from Haralson, while holding 6-foot-9 Al Fleming, who had a 20-point average, scoreless in the first half. But in the end, Drake's 23-of-24 foul shooting played a key part in the downfall of the favored Wildcats. Arizona, 22-7, converted six of eight free throws.

Bob Elliott, Arizona's bullstrong inside operator, was named the tournament's most valuable player. He averaged 28.3 in three appearances, including 27 in the finale.

Other all-tourney selections were Purdue's John Garrett and Bowling Green's Jeff Montgomery.

NCIT officials said the event, which drew 20,218, would return to Louisville next year. A year ago in St. Louis, the tournament pulled 19,000 fans.

Indiana, Kentucky Bid For Regional Rematch

Central Michigan Plays Wildcats Thursday

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Top-ranked Indiana is credited with changing Kentucky's mild cats into Wildcats. And the Hoosiers could soon tangle with their rampaging creation since both teams appear to be on a collision course into the finals of the NCAA's Mideast Regional next Saturday.

Kentucky was manhandled by Indiana 98-74 in December and from the ashes of that defeat rose a different Wildcat team, one that sometimes confuses basketball and boxing. One coach said that after the Wildcats were wiped out by the rough-and-tumble Hoosiers, they began playing "a karate defense."

That brand of play paid off in the first-round NCAA game Saturday, when sixth-ranked Kentucky, led by poised seniors Jimmy Dan Connor and Kevin Grevey, rolled over No. 5 Marquette 76-54, ending the Warriors' 12-game winning streak and prompting Marquette Coach Al McGuire to say: "I think we lost to a much better club...(Kentucky) is a much better team than a lot of people think they are."

In Saturday's other first-round action, it was Kansas State 69, Penn 62 and Syracuse 87, La Salle 83 in overtime at Philadelphia; North Carolina 93, New Mexico State 69 and Boston College 82, Furman 76 at Charlotte, N.C.; Central Michigan 77, Georgetown 75 at Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Indiana 78, Texas-El Paso 53 and Oregon State 78, Middle Tennessee 67 at Lexington, Ky.; Cincinati 87, Texas A&M 79 and Maryland 83, Creighton 79 at Lubbock Tex.; Louisville 91, Rutgers 78 and Notre Dame 77, Kansas 71 at Tulsa, Okla.; Arizona State 97, Alabama 94 and Nevada-Las Vegas 90, San Diego State 80 at Tempe, Ariz; Montana 69, Utah State 63 and UCLA 103, Michigan 91 in overtime at Pullman, Wash.

While the Wildcats, 23-4, are looking ahead to a possible revenge bout with undefeated Indiana, they first must beat Central Michigan 21-5, in a Midwest Regional semifinal game Thursday night at Dayton, Ohio. "We certainly want to play Indiana but we can't overlook the next one," said Grevey, a second team All-American who scored 19 points.

—Syracuse, 21-7, plays North Carolina, 22-7, and Boston College, 21-7, plays Kansas State, 19-8, in the East Regional at Providence, R.I.

—Cincinnati, 22-5, plays Louisville, 25-2, and Maryland, 23-4, plays Notre Dame, 19-8, in the Midwest Regional at Dayton, Ohio.

—Arizona State, 24-3, plays Nevada-Las Vegas, 23-4, and Montana, 21-6, plays UCLA, 24-3.

The winners of the regional semifinals will then meet Saturday night in the finals, and when the dust clears, there will be four teams on their way to San Diego March 29-31 to crown a new champion.

Indiana took another large step toward the coveted title by whipping Texas-El Paso. And, of course, the Hoosiers' doomsday defense played a vital role.

"There's no question that our defense is the most important part of our game," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "It was tough for them to come back against us."

Indiana, which broke the game wide open early in the second half with a 31-12 spurt behind Steve Green and Quinn Buckner, received an inspirational lift by the appearance of injured high scorer Scott May.

May, wearing a cast on his right forearm to protect a broken bone, didn't take a shot and was credited with one rebound in 51 seconds of playing time. "He's looking better all the time," said trainer Bob Young. "He can be used in certain situations."

Second-ranked UCLA, seeking its 10th NCAA championship in 12 years, barely survived a battle with Michigan. With two seconds left in regulation, Michigan's C.J. Kupec rimmed an 18-footer and the teams went into overtime. "C.J. was out a little farther than I would have liked," said Michigan Coach John Orr. "But we had planned to play for the last shot and he makes most of those."

Early in the overtime, Marques Johnson cashed in two foul shots and Richard Washington tossed in a pair of jumpers to keep the Bruins' season alive.

Third-rated Louisville used Junior Bridgeman's career-high 36 points and a strong bunch of reserves to bust open a two-point game at halftime. "I think the key was our bench," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "It was obvious in the last 10 minutes that Rutgers was not nearly as quick as they were in the first half."

Maryland guards John Lucas and Brad Davis fired long range against a tough zone defense to beat pesky Creighton. Doug Brookins scored 25 points and led a late Creighton charge but Lucas' foul shot with nine seconds left sealed the verdict.

No. 7 North Carolina, joining Maryland as the two Atlantic Coast Conference teams in this tournament and forcing defending NCAA champion North Carolina State to the sidelines, rode a 17-2 burst early in the second half to a romp over New Mexico State.

Arizona State raced to a big lead, had troubles with Alabama's full court press but held on to nip the Crimson Tide. "A lot of teams wouldn't have given that kind of effort," said C.M. Newton, coach of 10th-ranked Alabama. "I thought we showed a lot of class."

Syracuse made it into overtime when La Salle's Joe Bryant, who scored 25 points, missed a shot with three seconds left in regulation. Syracuse then hit 10 straight foul shots and got two clutch baskets by Kevin King to nip La Salle.

Chuck Williams and Carl Gerlach each tossed in 20 points in Kansas State's upset of 11th-ranked Penn. The Quakers, idle since March 1, closed to 63-58 with 1:57 left but Kansas State held on.

Highly-Rated UCLA Averts Big Upset

The two teams were winners in first-round play Saturday night and will meet Thursday in Portland, Ore.

"I fear looking past anyone...you shouldn't do that," Wooden said after his second-ranked Bruins defeated stubborn Michigan 103-91 in an overtime thriller.

"One of my strengths is that I'm afraid of everyone—they all look good to me. That helps keep the players from getting overconfident and satisfied with themselves."

"It hasn't been a secret that UCLA is the team that we probably would be meeting," said Heathcote, whose Grizzlies pulled a mild upset in disposing of Utah State 69-63. "We aren't thrilled about it, but, on the other hand, we're not scared to death, either. It will be a step forward for our program to see what we can do."

Heathcote almost lost the chance for that big step as the Wolverines came within inches of defeating the Bruins in regulation time. Michigan center C.J. Kupec's 18-foot jumper with two seconds to go went off the rim and the score stayed tied at 87-87.

Wooden wouldn't have been surprised if it had gone in. He said he "had a premonition" during the week that a loss was on the way and was fearful at halftime—when Michigan led 50-46—that it was coming true.

"I told the boys that it had been a long season and I would understand if they were anxious that it would be over," the veteran coach said. "But I was for giving it another try."

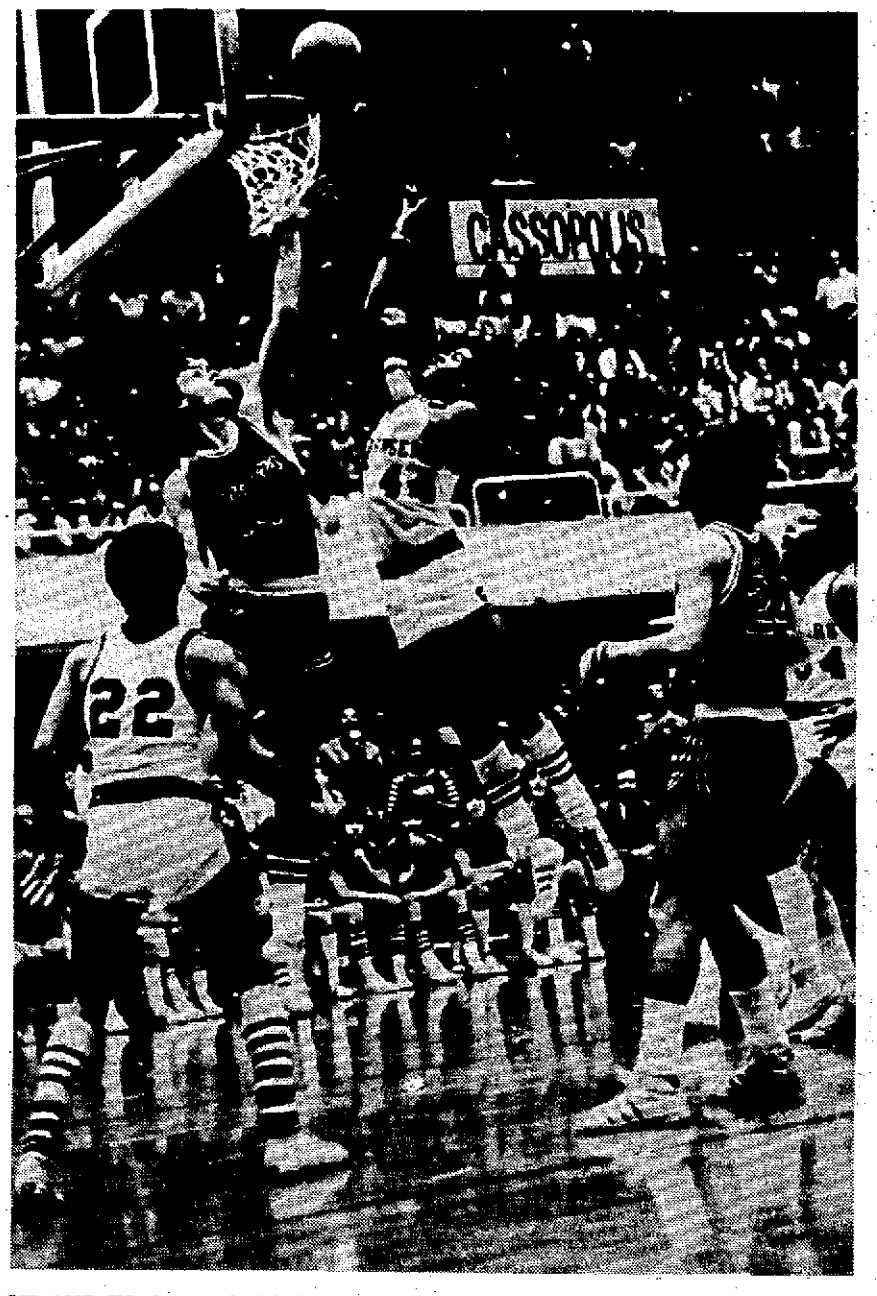
So were the Bruins, who seemed to be pulling away with 11:20 left in the second half and the score in their favor 68-67. But the Wolverines also had some staying power and Wayman Britt hit both ends of a 1-and-1 free throw situation with 1:23 left to tie the score.

The Michigan bubble burst quickly in the overtime period and the Bruins breezed to the win with a 16-4 burst in the extra period.

As usual, All-American forward Dave Meyers was the hero, scoring 26 points and dominating Wolverine ace Kupec in the second half. Kupec ended with 28 points but only eight in the second half.

Heathcote's Big Sky Conference champions, making their tournament debut, outrebounded the taller Aggies and held on to win after building a 13-point lead in the first 11 minutes of the second half.

Senior Eric Hays said he played the best game of his career in leading the Grizzlies with 25 points. Rich Haws had 26 for Utah State but the Aggies' Jimmy Moore was held to 10 points, about half his average.



UP AND IN: Cassopolis' Roger Walters (44) sweeps towards the basket with a flying shot while Dave Orbaczewski (44) of Hamtramck St. Florian sticks his hand into the nets in a vain attempt to block the shot. Looking on is Bill Dungey (22) of Cass and Terry Brunetti (24) of St. Florian. The Rangers won 77-68 in double overtime in the semifinal game Saturday night at the Lansing Civic Center. Cass now meets Bay City All Saints Saturday in the finals. (Carl Hartman photo)

Drake Takes NCIT With Home-Cooking

The least-surprised spectator in the slim crowd of 4,161 and a national television audience was Haralson's mother, Mae.

"I knew they were going to win. Larry told me so on Thursday when I had him and some other boys out for supper," she said.

Her Louisville-reared son, a mainstay on two straight Kentucky state title high school teams, responded to his homecoming by averaging 20 points a game in Drake's march through the eight-team tournament.

But the steady play of Haralson and teammate Terry McKissick, who were both named to the all-tournament team, was only half the strategy of Bob Ortegel, Drake's first-year coach.

Arizona's racehorse attack never got out of the gate as Drake methodically and calmly protected a 10-point lead throughout the second half. Deadly free throw shooting by the third-place entry from the Missouri Valley Conference sealed Arizona's fate.

Drake received a 24-point effort from McKissick and 20 from Haralson, while holding 6-foot-9 Al Fleming, who had a 20-point average, scoreless in the first half. But in the end, Drake's 23-of-24 foul shooting played a key part in the downfall of the favored Wildcats. Arizona, 22-7, converted six of eight free throws.

Bob Elliott, Arizona's bullstrong inside operator, was named the tournament's most valuable player. He averaged 28.3 in three appearances, including 27 in the finale.

Other all-tourney selections were Purdue's John Garrett and Bowling Green's Jeff Montgomery.

NCIT officials said the event, which drew 20,218, would return to Louisville next year. A year ago in St. Louis, the tournament pulled 19,000 fans.

Little Giants Taking Charge In State Cage Tourney

Prep basketball's "little" giants have taken command of the 1975 state championship tournament and the fans love it. But it's making some of the coaches turn a little strange.

Last year's finals were highlighted by the play of such towering pivotmen as 6-foot-9 Will Franklin of Birmingham Brother Rice and Holt's 6-foot-8 Jeff Tropf.

But when the final curtain goes up on this year's tourney at Michigan's Crisler Arena on Saturday, it will be a pack of slick-shooting guards and forwards who paved the way to Ann Arbor.

Class A

Sixth-ranked Highland Park (22-3) has been riding the hot hand of senior Terry Duerod all season and some folks are starting to wonder how long Coach Darrell Pursiful's digestive system can hold out.

Duerod is only 6-foot-2, but he has been averaging 27 points a game and hauling about 12 rebounds each time out. His long-looping jumpers earned him 43 points in the quarterfinals against Berkley and he poured in 23 more Saturday against Dearborn Fordson, despite sitting out nearly a quarter with foul problems.

Pursiful reacts like any coach might. He wears the same checkered red suit and eats a plateful of liver and onions in the locker room before every game. He polished off a helping before Saturday's game, after an assistant carried thall the way from Dumas' Restaurant in Highland Park to Jenison Fieldhouse on the Michigan State campus.

"I've been eating them before every game," Purciful said after Highland Park's victory over Dearborn Fordson. "The only time I missed is when we played Southeastern and we lost by a point in the middle of the season.

With 3:44 to play and the score tied at 47-all, Simmons drove the length of the court and hit a driving layup to put Flint on top by two. You could sense what was coming and, sure enough, 10 seconds later Simmons stole the ball and hit a quick eight-foot jumper to give Flint a 51-47 lead which the Wildcats never relinquished. He finished with 16.

Class B

The Class B matchup next Saturday also promises to be a battle of the "little" big men.

Lake Odessa's 6-foot-7 Dave O'Mara scored 23 points Saturday, but it was Al Westendorp, a 6-foot-2 guard, who outdueled Lumen Christi's Joe Slack to spark Lakewood's upset of the third-ranked Titans.

Slack led all scorers with 28 points and staked Jackson to an 11-point lead at one point in the third quarter. But Westendorp, who finished with 17, led Lake Odessa (25-1) back. With 1:33 to play Lakewood's 6-foot-1 Stacey Bosworth put the Vikings ahead with a layup and they never gave up the lead.

Westendorp sealed it by stealing the ball from Slack with 14 seconds remaining, forcing Slack to commit his fifth foul.

"Westendorp really was the key to our victory," Coach Rolly Krauss said. "He generally is the man we look to."

Mount Pleasant's John Weisenburger is only 6-foot-1, but looked taller to Wyoming Godwin Heights when he came off the bench late in the first quarter and scored 10 points before the half. His efforts sparked the Oilers (19-7) to a comfortable 41-31 halftime lead and they never were threatened again. Kim Tillotson, 6-foot-3, was tops for the Oilers with 28 points. Weisenburger finished with 12.

"A player who can come off the bench and fire up a club like he (Weisenburger) does, is more valuable as a sixth man," Coach George Noch said. "He had a super game."

Class C

When Roger Walters draws himself up to his full height, he can just about make an even six feet. But that's tall enough as far as Cassopolis Coach Robert Follett is concerned.

Walters poured in 25 points to lead the Rangers (24-3) by Hamtramck St. Florian in double overtime. His efforts overshadowed the 30-point performance of St. Florian's 6-foot-7 pivotman, Kevin Williams.

Bay City All Saints (26-1) continue to march to the drum of 6-foot-2 senior Billy Harris, but it was 5-foot-10 guard Gary Rasdorf who got the Cougars past Negaunee and into the finals. Rasdorf led all scorers with 28 points while Harris added 14. Negaunee's Chuck Vercoe had 22.

Class D

Mount Pleasant Sacred Heart also leans heavily upon a little man, 5-foot-11 junior Bill Myler, even though 6-foot-6 Dave Simons gives Coach Denny Kuiper's quintet breathing room under the boards.

Myler poured in 24 points to lead No. 10 Sacred Heart (23-3) past top-ranked Detroit East Catholic.

Simmons finished with 14, while coping with East Catholic's 6-foot-7 Greg Guye who hit for 24.

"We had heard a lot about East Catholic," said Irish Coach Denny Kuiper, "and we were just hoping we'd get a chance to play them."

Allendale (18-8) got a 14-point second period from 6-foot-3 Mark Weirsma and went on to an easy victory over Crystal Falls. Weirsma finished with 36 points.

No. 1 Gophers Crunched, 6-1

Tech Icers NCAA Champs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — VHIGAN Tech got an opportunity no other team has had in the 28-year history of the National Collegiate Athletic Association hockey tournament. And the Huskies made the best of it.

Defeated a year ago by Minnesota in the championship, the Huskies got a second chance against the Gophers Saturday night and this time came away with a 6-1 victory.

Michigan Tech played with vengeance and completely dominated the No. 1-ranked Gophers on both ends of the ice, especially around the goal of Tech's Jim Warden, the tournament's Most Valuable Player. The Huskies said afterward the 1974 result had been on their minds.

"Last year, we came in and we were cocky. We knew we should win — and I still think we should hve," said Warden, a lanky 6-foot-3 junior. "But this year we had lots to prove."

Coach John MacInnes, who has guided Michigan Tech to all three of its NCAA titles, the last coming in 1965, said his team played its best game of the season.

"I think we had a much better mental attitude than last year," he said. "Minnesota had everything to lose — I think they felt the pressure more than us."

Michigan Tech, which finished with a 32-9-1 mark, launched a workmanlike assault on Minnesota goalie Larry Thayer at the midway point of the first half. On the other end, the Huskie defenders limited the Gophers to bad-angle shots from far out.

Bill Steele's slap shot opened the scoring at 11:36 and was followed by five Tech goals coming on excellent inside play.

In the consolation game, an NCAA tournament record for most goals by two teams in a single game was broke. Boston University took third place over Harvard for the second consecutive year, outscoring the Crimson, 10-5, behind the three-goal scoring of Terry Meagher and Mike Fidler.

But Warden and winger Steve Jensen missed the celebration. They were on their way to Europe to join the U.S. National Team for some international competition. Warden is expected to be one of the U.S. goalies in next winter's Olympic Games at Innsbruck.

The Tech squad arrived back in Houghton via special plane from St. Louis. The delegation bore the NCAA national hockey championship cup and a wide array of banners indicated their newly won honors.

The large group of fans greeted the team at the airport with "Hail to the National Champions" and the school fight song.

Head Coach MacInnes and assistants Rich Yeo and Glenn Weller were as merry as the players as they beamed their appreciation to the crowd.

MacInnes also had special praise for Rob Loriner and Bob D'Alvise who, along with Warden and Jensen were named to the All-Tournament team.

Reports circulated around this hockey-mad community Sunday that MacInnes would goes to Duluth on Tuesday where he has been rumored in line for the head coach's job at the University of Minnesota-Duluth.

"John's not job-hunting," a supporter said, "but he'd be silly not to go talk when people invite him."

Iowa Takes Mat Crown

Spartans' Milkovich Upset By Fritz

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — This year's national collegiate wrestling champions are all first-time NCAA titlists.

Penn State's John Fritz took care of the only defending champ to make it to the finals Saturday, defeating Pat Milkovich of Michigan State in the 126-pound division of the National Collegiate Athletic Association event.

Fritz, who beat Milkovich 5-5, 3-1 in overtime, said, "I knew I'd be ready this time.

"I faced him before earlier this year," Fritz said. "He's a hard guy to get in on and he used this to advantge against you." Milkovich had been seeking his third national title.

The Hawkeyes totaled 102 points in the three-day competition conducted in Princeton University's Jadwin Gymnasium. Oklahoma finished second with 77 points and Oklahoma State garnered third place with 68 points.

Iowa's victory was a lot closer than the final scores indicate. Holm needed one point in riding time for a 7-6 victory over Syracuse's John Janiak. Entering the final period, Holm was behind 5-2.

Yagla and Wisconsin's Lee Kemp were tied 4-4 after regulation. The only scoring in the overtime period was a stalling point awarded to each wrestler, leaving the match deadlocked again.

Yagla was awarded a split decision by the referees.

Lehigh University captured two individual titles, including Mick Frick's win in the 134-pound division. Frick, who defeated Oklahoma's Brian Beatson, 10-5, was named the tournament's outstanding wrestler.

Jim Bennett became the second wrestler in Yale history to win an NCAA title, defeating Northwestern's third-seeded Andre Allen in the 142-pound class, 5-3. Bennett, who was unseeded, upset four seeds during the tournament.

Little Giants Taking Charge In State Cage Tourney

Prep basketball's "little" giants have taken command of the 1975 state championship tournament and the fans love it. But it's making some of the coaches turn a little strange.

Last year's finals were highlighted by the play of such towering pivotmen as 6-foot-8 Will Franklin of Birmingham Brother Rice and Holt's 6-foot-8 Jeff Tropf.

But when the final curtain goes up on this year's tourney at Michigan's Crisler Arena on Saturday, it will be a pack of slick-shooting guards and forwards who paved the way to Ann Arbor.

Class A

Sixth-ranked Highland Park (22-3) has been riding the hot hand of senior Terry Duerod all season and some folks are starting to wonder how long Coach Darrell Pursiful's digestive system can hold out.

Duerod is only 6-foot-2, but he has been averaging 27 points a game and hauling about 12 rebounds each time out. His long-looping jumpers earned him 43 points in the quarterfinals against Berkley and he poured in 23 more Saturday against Dearborn Fordson, despite sitting out nearly a quarter with foul problems.

Pursiful reacts like any coach might. He wears the same checkered red suit and eats a plateful of liver and onions in the locker room before every game. He polished off a helping before Saturday's game, after an assistant carried thall the way from Dumas' Restaurant in Highland Park to Jenison Fieldhouse on the Michigan State campus.

"I've been eating them before every game," Purciful said after Highland Park's victory over Dearborn Fordson. "The only time I missed is when we played Southeastern and we lost by a point in the middle of the season.

With 3:44 to play and the score tied at 47-all, Simmons drove the length of the court and hit a driving layup to put Flint on top by two. You could sense what was coming and, sure enough, 10 seconds later Simmons stole the ball and hit a quick eight-foot jumper to give Flint a 51-47 lead which the Wildcats never relinquished. He finished with 16.

Class B

The Class B matchup next Saturday also promises to be a battle of the "little" big men.

Lake Odessa's 6-foot-7 Dave O'Mara scored 23 points Saturday, but it was Al Westendorp, a 6-foot-2 guard, who outdueled Lumen Christi's Joe Slack to spark Lakewood's upset of the third-ranked Titans.

Slack led all scorers with 28 points and staked Jackson to an 11-point lead at one point in the third quarter. But Westendorp, who finished with 17, led Lake Odessa (25-1) back. With 1:33 to play Lakewood's 6-foot-1 Stacey Besworth put the Vikings ahead with a layup and they never gave up the lead.

Westendorp sealed it by stealing the ball from Slack with 14 seconds remaining, forcing Slack to commit his fifth foul.

"Westendorp really was the key to our victory," Coach Rolly Krauss said. "He generally is the man we look to."

Mount Pleasant's John Weisenburger is only 6-foot-1, but looked taller to Wyoming Godwin Heights when he came off the bench late in the first quarter and scored 10 points before the half. His efforts sparked the Oilers (19-7) to a comfortable 41-31 halftime lead and they never were threatened again. Kim Tillotson, 6-foot-3, was tops for the Oilers with 28 points. Weisenburger finished with 12.

"A player who can come off the bench and fire up a club like he (Weisenburger) does, is more valuable as a sixth man," Coach George Noch said. "He had a super game."

Class C

When Roger Walters draws himself up to his full height, he can just about make an even six feet. But that's tall enough as far as Cassopolis Coach Robert Follett is concerned.

Walters poured in 25 points to lead the Rangers (24-3) by Hamtramck St. Florian in double overtime. His efforts overshadowed the 30-point performance of St. Florian's 6-foot-7 pivotman, Kevin Williams.

Bay City All Saints (26-1) continue to march to the drum of 6-foot-2 senior Billy Harris, but it was 5-foot-10 guard Gary Rasdorf who got the Cougars past Negaunee and into the finals. Rasdorf led all scorers with 28 points while Harris added 14. Negaunee's Chuck Vercoe had 22.

Class D

Myler poured in 24 points to lead No. 10 Sacred Heart (23-3) past top-ranked Detroit, East Catholic.

Simmons finished with 14, while coping with East Catholic's 6-foot-7 Greg Guye who hit for 24.

"We had heard a lot about East Catholic," said Irish Coach Denny Kuiper, "and we were just hoping we'd get a chance to play them."

Allendale (18-8) got a 14-point second period from 6-foot-3 Mark Weirsma and went on to an easy victory over Crystal Falls. Weirsma finished with 36 points.

No. 1 Gophers Crunched, 6-1

Tech Icers NCAA Champs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — VHIGAN Tech got an opportunity no other team has had in the 28-year history of the National Collegiate Athletic Association hockey tournament. And the Huskies made the best of it.

Defeated a year ago by Minnesota in the championship, the Huskies got a second chance against the Gophers Saturday night and this time came away with a 6-1 victory.

Michigan Tech played with vengeance and completely dominated the No. 1-ranked Gophers on both ends of the ice, especially around the goal of Tech's Jim Warden, the tournament's Most Valuable Player. The Huskies said afterward the 1974 result had been on their minds.

"Last year, we came in and we were cocky. We knew we should win — and I still think we should hve," said Warden, a lanky 6-foot-3 junior. "But this year we had lots to prove."

Coach John MacInnes, who has guided Michigan Tech to all three of its NCAA titles, the last coming in 1965, said his team played its best game of the season.

"I think we had a much better mental attitude than last year," he said. "Minnesota had everything to lose — I think they felt the pressure more than us."

Michigan Tech, which finished with a 32-9-1 mark, launched a workmanlike assault on Minnesota goalie Larry Thayer at the midway point of the first half. On the other end, the Huskie defenders limited the Gophers to bad-angle shots from far out.

Bill Steele's slap shot opened the scoring at 11:36 and was followed by five Tech goals coming on excellent inside play.

In the consolation game, an NCAA tournament record for most goals by two teams in a single game was broke. Boston University took third place over Harvard for the second consecutive year, outscoring the Crimson, 10-5, behind the three-goal scoring of Terry Meagher and Mike Fidler.

But Warden and winger Steve Jensen missed the celebration. They were on their way to Europe to join the U.S. National Team for some international competition. Warden is expected to be one of the U.S. goalies in next winter's Olympic Games at Innsbruck.

The Tech squad arrived back in Houghton via special plane from St. Louis. The delegation bore the NCAA national hockey championship cup and a wide array of banners indicated their newly won honors.

The large group of fans greeted the team at the airport with "Hail to the National Champions" and the school fight song.

Head Coach MacInnes and assistants Rich Yeo and Glenn Weller were as merry as the players as they beamed their appreciation to the crowd.

MacInnes also had special praise for Rob Loriner and Bob D'Alvise who, along with Warden and Jensen were named to the All-Tournament team.

Reports circulated around this hockey-mad community Sunday that MacInnes would goes to Duluth on Tuesday where he has been rumored in line for the head coach's job at the University of Minnesota-Duluth.

"John's not job-hunting," a supporter said, "but he'd be silly not to go talk when people invite him."

Following the airport honoring, the team and well-wishers adjourned to the Diamond Mike Cafe for a ham dinner that reportedly matched their hockey appetites.

Spartans' Milkovich Upset By Fritz

Penn State's John Fritz took care of the only defending champ to make it to the finals Saturday, defeating Pat Milkovich of Michigan State in the 126-pound division of the National Collegiate Athletic Association event.

Fritz, who beat Milkovich 5-5, 3-1 in overtime, said, "I knew I'd be ready this time.

"I faced him before earlier this year," Fritz said. "He's a hard guy to get in on and he used this to advantge against you." Milkovich had been seeking his third national title.

The Hawkeyes totaled 102 points in the three-day competition conducted in Princeton University's Jadwin Gymnasium. Oklahoma finished second with 77 points and Oklahoma State garnered third place with 68 points.

Iowa's victory was a lot closer than the final scores indicate. Holm needed one point in riding time for a 7-6 victory over Syracuse's John Janiak. Entering the final period, Holm was behind 5-2.

Yagla and Wisconsin's Lee Kemp were tied 4-4 after regulation. The only scoring in the overtime period was a stalling point awarded to each wrestler, leaving the match deadlocked again.

Yagla was awarded a split decision by the referees.

Lehigh University captured two individual titles, including Mick Frick's win in the 134-pound division. Frick, who defeated Oklahoma's Brian Beatson, 10-5, was named the tournament's outstanding wrestler.

Jim Bennett became the second wrestler in Yale history to win an NCAA title, defeating Northwestern's third-seeded Andre Allen in the 142-pound class, 5-3. Bennett, who was unseeded, upset four seeds during the tournament.

Three-Stroke Champion In Doral Open

Nicklaus' Win Ends Frustrations

MIAMI (AP) — There have been 53 other American victories, along with assorted foreign triumphs in the British Open, the Australian Open and the World Cup.

But No. 54, which tied him for fourth place on the all-time winning list, was particularly pleasing to Jack Nicklaus.

The triumph in the Doral Open Golf Tournament Sunday wiped out the memory of a collapse that cost him the title in the Jackie Gleason Classic just two weeks ago.

It set him up for the Masters. It wrote an end to a series of frustrations that have plagued the Golden Bear since last fall.

And it came with Johnny Miller in the field.

"I read the papers like everybody else," Nicklaus said when asked his reaction to Miller's challenge to Jack's position as the game's premier performer.

"He's won a lot of tournaments the past year or so. And he'll win a lot more. It's good for me and good for the game to have someone playing very well."

But Nicklaus, who had a final round 68 and won by three strokes with a 276 total, isn't ready to change his schedule or shift his priorities to meet the challenge.

"My schedule is the same as it's been for five or six years," Nicklaus said. "I played three in the west, I've played two in Florida. I'll play one more and go to Augusta with six tournaments.

"That hasn't varied by more than one tournament in several years."

And he turned his attention from Miller to the Masters in Augusta, Ga., April 10-13.

"It's always nice to win," he said. "But it's particularly nice to win this close to Augusta. It's good to get your confidence up. And nothing is better for your confidence than winning."

Bert Yancey and Forrest Fezler, playing behind Nicklaus, had closed to within a single stroke of Jack as he stood on the tee on the 18th hole, a treacherous waterguarded layout that's probably the toughest on the 7,028-yard, par-72 Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

Jack needed to make par four to retain his advantage. He made three.

He had a difficult lie in an old divot for his second shot, but dug it out with a three iron, hooking the ball around the edge of the lake to within 20 feet of the cup.

Yancey and Fezler both bogeyed the hole moments later and tied for second at 279. Yancey had a closing 67, Fezler 71.

Miller came on with a 67 that could have been better and took fourth at 280. He missed five consecutive birdie putts of 8-12 feet in the run down the stretch.

"My caddy and I were tearing our hair," he said. "I just knew I was gonna catch Jack."

DETROIT (AP) — Texas-El Paso, a fine collection of athletes from faraway places, won its second successive team title while foreign athletes took nine of the 15 individual championships in the NCAA Indoor Track Meet over the weekend.

And the growing parade of alien talent to American colleges has touched a nerve in U.S. coaching ranks.

It was underscored by the fact that stars from Sweden, Kenya, Australia and Canada accounted for 26 of the 36 points which have Texas-El Paso its runaway triumph.

The dike was opened several years ago when Howard University successfully fought an NCAA ruling against its imported soccer talent.

A federal district court judge in Washington froze the NCAA's alien student rule which requires a foreign athlete to forfeit a year of American college eligibility for each year of post-high school competition abroad.

"Now, we're getting a bunch of semi-pros who have competed three or four years abroad before enrolling in American colleges," asserted Athletic Director Don Canham of Michigan, veteran director of the NCAA meet.

"About 10 per cent of our field this year was top notch foreign talent. My big beef is the age difference, with seasoned foreigners of 25 or 26 competing against our teen-agers. Our kids are graduating at 22 or 23.

"Furthermore, those track scholarships for tailor-made foreign talent are knocking a lot of our good high school kids out of college chances," Canham added.

Foreign stars produced three of Texas El-Paso's four individual titles. They included Sweden's record-breaking shotputter Hans Hoglund, winning for the third straight time; Australian Peter Farmer in the 35-pound weight throw, and Canadian freshman Greg Joy, who leaped 7-2 and barely missed a record-breaking try at 7-4.

"The import trend has raised criticism contending we're not preparing American kids properly for the Olympics," said Banks. "But I think we're actually helping them by showing them the kind of competition they can expect. And they can learn from the foreign kids, too. I know, I have learned and our kids have learned from the foreign-born kids."

Other foreign-born winners in the two-day NCAA meet included:

England's Nick Rose of Western Kentucky in the two-mile.

The meet produced four new records, but the only exceptional one was a 55-4 triple jump by Texas El-Paso's Arnold Grimes, from Akron, Ohio. That was nearly a foot better than the old NCAA mark and less than five inches shy of the world record.

Three-Stroke Champion In Doral Open

Nicklaus' Win Ends Frustrations

MIAMI (AP) — There have been 53 other American victories, along with assorted foreign triumphs in the British Open, the Australian Open and the World Cup.

But No. 54, which tied him for fourth place on the all-time winning list, was particularly pleasing to Jack Nicklaus.

The triumph in the Doral Open Golf Tournament Sunday wiped out the memory of a collapse that cost him the title in the Jackie Gleason Classic just two weeks ago.

It set him up for the Masters.

It wrote an end to a series of frustrations that have plagued the Golden Bear since last fall.

And it came with Johnny Miller in the field.

"I read the papers like everybody else," Nicklaus said when asked his reaction to Miller's challenge to Jack's position as the game's premier performer.

"He's won a lot of tournaments the past year or so. And he'll win a lot more. It's good for me and good for the game to have someone playing very well."

But Nicklaus, who had a final round 68 and won by three strokes with a 276 total, isn't ready to change his schedule or shift his priorities to meet the challenge.

"My schedule is the same as it's been for five or six years," Nicklaus said. "I played three in the west, I've played two in Florida. I'll play one more and go to Augusta with six tournaments.

"That hasn't varied by more than one tournament in several years."

And he turned his attention from Miller to the Masters in Augusta, Ga., April 10-13.

"It's always nice to win," he said. "But it's particularly nice to win this close to Augusta. It's good to get your confidence up. And nothing is better for your confidence than winning."

Bert Yancey and Forrest Fezler, playing behind Nicklaus, had closed to within a single stroke of Jack as he stood on the tee on the 18th hole, a treacherous waterguarded layout that's probably the toughest on the 7,028-yard, par-72 Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

Jack needed to make par four to retain his advantage. He made three.

He had a difficult lie in an old divot for his second shot, but dug it out with a three iron, hooking the ball around the edge of the lake to within 20 feet of the cup.

Yancey and Fezler both bogeyed the hole moments later and tied for second at 279. Yancey had a closing 67, Fezler 71.

Miller came on with a 67 that could have been better and took fourth at 280. He missed five consecutive birdie putts of 8-12 feet in the run down the stretch.

"My caddy and I were tearing our hair," he said. "I just knew I was gonna catch Jack."

It didn't happen.

JACK IS BACK: Jack Nicklaus wears broad smile as he displays big trophy after winning $150,000 Doral Open golf tournament Sunday at Miami. It was the first victory of the year for Nicklaus, who shot 12-under-par 276 to win $30,000 first prize by margin of three strokes over Forrest Fezler and Bert Yancey, who tied for second place. # UTEP Imports Retain Track Crown

DETROIT (AP) — Texas-El Paso, a fine collection of athletes from faraway places, won its second successive team title while foreign athletes took nine of the 15 individual championships in the NCAA Indoor Track Meet over the weekend.

And the growing parade of alien talent to American colleges has touched a nerve in U.S. coaching ranks.

It was underscored by the fact that stars from Sweden, Kenya, Australia and Canada accounted for 26 of the 36 points which have Texas-El Paso its runaway triumph.

The dike was opened several years ago when Howard University successfully fought an NCAA ruling against its imported soccer talent.

A federal district court judge in Washington froze the NCAA's alien student rule which requires a foreign athlete to forfeit a year of American college eligibility for each year of post-high school competition abroad.

"Now, we're getting a bunch of semi-pros who have competed three or four years abroad before enrolling in American colleges," asserted Athletic Director Don Canham of Michigan, veteran director of the NCAA meet.

"About 10 per cent of our field this year was top notch foreign talent. My big beef is the age difference, with seasoned foreigners of 25 or 26 competing against our teen-agers. Our kids are graduating at 22 or 23.

"Furthermore, those track scholarships for tailor-made foreign talent are knocking a lot of our good high school kids out of college chances," Canham added.

Foreign stars produced three of Texas El-Paso's four individual titles. They included Sweden's record-breaking shotputter Hans Hoglund, winning for the third straight time; Australian Peter Farmer in the 35-pound weight throw, and Canadian freshman Greg Joy, who leaped 7-2 and barely missed a record-breaking try at 7-4.

"The import trend has raised criticism contending we're not preparing American kids properly for the Olympics," said Banks. "But I think we're actually helping them by showing them the kind of competition they can expect. And they can learn from the foreign kids, too. I know, I have learned and our kids have learned from the foreign-born kids."

Other foreign-born winners in the two-day NCAA meet included:

England's Nick Rose of Western Kentucky in the two-mile.

The meet produced four new records, but the only exceptional one was a 55-4 triple jump by Texas El-Paso's Arnold Grimes, from Akron, Ohio. That was nearly a foot better than the old NCAA mark and less than five inches shy of the world record.

Bounces Bulls In Playoff Drive

Jabbar Avoids Trade Talk

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Everyone wanted to know whether or not he is really seeking to be traded to Los Angeles or New York or some point in between; Kareem Abdul-Jabbar wanted to talk about Milwaukee.

"This is a big road trip for us, and this got us off to a good start," said the Bucks' superstar center, who scored 32 points and grabbed 15 rebounds in a nationally televised 103-90 triumph over the Chicago Bulls Sunday.

"We have a good chance to make the playoffs, but a lot will depend on this trip," said Abdul-Jabbar, whose team began a six-game road swing and won't return home until March 28. "We are finally playing as a unit and I feel that our offense has got the spark it needs."

The victory put the Bucks less than one percentage point behind the Detroit Pistons in the battle for the wild card playoff berth in the National Basketball Association's Western Conference.

Abdul-Jabbar avoided discussion of the report that he has asked to be traded to Los Angeles or New York. "I don't want to be involved in any problem about being traded right now, when we're fighting to make the playoffs," he said.

"I'm keeping quiet about the entire subject," Costello saidlafter shooting one-for-nine in the first period, Abdul-Jabbar scored 12 points in the second quarter and 10 more in the third as the Bucks surged out to a 69-47 lead.

Bob Dandridge, who hit on four straight baskets as Milwaukee outscored Chicago 16-4 in a five-minute flurry, added 24 points.

Bob Love had 28 points for Chicago.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, the Boston Celtics beat the Houston Rockets 99-94, the Atlanta Hawks edged the Phoenix Suns 117-114, the Seattle SuperSonics nipped the New York Knicks 97-94, the Portland Trail Blazers beat the Buffalo Braves 102-95, the Cleveland Cavaliers defeated the New Orleans Jazz 113-111 and the Los Angeles Lakers topped the Golden State Warriors 111-95.

Dave Cowens set up John Havlicek for a layup and sank a basket and a free throw himself in the last two minutes to clinch Boston's triumph.

Tom Van Arsdale scored 27 points to lead Atlanta.

Fred Brown poured in 37 points to spark Seattle.

Sidney Wicks scored 27 points and Geoff Petrie had 21 points and a career-high 14 assists for Portland.

Doubtful Starters Parent, Anderson NHL Standout

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston's Earl Anderson and Philadelphia's Bernie Parent weren't expected to play Sunday. They not only played, but they starred...Anderson on offense and Parent on defense.

Anderson, a rookie, scored a goal and added two assists as the Bruins beat the St. Louis Blues 7-2. Flyers' goalie Parent, a doubtful starter until game time, recorded his 11th shutout of the season by blanking the Los Angeles Kings 3-0.

Anderson, obtained in a trade from Detroit last month, was pressed into action after Terry O'Reilly aggravated an old ankle sprain Saturday night.

"It's just good to play," he said. "I expected to be on the bench a lot when I got here. The trade came as a surprise to me. It really surprised me when I heard it was Boston. I didn't really know why Boston would be looking for a right wing. They're strong there."

Anderson flipped a backhand shot past goalie John Davidson in the second period for his first goal as a Bruin. He also assisted on Carol Vadnais' goahead score earlier in the period and drew another ssist on Don Marcotte's goal in the final session.

Hank Nowak, who came from Detroit in the same trade, and Johnny Bucyk also had goals for Boston while Bobby Orr, with a goal and an assist, and Phil Esposito, with a goal and two assists, continued their duel for the league scoring honors. Orr has 124 points, Esposito 120.

Elsewhere in the National Hockey League, the Vancouver Canucks edged the Chicago Black Hawks 4-3, the Buffalo Sabres thrashed the Toronto Maple Leafs 11-3, the Pittsburgh Penguins whipped the Kansas City Scouts 6-3 and the Minnesota North Stars nipped the Detroit Red Wings 4-3.

Rick Martin and Gilbert Perreault scored three goals apiece while Rick Dudley added two goals and Fred Stanfield, Don Luce and Peter McNab got one each.

'No-Hit' Tag Doesn't Fit

Humphrey Gets Big Hit, But Tigers Lose

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Terry Humphrey can't hit, the baseball people say. He's an excellent defensive catcher but he'll never be a hitter.

As a matter of fact, Detroit Tiger Manager Ralph Houk was saying that very thing prior to Sunday's exhibition game in Tampa against the Cincinnati Reds.

Then, there he was, Terry Humphrey up to bat in the ninth inning with the bases loaded, two outs and Detroit trailing 4-3. Did he strike out? Foul out? Pop out?

No! Humphrey lashed a two-run double to left to give the Tigers a 5-4 lead. But Cincinnati pushed a run across in the bottom of the inning off rookie Tom Makowski and then another off him in the 10th to win 6-5.

"I've been reading that a couple years, but I don't feel like that's the case," newcomer Humphrey said of his good glove-no stick tag.

Later, Houk conceded that, "maybe he could hit if he played regularly, but he's never been known as a hitter."

Unfortunately for Humphrey, he probably still won't be playing regularly, so maybe he'll never know if he can hit. He stands to be the No. 1 replacement for Bill Freehan, whom Houk intends to rest more often this season.

Freehan has had problems throwing to second base in recent years. Sunday Humphrey fired a perfect strike to second in the ninth inning to nail Tom Spencer on a steal attempt.

The 25-year-old Humphrey, a righthanded hitter from Chickasaha, Okla., talks and looks a little like Dennis Weaver, TV's McCloud.

He was acquired along with relief pitcher Tom Walker from Montreal for pitcher Woodie Fryman.

Does he think his big hit against the Reds will influence Houk in any way?

"Where it would help is late in a game when I'm up with men on base. I won't have to keep looking back to the bat rack to see if someone was going to pinch hit," the 6-foot-3, 190-pounder said.

A triple by Ron LeFlore and a double by Gary Sutherland gave Detroit a run in the opening inning. Cincinnati, now with a 5-4 record, rallied for three runs in the third off Dave Lemanczyk; two on a double by Johnny Bench.

"Lemanzcyk was wild," Houk said. "He couldn't move the ball. He pitched five innings in four."

The Tigers, now 3-8, scored twice in the fourth, once on a wild pitch and once on a single by rookie Art James. Rookie Dave Revering's solo homer in the seventh off Walker gave the Reds a 4-3 lead.

Detroit was to take on Montreal today at Daytona Beach.

Bounces Bulls In Playoff Drive

Jabbar Avoids Trade Talk

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Everyone wanted to know whether or not he is really seeking to be traded to Los Angeles or New York or some point in between; Kareem Abdul-Jabbar wanted to talk about Milwaukee.

"This is a big road trip for us, and this got us off to a good start," said the Bucks' superstar center, who scored 32 points and grabbed 15 rebounds in a nationally televised 103-90 triumph over the Chicago Bulls Sunday.

"We have a good chance to make the playoffs, but a lot will depend on this trip," said Abdul-Jabbar, whose team began a six-game road swing and won't return home until March 28. "We are finally playing as a unit and I feel that our offense has got the spark it needs."

The victory put the Bucks less than one percentage point behind the Detroit Pistons in the battle for the wild card playoff berth in the National Basketball Association's Western Conference.

Abdul-Jabbar avoided discussion of the report that he has asked to be traded to Los Angeles or New York. "I don't want to be involved in any problem about being traded right now, when we're fighting to make the playoffs," he said.

"I'm keeping quiet about the entire subject," Costello saidlafter shooting one-for-nine in the first period. Abdul-Jabbar scored 12 points in the second quarter and 10 more in the third as the Bucks surged out to a 69-47 lead.

Bob Dandridge, who hit on four straight baskets as Milwaukee outscored Chicago 16-4 in a five-minute flurry, added 24 points.

Bob Love had 28 points for Chicago.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, the Boston Celtics beat the Houston Rockets 99-94, the Atlanta Hawks edged the Phoenix Suns 117-114, the Seattle SuperSonics nipped the New York Knicks 97-94, the Portland Trail Blazers beat the Buffalo Braves 102-95, the Cleveland Cavaliers defeated the New Orleans Jazz 113-111 and the Los Angeles Lakers topped the Golden State Warriors 111-95.

Dave Cowens set up John Havlicek for a layup and sank a basket and a free throw himself in the last two minutes to clinch Boston's triumph.

Tom Van Arsdale scored 27 points to lead Atlanta.

Fred Brown poured in 37 points to spark Seattle.

Sidney Wicks scored 27 points and Geoff Petrie had 21 points and a career-high 14 assists for Portland.

Doubtful Starters Parent, Anderson NHL Standout

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston's Earl Anderson and Philadelphia's Bernie Parent weren't expected to play Sunday. They not only played, but they starred...Anderson on offense and Parent on defense.

Anderson, a rookie, scored a goal and added two assists as the Bruins beat the St. Louis Blues 7-2. Flyers' goalie Parent, a doubtful starter until game time, recorded his 11th shutout of the season by blanking the Los Angeles Kings 3-0.

Anderson, obtained in a trade from Detroit last month, was pressed into action after Terry O'Reilly aggravated an old ankle sprain Saturday night.

"It's just good to play," he said. "I expected to be on the bench a lot when I got here. The trade came as a surprise to me. It really surprised me when I heard it was Boston. I didn't really know why Boston would be looking for a right wing. They're strong there."

Anderson flipped a backhand shot past goalie John Davidson in the second period for his first goal as a Bruin. He also assisted on Carol Vadnais' goahead score earlier in the period and drew another ssist on Don Marcotte's goal in the final session.

Hank Nowak, who came from Detroit in the same trade, and Johnny Bucyk also had goals for Boston while Bobby Orr, with a goal and an assist, and Phil Esposito, with a goal and two assists, continued their duel for the league scoring honors. Orr has 124 points, Esposito 120.

Elsewhere in the National Hockey League, the Vancouver Canucks edged the Chicago Black Hawks 4-3, the Buffalo Sabres thrashed the Toronto Maple Leafs 11-3, the Pittsburgh Penguins whipped the Kansas City Scouts 6-3 and the Minnesota North Stars nipped the Detroit Red Wings 4-3.

Rick Martin and Gilbert Perreault scored three goals apiece while Rick Dudley added two goals and Fred Stanfield, Don Luce and Peter McNab got one each.

Phillies' McGraw Faces Surgery

Bad Day For Tug, Scarce

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a bad day for Mac Scarce, who the New York Mets hope will do for their bullpen what Tug McGraw didn't. It was a worse day for Tug McGraw, who the Philadelphia Phillies hope will do for their bullpen what Mac Scarce didn't.

While Scarce was giving a textbook demonstration of how not to pitch, McGraw was flying from the Phillies' training camp to Philadelphia, where he likely will undergo mid-week surgery to remove a walnut-sized lump on his back.

Dr. Phillip Marone, the team physician, said a biopsy will be taken, but added: "It is my opinion he does not have cancer." He described the surgery as "not major," adding, "One small muscle will have to be cut to get to the trouble spot, but there should be no major muscle involvement in the operation."

The problem was described as "a mass on the seventh rib right below the scapula, which most likely is an adventitious bursal reaction with nerve entrapment syndrome." Translated, it means it hurts when McGraw pitches.

"It didn't bother him all winter because of inactivity, but once he began throwing again down here the mass came back again," Dr. Marone said. "It's the same thing he's had. Matter of fact, Tug feels he's had it since his high school athletic days."

He estimated McGraw would be sidelined about five weeks.

Meanwhile, Paul Owens, the Phillies' director of player personnel, cleared the Mets of any hanky-panky in the Dec. 3 swap which involved six players.

"I'm not one bit concerned, and I'd like to make that clear," Owens said. "Joe McDonald (the Mets' general manager) told me Tug was sound and I'll take his word any time. Tug also said he was sound, and he was until he began throwing this spring."

However, the ancient lump may have contributed to McGraw's off-year in 1974, when the one-time relief ace slipped to a 6-11 record and 4.15 earned run average.

The Phils did receive some good pitching news Sunday when Steve Carlton, Dick Ruthven and Joe Hoerner stifled the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 on eight hits.

Scarce, 3-8 with a 5.01 ERA for the '74 Phillies, didn't do much to ease the Mets' bullpen woes, although the only lump that bothered him was the pitching mound. In 1 2-3 innings he issued six walks, wildpitched two runs home and served up a two-run homer to Buddy Bradford.

Sam McDowell, a non-roster pitcher trying to make a comeback with Pittsburgh, fired three shutout innings but the Pirates bowed 12-3 to the New York Yankees, who released the 32-year-old lefty following a dismal 1974 campaign. Alex Johnson homered for the Yanks.

Elsewhere, the red-hot Montreal Expos rallied for three runs in the eighth inning and defeated a split Houston squad 3-2 for their seventh consecutive triumph. Montreal's Dave McNally made his spring debut and pitched three innings, allowing one unearned run. Geoff Zahn pitched four scoreless innings as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Astros' other squad 7-3.

Don Baylor homered twice as the Baltimore Orioles raked Atlanta's Phil Niekro for 12 hits and all their runs in four innings and beat the Braves 8-5. Two-run homers by Frank White, John Mayberry and Hal McRae powered the Kansas City Royals over the Texas Rangers 7-5.

Merv Rettenmund hustled a routine 10th-inning single into a double and scored on Joel Youngblood's single, enabling the Cincinnati Reds to edge the Detroit Tigers 6-5. Rookie Lyman Bostock's three hits helped the Minnesota Twins turn back the Boston Red Sox 5-1.

Morris Nettles' three singles helped a split California squad defeat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2 but Joe Rudi and Gene Tenace belted consecutive home runs in the second inning as the Oakland A's overpowered the rest of the Angels 13-4. Chris Speier poled San Francisco's first spring homer as the Giants trimmed the Chicago Cubs 6-1.

Finally, five pitchers, including Sonny Siebert, allowed five hits in hurling the San Diego Padres past the Cleveland Indians 4-2 in a game marked by a dispute between Frank Robinson, Cleveland's first-year manager, and umpire Paul Maltby, who is being looked at in spring training.

The Indians' dugout, including Robinson, complained during the contest about Maltby's alleged inconsistency. Maltby shouted back and at one point charged the dugout, nearly ordering it cleared.

"I told him the only way some of those pitches could be strikes was if we were in a bowling alley," Robinson said.

Connors Claims Winning's Tough

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jimmy Connors hasn't lost a tennis match in almost three months but he says it's getting tougher to win all the time.

"I have to play 110 per cent every time because my opponent is always up for the match and playing 105 per cent," said Connors Sunday after beating Czechoslovakia's Jan Kodes in the finals of an Independent Players Association tournament in Hampton, Va.

"It's not fair for people to think I should never lose."

Connors, who hasn't dropped a match since losing to Australian star John Newcombe New Year's Day, started poorly against Kodes, dropping the first set 3-6. But he was in command the rest of the way and ran out the match, 6-3, 6-0.

"I'm starting out a little slow these days," said Connors. "Actually, that's good for me. I'm getting more competition."

Connors collected $10,000 for the victory to boost his earnings for the season to nearly $250,000. It was the third straight year he has won the Hampton event.

On the World Championship Tennis circuit, unseeded Mark Cox, a 31-year-old journeyman from England, upset third-seeded Dick Stockton to take the Red group tournament in Landover, Md. Cox won the match, 6-2, 7-6.

It was Cox' first victory in four starts against the 24-year-old American and earned him top money of $12,000. Cox earlier dumped seeded players Stan Smith, John Alexander and Paul Gerken to reach the finals.

In Munich, top-seeded Arthur Ashe topped Sweden's Bjorn Borg, 6-4, 7-6 to win a Green group tournament. Ashe picked up $12,000 for his efforts. And in Sao Paulo, Brazil, Australian ace Rod Laver took 54 minutes to down Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico, 6-4, 6-4, in the finals of a Blue group event.

Saturday in Houston, Chris Evert polished off Margaret Court, 6-3, 6-2, in the finals of the $75,000 women's tennis tournament. It was her third tournament triumph of the year.

Phillies' McGraw Faces Surgery

Versions Differ On Charges In 'Slasher' Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police Chief Ed Davis and Dist. Atty. Joseph P. Busch scheduled a news conference today in connection with the Skid Row Slasher murders. But Davis and Busch gave different versions of what would be said at the news conference.

Davis said Sunday that an announcement would be made about charges to be filed in the case against Vaughn Greenwood, 31, of South Los Angeles, who is currently in police custody.

TO BE CHARGED: Los Angeles Police Chief Ed Davis said Sunday Vaughn Greenwood, 31, (above) in jail on assault charge since Feb. 3, would be charged in connection with Skid Row Slasher case. Davis did not say what charge would be. (AP Wirephoto)

However, Busch said that "to say that anyone is going to be charged in this case is premature."

Greenwood is being held in lieu of $50,000 bail and is to be arraigned Friday on five counts of burglary and three counts of assault with a deadly weapon. The charges stem from a Feb. 2 hatchet attack on two Hollywood men.

The victims, William Graham, 36, and Kenneth Ricker, 22, suffered severe cuts, but both are recuperating, police said.

Davis, in a taped interview with KNXT-TV Sunday, said Greenwood would be charged in the Slasher case, and he told the Los Angeles Times: "I am convinced that we have the right suspect and we will go to the district attorney to seek a complaint within a week or two."

There have been no Slasher murders since Greenwood's arrest Feb. 3.

Between Dec. 1 and Jan. 31, nine men, seven of them in the city's Skid Row section, were killed in a similar manner. All of the victim's throats were slashed.

Police have drawn a composite sketch of the Slasher, depicting him as a blond man with stringy hair. However, Greenwood is black and bears no resemblance to the sketch.

Davis declined to say what charges would be brought against Greenwood. Busch said he understood that the news conference was called to announce "that there is an ongoing investigation and a possible suspect."

DIM VIEW: Of chances for welfare reform and national health insurance legislation this year is taken by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. The Texas Democrat predicts, however, that Congress will extend the federal revenue sharing program.

LMC CEREMONY FRIDAY

38 Police Recruits Graduating

Thirty-eight police recruits from 22 Michigan law enforcement agencies will be graduated Friday from the Lake Michigan college Base Police Recruit School in the eighth such ceremony at LMC since certified recruit training became mandatory in Michigan in 1971.

Keynote speaker at the 3 p.m. ceremony will be Det. Jon Nichols of the Berrien county sheriff's department. Deputy Fred Schaub will serve as master of ceremonies at the graduation exercises which will be held in the Black theater lecture hall, room D-201/D-112, at the LMC Napier Avenue campus.

A news conference with the recruits and instructors is scheduled for 2 p.m.

"Recruit training is mandatory not only by law but by logic as well. Today's laws are so complex and police work so technical that recruits must receive formal training if they are to become efficient police officers," said Lt. Michael Devine, director of law enforcement training programs at the college.

Tri-county police chiefs and sheriffs also have been invited.

After graudation, a social hour will be held at the Holiday Inn, 100 Main street, St. Joseph, at 6:30 p.m., with a 7:30 p.m. dinner in honor of the graduating recruits.

Miss Hayward Funeral Sunday

CARROLLTON, Ga. (AP) — Some 500 people gathered for a simple ceremony in a tiny church she helped found to mourn Academy Award-winning actress Susan Hayward.

The flame-haired actress was buried Sunday beside her second husband, Carrollton businessman and attorney F. Eaton Chalkley, among the red clay hills where they lived for nine years.

BROADCASTER DIES

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Carlton KaDell, 70, a prominent broadcast announcer in Chicago and Hollywood for 40 years, died of a heart attack Friday. KaDell was announcer during the golden age of radio for such shows as Amos and Andy, Big Town, Mayor of the Town, the Jack Carson Show and the Edgar Bergen Show.

NEW YORK CITY

Physicians Strike Sixteen Hospitals

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 3,000 physicians struck 16 voluntary and municipal hospitals today after round-the-clock negotiations failed to resolve a dispute over the doctors' working hours. It was the first major strike by doctors in the city's history.

Dr. John Holloman, president of the city's Health and Hospitals Corporation, said the city would not immediately seek a court injunction against the strike which began at 7 a.m. He said he wanted to seek the effects of the strike.

The hospitals and their related facilities have a total 14,000 beds and provide outpatient services to some 10,000 clinic and emergency room patients.

To minimize the impact of the strike, hospitals were making emergency plans, including greater use of attending physicians and medical faculty members, and to hire more doctors who normally are employed only a few hours a week. Hospital spokesmen said elective surgery would be postponed for the duration of the strike.

The Committee of Interns and Residents — CIR — has been demanding that doctors be required to work no more than 80 hours a week and 15 hours overtime in the 11 voluntary and five city hospitals involved in the dispute. Spokesmen say interns and residents now work as many as 110 hours a week and 56 hours at a time.

The hospitals contend that although the interns and doctors often work long hours, they usually find time to get proper sleep. The hospitals also contend that such long hours are part of the medical profession.

At 2 a.m. today the League of Voluntary Hospitals, representing the institutions involved, proposed that committees with equal numbers of adminstration spokesmen and doctors be set up at each hospital to plan work schedules.

Dr. Richard Knutson, president of the CIR, said the proposal had "potential" but that the league was "still playing games after 50 consecutive hours of talks" at the Biltmore Hotel in mid-Manhattan.

Holloman said at least one hospital, Elmhurst in Queens, has requested patient tranfers and started discharging half its 850 patients Saturday.

penetrator, then it should be in the form of improving the existing highway system between I-94 and downtown St. Joseph, namely, U.S. Highway 33. Our reasons supporting our opinion are as follows:

1. Need — Currently, there is no need because our local highways are not even approaching a crowded condition because of I-94 traffic.

2. Ecology — The proposed penetrator will do irreparable harm by greatly affecting one of the few areas left in the township that has high ecological value.

3. Public opinion — While obviously we cannot speak for overall public opinion, we can state unequivocally that the great majority of people that we have spoken with are against the proposed penetrator.

4. Long range plan — We can only conclude there appears to be a lack of long range planning.

5. Cost — Stated simply, the proposed penetrator represents a waste of tax dollars at a time when both state and Federal revenues are greatly exceeded by expenditures.

We respectfully request that you become personally involved in all of the aspects encompassing the proposed penetrator. We further hope we will have your support and that you will take whatever appropriate action is necessary. We, of course, would greatly appreciate your reply.

Bombers Strike Across Border

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnamese bombers struck across the Cambodian border today attempting to knock out North Vietnamese artillery and troops threatening the South Vietnamese provincial capital of Tay Ninh City, field reports said.

Associated Press correspondent Denis D. Gray reported from near the Cambodian border about 40 miles west of Saigon that he saw heavy smoke from bombs dropped by South Vietnamese warplanes rise into the sky.

LMC CEREMONY FRIDAY

38 Police Recruits Graduating

Thirty-eight police recruits from 22 Michigan law enforcement agencies will be graduated Friday from the Lake Michigan college Base Police Recruit School in the eighth such ceremony at LMC since certified recruit training became mandatory in Michigan in 1971.

Keynote speaker at the 3 p.m. ceremony will be Det. Jon Nichols of the Berrien county sheriff's department. Deputy Fred Schaub will serve as master of ceremonies at the graduation exercises which will be held in the Black theater lecture hall, room D-201/D-112, at the LMC Napier Avenue campus.

A news conference with the recruits and instructors is scheduled for 2 p.m.

"Recruit training is mandatory not only by law but by logic as well. Today's laws are so complex and police work so technical that recruits must receive formal training if they are to become efficient police officers," said Lt. Michael Devine, director of law enforcement training programs at the college.

Physicians Strike Sixteen Hospitals

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 3,000 physicians struck 16 voluntary and municipal hospitals today after round-the-clock negotiations failed to resolve a dispute over the doctors' working hours. It was the first major strike by doctors in the city's history.

Dr. John Holloman, president of the city's Health and Hospitals Corporation, said the city would not immediately seek a court injunction against the strike which began at 7 a.m. He said he wanted to seek the effects of the strike.

The hospitals and their related facilities have a total 14,000 beds and provide outpatient services to some 10,000 clinic and emergency room patients.

To minimize the impact of the strike, hospitals were making emergency plans, including greater use of attending physicians and medical faculty members, and to hire more doctors who normally are employed only a few hours a week. Hospital spokesmen said elective surgery would be postponed for the duration of the strike.

The Committee of Interns and Residents — CIR — has been demanding that doctors be required to work no more than 80 hours a week and 15 hours overtime in the 11 voluntary and five city hospitals involved in the dispute. Spokesmen say interns and residents now work as many as 110 hours a week and 56 hours at a time.

The hospitals contend that although the interns and doctors often work long hours, they usually find time to get proper sleep. The hospitals also contend that such long hours are part of the medical profession.

At 2 a.m. today the League of Voluntary Hospitals, representing the institutions involved, proposed that committees with equal numbers of adminstration spokesmen and doctors be set up at each hospital to plan work schedules.

Dr. Richard Knutson, president of the CIR, said the proposal had "potential" but that the league was "still playing games after 50 consecutive hours of talks" at the Biltmore Hotel in mid-Manhattan.

Holloman said at least one hospital, Elmhurst in Queens, has requested patient tranfers and started discharging half its 850 patients Saturday.

penetrator, then it should be in the form of improving the existing highway system between I-94 and downtown St. Joseph, namely, U.S. Highway 33. Our reasons supporting our opinion are as follows:

1. Need — Currently, there is no need because our local highways are not even approaching a crowded condition because of I-94 traffic.

2. Ecology — The proposed penetrator will do irreparable harm by greatly affecting one of the few areas left in the township that has high ecological value.

3. Public opinion — While obviously we cannot speak for overall public opinion, we can state unequivocally that the great majority of people that we have spoken with are against the proposed penetrator.

4. Long range plan — We can only conclude there appears to be a lack of long range planning.

5. Cost — Stated simply, the proposed penetrator represents a waste of tax dollars at a time when both state and Federal revenues are greatly exceeded by expenditures.

We respectfully request that you become personally involved in all of the aspects encompassing the proposed penetrator. We further hope we will have your support and that you will take whatever appropriate action is necessary. We, of course, would greatly appreciate your reply.

Bombers Strike Across Border

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnamese bombers struck across the Cambodian border today attempting to knock out North Vietnamese artillery and troops threatening the South Vietnamese provincial capital of Tay Ninh City, field reports said.

Associated Press correspondent Denis D. Gray reported from near the Cambodian border about 40 miles west of Saigon that he saw heavy smoke from bombs dropped by South Vietnamese warplanes rise into the sky.

New Orleans Bans Crypt Burials

Cities Of The Dead Really Dead

Burials have been forbidden in 2,000 oven-shaped tombs in two of New Orleans' most ancient cemeteries, once called the Cities of the Dead. Families whose ancestors are buried in the narrow, above-ground crypts have threatened law suits in anger.

"Burials are no longer made in the vaults because of their condition," said the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Raymond Wegmann, director of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese Cemeteries. "The Department of Health will not permit it."

Laid out 150 years ago, St. Louis Cemetery I and St. Louis Cemetery II have suffered the ravages of time and weather.

Plaster patina has fallen away from most of the tombs, revealing red brick underneath. Vines, weeds and, in some cases, even trees have taken root in cracks. Insects and small lizards scurry up the sides seeking entrance. Caskets, even skeletons, are exposed to the sun.

The Msgr. Wegmann estimates it would cost $1 million to repair the vaults at St. Louis II, which in many cases have crumbled into one another, and an additional $2 million to renovate the entire cemetery. There is talk of demolishing the cemetery instead.

Buddy Anspacher, who at 79 has been a custodian at St. Louis Cemetery I for 49 years, says it would cost almost $2,000 to repair the average tomb.

Where is the money to come from? The archdiocese quotes court opinions saying families and not the Church must maintain the vaults. The Msgr. Wegmann says the Church has spent years trying to trace families owning crypts.

It's a question of priorities, he says, noting it would be unfair to divert limited resources from the living. A preservation fund so far has collected $30,000.

Despite the decay, the cemeteries remain a top attraction to tourists used to rolling green lawns and white crosses. They are intrigued by the haphazard arrangement of tombs, many two and three stories high, and look with amazement at marble plates showing that the bones of entire families are mingled in a single vault.

This burial economy is simply explained: Since New Orleans is below sea level, coffins used to pop to the surface before a pumping system was developed to dry out the subsoil. Burials were above ground of necessity and scarce space led families to simply move remains to the rear to make one vault last for generations.

The other tourist draw is what's supposedly inside the tombs — the bones of pirates, rogues and other New Orleans characters, among them Marie Laveau, one of the city's most notorious voodoo queens.

Marie's remains are reputedly in a tomb marked with red Xs chalked there for good luck. She's so popular, Anspacher said, that the most frequently asked question is: "Where is Marie Laveau?"

His answer: "I don't know. She's dead."

Discussions Of Assassinations Admitted By CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William Colby has acknowledged there were discussions in the agency about assassinating foreign leaders but he denied that any such actions ever were carried out, says Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

Symington, a member of a CIA "watchdog" subcommittee in the Senate, said he called Colby a few weeks ago and asked whether the CIA ever was involved in an assassination plot.

"... He reminded me of a visit he paid when I was acting chairman of the Armed Services Committee ... in which he did say there had been some discussion about it, but that it had not actually been done," Symington said on ABC-TV "Issues and Answers" program Sunday.

Meanwhile, informed sources said the Rockefeller Commission is talking with White House officials about the possibility of expanding the panel's investigation of the CIA to include allegations of CIA involvement in plots to assassinate foreign leaders.

"Nothing has been decided," one White House official said Sunday. But he acknowledged that discussions now under way "may result in expanding the Rockefeller Commission investigation."

Knowledgeable sources said President Ford is troubled by news accounts linking the CIA to several assassination plots during the past 20 years. They indicated Ford sees the Rockefeller commission as one way to investigate the allegations.

Symington said he could not elaborate on Colby's reference to CIA discussions of assassination plots. He also said he has no knowledge of any liaison between the Mafia and the CIA.

Two aides to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy said last week the senator once blocked a CIA plan to enlist Mafia figures to assassinate Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Symington also complained that the congressional "watchdog" committee over the CIA is not doing its job.

"The trouble about the watchdog committee was it didn't watch. For example, it didn't meet once in the year 1971," he said.

In another intelligence development, columnist Jack Anderson reported that a high Soviet intelligence officer has told the CIA that Soviet secret police had a contingency plan to kill Richard F. Nixon if he had been elected President in 1960.

Anderson said the Nixon murder plot was described to the CIA by Anatol Golytsyn, a former KGB major who defected to the United States from his post in Helsinki, Finland, in the early 1960s.

Golytsyn attributed the plan to the late Nikita Khrushchev, Anderson said. It was developed at a time when Nixon had a reputation as a staunch anticommunist.

Red Noose Tightens In South Viet

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — North Vietnamese forces pulled the noose tighter on South Vietnam's central highlands today, cutting a fourth highway into the region and leaving only one road open, the Saigon command said.

The second week of the North Vietnamese drive against the area ended with an attack on Dinh Quan, a district town 50 miles northeast of Saigon, that cut Highway 20 to Dalat.

Government officers also conceded that the North Vietnamese had captured virtually all of Ban Me Thuot, the capital of Darlac province, in the highlands. They said a few hundred government troops remain in the devastated city, isolated but in radio contact with government forces.

Knife Slayings Increase

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit-area law enforcement authorities reportedly are becoming more concerned about the growing number of assaults and slayings involving knives. In Detroit last year, police say knives accounted for 133 slayings. In suburban Westland, more than 50 persons were assaulted with knives. In Livonia, the knife victims numbered at least 40. While police say handguns are the most widely publicized weapons for crime, knives probably are the most easily obtained of all weapons. Law enforcement officials concede that present laws governing sale and possession of knives are virtually meaningless.

Robbery Suspects Arraigned

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Two men were to be arraigned today following their arrest by the FBI in connection with holdups of two Lansing branches of Michigan National Bank on Jan. 17 and Feb. 25. An FBI spokesman said Myron Lamar Turner, 21, of Lansing was arrested Saturday and charged with with two counts each of conspiracy to commit bank robbery and receiving stolen proceeds. He was to be arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Stephen Carr in Grand Rapids. Rasheed Haqq, 25, also known as Aaron Taylor, was arrested in Detroit Saturday and charged with two counts of armed robbery, the FBI said.

Plaza To Help Business

WARREN, Mich. (AP) — The Democratic Party State Central Committee has agreed to have the party pick up the $102,000 deb remaining from Sander Levin's unsuccessful bid for governor. Levin lost to Republican incumbent William Milliken by more than 100,000 votes last November. Democratic Treasurer Stuart Hertzberg, calling the race "the most expensive in party history," said Levin spent nearly $725,000.

Dems Pick Up Levin Tab

DETROIT (AP) — The Motor City's hotel managers say they hope the opening of the 70-story, 1,400-room Detroit Plaza Hotel will spur business for all. The Plaza, set to open in February 1977, is the center-piece of the 33-acre riverfront Renaissance Center project. A part of the Western International hotel chain, it will include extensive convention facillities. "We're looking for a windfall from the Plaza," says Robert Tedesco, controller of the Pontchartrain Hotel. "Already the Plaza has sold tens of thousands of rooms. We're going to benefit from this." Tedesco adds, however, that there is some chance the opening of the plaza will simply hasten the demise of two of the city's stately and somewhat older hotels.

Farmer's Week Opening

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University's 60th annual Farmer's Week opens today, featuring displays of farm equipment and honoring top agricultural producers. Farmers Week is the only university program of its type in the nation, with the biggest display of agricultural equipment in Michigan, according to the show's producers.

On State Association Board

Ralph Hornbeck of Fairplain, a member of the Berrien County Road commission, was elected to the board of directors of the Michigan County Road association at its recent annual meeting in Grand Rapids. He was named to a three-year term. Hornbeck is currently serving a five-year term on the county road commission and was engineer-manager of the Berrien road department from 1951 to 1956. He retired several years ago from the former Benton Harbor Abstract & Title company.

Bus Ridership Is Up

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Local bus ridership in Michigan was up 11.4 per cent in 1974, the largest single-year gain since the mid-1940s, according to the state Highway Commission Chairman E. V. Erickson said ridership, which topped 109 million passengers, was boosted by state financial assistance. He said the state funds reversed the annual decline in bus ridership. "With this assistance, public transportation systems were able for the first time to break the cycle of increasing fares to make improvements, watching ridership decline, and ending up with a lower level of service," he said. "State operating aid and grants for new buses and other equipment allowed systems to expand and upgrade service, while lowering their fares in many cases."

Wants Solar Energy Used

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Some state building projects should incorporate solar energy systems for heat, says state Rep. David Bonior, D-Mount Clemens. He introduced one bill to require solar energy systems as an energy conservation measure. It details a schedule for increasing the use of solar energy to about 50 per cent of the state's construction. Another bill introduced by Bonior entitles a homeowner to a credit against his state income tax for improvements to his home for purposes of saving energy. A taxpayer could receive 25 per cent of actual costs for insulation of ceilings, insulation of walls, and installation of storm doors and windows, not to exceed $25. For installation of exterior siding, 25 per cent of actual costs would be credited, not to exceed $50.

Gasoline Price Posting

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A pair of bills to regulate posting of prices by gasoline stations has been introduced by state Rep. Sal Rocca, D-Sterling Heights. The first would make posting mandatory in a conspicuous place that can be easily seen by passing motorists. The second bill would not require posting. However, if stations decided to post, they would also have to show the grade of gas offered at that price in letters at least half the size of the price. Rocca said he introduced the second bill in recognition the first one could run into strong opposition.

'Ham' Should Be Taboo For 'We'll Get By' Cast

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A delayed report: CBS' "We'll Get By" may get by if most of its cast is persuaded that overacting undermines a comedy series. The scripts look fair and the show has a nice feel to it.

The series, created by Alan "M-A-S-H" Alda, concerns events in the suburban New Jersey home of George Platt, a fortyish sales engineer with one wife, two sons and a teen-aged daughter.

Its scheduled national premiere Friday night proved a good showcase for the talents of broadcast actor Paul Sorvino, who plays Platt, and Mitzi Hoag, cast as his wife.

But the story, a yarn involving Old Dad's curiosity about the new boyfriend of his daughter, lost punch because the daughter — Devon Scott — the older son — Jerry Houser — and the preteen boy — Willie Aames — came off more as aspiring little theater thespians than believeable members of a TV family. They tended to ham it up.

Like all fathers, Platt was concerned about the beau, mainly because he'd never met him. He suggested that his daughter do some instant introducing and bring the lad to the picnic — or else.

She departs on a date with the lad. Late that night, as Mom and Pop wait up for her, Pop hears a car pulling up. He carries out his threat to stomp out and see the guy squiring about his daughter.

He sheepishly returns, having stopped a police car. His wife asks what he said to the car. Replies he: "I said, 'Good evening, officer. I thought you were my daughter.'"

He finally gets to meet the boyfriend — Adam Arkin — and, after some mildly amusing family banter, learns they have a common interest in fishing. And a nice chat is had by all.

At the finale, beau and girl stand on the front porch, he conceding it was a good idea to meet her parents face to face.

"Besides, if they get to know and trust me, we can get away with murder," he reasons.

The series is sort of unique for TV because it doesn't try to ges away with murder, gunfire, car chases, racial slurs and all that. It's a quiet show about normalcy, mundane as that may be.

But if it doesn't post a "no hamming" sign for its younger actors, I fear "We'll Get By" will get a normal cancellation notice soon.

Knife Slayings Increase

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit-area law enforcement authorities reportedly are becoming more concerned about the growing number of assaults and slayings involving knives. In Detroit last year, police say knives accounted for 133 slayings. In suburban Westland, more than 50 persons were assaulted with knives. In Livonia, the knife victims numbered at least 40. While police say handguns are the most widely publicized weapons for crime, knives probably are the most easily obtained of all weapons. Law enforcement officials concede that present laws governing sale and possession of knives are virtually meaningless.

Robbery Suspects Arraigned

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Two men were to be arraigned today following their arrest by the FBI in connection with holdups of two Lansing branches of Michigan National Bank on Jan. 17 and Feb. 25. An FBI spokesman said Myron Lamar Turner, 21, of Lansing was arrested Saturday and charged with with two counts each of conspiracy to commit bank robbery and receiving stolen proceeds. He was to be arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Stephen Carr in Grand Rapids. Rasheed Haqq, 25, also known as Aaron Taylor, was arrested in Detroit Saturday and charged with two counts of armed robbery, the FBI said.

Plaza To Help Business

WARREN, Mich. (AP) — The Democratic Party State Central Committee has agreed to have the party pick up the $102,000 deb remaining from Sander Levin's unsuccessful bid for governor. Levin lost to Republican incumbent William Milliken by more than 100,000 votes last November. Democratic Treasurer Stuart Hertzberg, calling the race "the most expensive in party history," said Levin spent nearly $725,000.

Dems Pick Up Levin Tab

DETROIT (AP) — The Motor City's hotel managers say they hope the opening of the 70-story, 1,400-room Detroit Plaza Hotel will spur business for all. The Plaza, set to open in February 1977, is the center-piece of the 33-acre riverfront Renaissance Center project. A part of the Western International hotel chain, it will include extensive convention facilities. "We're looking for a windfall from the Plaza," says Robert Tedesco, controller of the Pontchartrain Hotel. "Already the Plaza has sold tens of thousands of rooms. We're going to benefit from this." Tedesco adds, however, that there is some chance the opening of the plaza will simply hasten the demise of two of the city's stately and somewhat older hotels.

Farmer's Week Opening

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University's 60th annual Farmer's Week opens today, featuring displays of farm equipment and honoring top agricultural producers. Farmers Week is the only university program of its type in the nation, with the biggest display of agricultural equipment in Michigan, according to the show's producers.

Fund-Raiser For Camp

BLOOMINGDALE — Van Buren youth camp will hold a fund-raising auction at the camp on April 26, with proceeds going towards camp operations, according to an announcement by camp officials. A spokesman said the board is accepting donations of items that can be auctioned. The camp is located four miles southwest of Bloomingdale on Great Bear lake.

On State Association Board

Ralph Hornbeck of Fairplain, a member of the Berrien County Road commission, was elected to the board of directors of the Michigan County Road association at its recent annual meeting in Grand Rapids. He was named to a three-year term. Hornbeck is currently serving a five-year term on the county road commission and was engineer-manager of the Berrien road department from 1951 to 1958. He retired several years ago from the former Benton Harbor Abstract & Title company.

Bus Ridership Is Up

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Local bus ridership in Michigan was up 11.4 per cent in 1974, the largest single-year gain since the mid-1940s, according to the state Highway Commission Chairman E. V. Erickson said ridership, which topped 108 million passengers, was boosted by state financial assistance. He said the state funds reversed the annual decline in bus ridership. "With this assistance, public transportation systems were able for the first time to break the cycle of increasing fares to make improvements, watching ridership decline, and ending up with a lower level of service," he said. "State operating aid and grants for new buses and other equipment allowed systems to expand and upgrade service, while lowering their fares in many cases."

He Is Not Embittered

Zero Mostel Back From 'Exile'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Torn from blacklist to playing the president of the United States, the achievement gives Zero Mostel a rare sense of pleasure.

The bulgy comedian is one of the survivors of that period of American history when performers were denied work because of their political views.

After years of inactivity, he returned to star on Broadway in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," "Fiddler on the Roof") and in films ("Forum," "The Producers").

How outrageous is the movie? Well, the plot has the Mafia kidnap the president's daughter. They will release her only if her parents have sex relations on primetime television.

"It's the first time they've had sex in 20 years," Mostel related. "They enjoy it so much they continue for six days and the first lady (Estelle Parsons) dies of terminal orgasm."

Such black, not to mention bawdy, humor would scarcely have been permitted until recent times, Mostel admitted.

"In fact, 20 years ago all of us would have gone to jail because of the movie," he added.

It is hard for today's generation to understand the events of the red-hunting 1950s, although the Streisand-Redford film, "The Way We Were," touched upon them.

Famous figures suddenly found themselves unable to work because their names had been mentioned before congressional committees as being communists or "commsymps."

Zero Mostel was one of them. He had been earning $5,000 a week as a nightclub comic and was a successful character actor in films ("Panic in the Streets," "The Enforcer").

Then he was branded as a Red sympathizer, even though he now says, "I don't believe in any parties — Republican, Democratic, Socialist or Communist."

His protests went unheard.

He recalled reporting for an acting job at Warner Brothers only to be told he would be dropped unless he went to the FBI. Mostel declined, and he was paid off.

Again he was paid off. Then the jobs stopped coming.

"The whole thing was so ridiculous," he said. "How could we have been dangerous? Could we have given secrets to Russian actors? Could we have blown up a building with a script?"

"I was the happiest man on the blacklist," he remarked.

"If I couldn't work as an actor, then I would paint. I did a lot of painting in those years. I know that the blacklist wrecked some lives, but I'm not easily wrecked.

"In fact, that period was good for my career.

"I played in 'Ulysses' by James Joyce. I did such things as Moliere all over the country.

"And what had I been doing in films? Playing Clifton Webb's butler ('Mr. Belvedere Rings the Bell') and Paul Douglas' sidekick ('The Model and the Marriage Broker')."

He was a far more accomplished performer when the time came for his triumphs on Broadway.

Not until the film version of "Forum" in 1966 did he break the 18-year drought in movies.

"Suddenly I became 'bankable,'" he said happily — meaning that his name could help producers find bank financing for films.

While some sardonic Washington observers have baptized the present Congress "Nixon's Revenge," I am afraid that the former President's most appalling benefaction to the Republic was the effective destruction of executive power. Like the "Curse of Cromwell" that hangs over Ulster, the "Curse of Nixon" haunts the conduct of administration policy, particularly in the areas of national security, intelligence and the conduct of foreign relations. I have never been an advocate of what is called by Arthur Schlesinger Jr., and others the "Imperial Presidency," but I have never wanted to see the United States with an impotent Chief Executive. What is necessary is an equilibrium of power between the Hill and the White House founded on mutual respect and tempered by mutual distrust.

Let us take for example the current, semi-hysterical campaign against the intelligence community. One would think from the clamor that Congress never had any say in the activities of the Central Intelligence Agency or the FBI. However, the record clearly indicates that:

1. There were instruments for Congressional oversight, and,

2. That these bodies were inert. At the time of the Bay of Pigs debacle I urged a fullscale, discreet Congressional inquiry into "black" activities, but President Kennedy was off the pole like a shot and appointed an in-house body of investigators headed by Gen. Maxwell Taylor. With all respect to the late President and to Gen. Taylor, where I come from you don't appoint burglars to investigate a bank robbery. To put it more politely — I'm sure none of the commissioners ever did a bag job — you don't let the people who are in charge of a disaster investigate its origins. But Congress just sat there, and the report of the Taylor inquiry is still classified.

Now, to atone for past sins, there is a likely chance that eager legislators will engage in overkill and virtually destroy the CIA.

A strong President could intervene with a most persuasive case: The abuses of authority must be unearthed and eliminated, but in a world full of wolves an effective intelligence agency is essential. The "Curse of Nixon," however, has made it impossible for President Ford to do more than emit some sad bleats. If he made a strong stand, particularly with the Nixon pardon on file, the President would immediately be accused of launching a whitewash, organizing a cover-up, etc. As mentioned here recently, Congress could have restrained the late J. Edgar Hoover any time it wanted to, notably when the FBI budget came up. But he had the whammy on them: Who knew what the Director's secret files contained?

Similarly, because President Nixon took a strong position on national security, that viewpoint must be wrong. In my judgment, Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger is extraordinarily able (so talented indeed that Secretary of State Kissinger — basically an insecure man — feels compelled to knife others the "Imperial Presidency," but I have never wanted to see the United States with an impotent Chief Executive. What is necessary is an equilibrium of power between the Hill and the White House founded on mutual respect and tempered by mutual distrust.

A strong President could intervene with a most persuasive case: The abuses of authority must be unearthed and eliminated, but in a world full of wolves an effective intelligence agency is essential. The "Curse of Nixon," however, has made it impossible for President Ford to do more than emit some sad bleats. If he made a strong stand, particularly with the Nixon pardon on file, the President would immediately be accused of launching a whitewash, organizing a cover-up, etc. As mentioned here recently, Congress could have restrained the late J. Edgar Hoover any time it wanted to, notably when the FBI budget came up. But he had the whammy on them: Who knew what the Director's secret files contained?

Similarly, because President Nixon took a strong position on national security, that viewpoint must be wrong. In my judgment, Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger is extraordinarily able (so talented indeed that Secretary of State Kissinger — basically an insecure man — feels compelled to knife him about once a month), but who has read his recent defense posture statement? It is a hard, realistic analysis of our strategic position, ominous reading on a subject that should concern Congress and all Americans. Even allowing for "submarine sightings" (in the old days, just as the Navy budget was before Congress, mysterious, unidentified submarines would be sighted off California), Schlesinger had made a compelling case that we are in bad trouble. But he can not exorcise the "Curse of Nixon."

Yet the worst impact of the "Curse of Nixon" has been the erosion of the President's position as an opinion leader. For poor Gerald Ford, the Presidency has not been Theodore Roosevelt's "bully pulpit." Everybody likes Mr. Ford, but nobody pays any serious attention to his substantive views. When you realize that even Franklin D. Roosevelt could not generate a sense of urgency among the American people about the threat of Hitler (in October, 1941, the draft bill was extended for a year by a one-vote margin in the House of Representatives!), President Ford's efforts to arouse the nation from its post-Vietnam withdrawal syndrome seem doomed.

With Congress following the people, because they are its leaders, and the President's initiatives overpowered by the "Curse of Nixon," the ship of state seems dead in the water. Thus, when George Gallup indicates that eight out of 10 Americans oppose further aid to Indochina, and nine out of 10 oppose any military intervention to save Israel, those of us who refuse to believe the Cold War is over but, rather, think that we are losing, find ourselves paralyzed by the "Curse of Nixon."

Task Will Be 'Impossible'

NEWBERRY, Mich. (AP) — Orville (Duke) Eichen, who retires in March after 42 years with the State Highway Department, plans to spend the next 42 years on a task which he considers as hopeless.

Specifically, he will be looking for a better retirement place than Upper Michigan and he says, "I doubt if we will ever find such a place."

They'll Do It Every Time

California Judging Pays Well

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California state judges, whose retirement benefits are already higher than those of former governors, are scheduled for a pay raise Sept. 1, which means their pensions will also automatically go up.

Active state judges will be making more than most federal judges later this year when a 13.3 per cent cost-of-living increase becomes effective. And their pensions are based on the salaries they are drawing when they retire.

Task Will Be 'Impossible'

NEWBERRY, Mich. (AP) — Orville (Duke) Eichen, who retires in March after 42 years with the State Highway Department, plans to spend the next 42 years on a task which he considers as hopeless.

Specifically, he will be looking for a better retirement place than Upper Michigan and he says, "I doubt if we will ever find such a place."

California Judging Pays Well

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California state judges, whose retirement benefits are already higher than those of former governors, are scheduled for a pay raise Sept. 1, which means their pensions will also automatically go up.

Active state judges will be making more than most federal judges later this year when a 13.3 per cent cost-of-living increase becomes effective. And their pensions are based on the salaries they are drawing when they retire.

Market Moves Ahead

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes that the economy had taken a step toward a recovery carried the stock market ahead again today.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up nearly a point, and gainers took a 5-2 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the market's principal rallying point continued to be the government's report Friday that business inventories were reduced $148 million in January for their first drop since May of 1970.

In theory, such a decline in built-up supplies of goods helps clear the way for resumed production, and thus a more active economy.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 10.49 to 773.47 to finish the week with a net advance of 3.37.

Advances outpaced declines by about a 7-2 margin in turnover of 24.84 million shares on the NYSE.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .56 at 44.87.

IS A MOBILE HOME A BARBAIN?

"For Sale: 1971 12'x70' 3 bedroom Mobile Home. Excellent condition. Washer and dryer, utility shed. $200 and take over payments." — Recent classified ad in Northeastern newspap

Obviously, this mobile home is being sold at a substantial loss of equity. And since this sort of sacrifice sale is mushrooming as the economic slump deepens, it compels an equally obvious question: Just how much of a long-term bargain is a mobile home?

Already, more than 9 million Americans live in nearly 4 million mobile homes. That's nearly one in 20 of us and new mobile homes are rolling off assembly lines at the rate of about 500,000 a year. Mobile homes now account for virtually all homes selling for less than $15,000, and for fully one-third of all new single-family dwellings. And in this era of slumpflation, more and more families are under pressure to "trade down" to mobile homes.

—Low prices are a prime advantage, for in today's market, conventional houses and land average $35,000 and up. In contrast, although you could pay $20,000 or more, a 14-foot by 70 foot model, containing more than 800 square feet of fully furnished living space, retails for $7,500 to $9,900. This works out to about $10 per square foot, just about half the typical $20 per square foot cost of building a low-cost unfurnished conventional house.

—You don't have to find the money to buy land, for about half of all new mobile homes are set up in parks, where lot rentals range from $40 to $125 a month and typically $50 to $70.

—The personal property tax on an average mobile home is only about $150 to $200 a year plus, frequently, a small license fee — if the house is not taxed at a somewhat higher rate as real estate, and generally mobile homes are not taxed as real estate.

—Monthly maintenance and utility charges run only $25 to $50.

—Financing for a mobile home is by no means easy or cheap today, but it is more readily available than for conventional houses.

—Of Crucial importance is that the cash needed to meet the down payment and other unavoidable moving-in costs is only about one-quarter as much for a mobile home as for a conventional house.

But there are many hidden expenses that can sharply raise the cost to you.

In fact, in a sophisticated comparative study not yet published, Philip Weitzman, assistant professor of economics at Herbert H. Lehman College of City University of New York, found that a two-bedroom mobile home cost only 11 per cent less to own over a 15-year period than a three room house. For merely 11 per cent more money, the house owner enjoyed a "bonus" in living space of over 35 per cent!

Also interest rates on mobile home loans are high, typically 12 to 14 per cent against 8½ to 10 per cent for conventional mortgages. Though newer models are more durable than homes produced in the past, relatively rapid depreciation of mobile homes is still a big minus. A well maintained mobile home on a good site can grow in value but the industry's own "blue book" indicates that a mobile home loses 72 per cent of its value in 10½ years.

If you live in a mobile home park, you'll normally have no lease and your rent may be increased at any time. The park may charge an entrance fee (perhaps disguised as a swollen "set-up charge") and an exit fee ("disconnection charge"). The park owner may require you to buy electicity, fuel oil, LP gas, or even milk from him or a friend at prices which unnecessarily lighten your wallet. At least some accessories like skirting, steps, a utility shed, and carport are needed to make the home liveable. "Extras" and accessories may add about 15 per cent to the cost of the home. To get financing, you may have to buy a costly credit insurance policy.

And because mobile homes are unusually vulnerable to fire and wind, comprehensive insurance is often comparatively expensive.

In sum: mobile homes are significantly cheaper over both the short and long-run. What's more, many of their cost handicaps could disappear in the future and increasing federal regulation should improve their overall quality.

Request Rejected By Ford

DETROIT (AP) — Rep. James J. Blanchard D-Mich said Saturday he had received a letter from the White House saying President Ford will not intervene in the Ferndale school integration case.

Blanchard wrote to the President last week asking as "a last resort" that Ford intercede to prevent the Justice Department from filing suit to force integration of the Grant Elementary School.

In a letter delivered to the Pleasant Ridge Democrat Friday, White House counsel Philip Buchen said it is the President's policy not to interfere in Justice Department law suits "except in the most unusual circumstances."

Buchen said he did not mean to discourage ongoing efforts by the Justice Department and school officials to settle the matter without going into court. "Indeed, it is the President's sincerest hope that such a local solution can be found which will be acceptable to those at the Justice Departmebt who must enforce our federal laws, Buchen said."

The Justice Department said March 7 it would file suit against the Ferndale school district to force integration, unless the school board agreed quickly on a compromise plan.

The school was found guilty by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) in 1967 on charges of building and maintaining Grant school as a segregated unit.

That finding was upheld by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Ferndale officials have declined to integrate the school even when threatened with the loss of federal funds. They insisted the school was all-black because it is located in predominanrly black Royal Oak Township and not because of any planning by the board.

The Federal Office of Revenue Sharing later threatened to cut off $90 million annually in grants to Michigan if Grant School was not integrated.

In his letter to Ford, Rep. Blanchard said, "It is totally incomprehensible to me how the federal government can now step in , unwilling to let the school board implement its plan and unwilling to see it work."

Kelley Has Plan To Save Rails

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The 1,400 miles of railroad track in Michigan which are earmarked for abandonment should be included in a rail reorganization plan, the state attorney general said today.

The USRA said the 1,400 miles of Michigan track is too unprofitable to be included in ConRail.

The state attorney general said:

—All track of the bankrupt railroads, the Penn Central and the Ann Arbor, should be included in ConRail.

—After ConRail takes over, ConRail should then submit a plan for abandonment and consolidation to the ICC.

The federal government has adopted a subsidy plan for abandoned track across the country, including the 1,400 miles in Michigan, that would last only two years.

Hitchhiker Accuses Motorist Of Rape

MATTAWAN — State police at Paw Paw arrested an Ann Arbor man on a charge of assault with intent to commit rape following a one-car accident north of here yesterday morning in which the man and a woman were injured.

Lodged in Van Buren county jail pending arraignment was Robert Carl Marr, 44, according to troopers. Both he and a 17-year-old Romulus woman were treated for cuts and bruises at Lake View Community hospital, Paw Paw, and released, according to police.

Police said the Romulus woman told them that she was hitchhiking and a man picked her up and drove to a spot on 27th street north of Red Arrow highway in Almena township where he attempted to rape her about 11:45 a.m.

At one point the man got out of the car and the 17-year-old managed to lock all of the doors and began to drive away. Police said they were told the man jumped on the hood of the car and blocked her vision, causing her to drive into a ditch.

Police said the woman lost control of the car which then rolled over, throwing the man against a tree.

IS A MOBILE HOME A BARBAIN?

"For Sale: 1971 12'x70' 3 bedroom Mobile Home. Excellent condition. Washer and dryer, utility shed. $200 and take over payments." — Recent classified ad in Northeastern newspape

Obviously, this mobile home is being sold at a substantial loss of equity. And since this sort of sacrifice sale is mushrooming as the economic slump deepens, it compels an equally obvious question: Just how much of a long-term bargain is a mobile home?

Already, more than 9 million Americans live in nearly 4 million mobile homes. That's nearly one in 20 of us and new mobile homes are rolling off assembly lines at the rate of about 500,000 a year. Mobile homes now account for virtually all homes selling for less than $15,000, and for fully one-third of all new single-family dwellings. And in this era of slumpflation, more and more families are under pressure to "trade down" to mobile homes.

—Low prices are a prime advantage, for in today's market, conventional houses and land average $35,000 and up. In contrast, although you could pay $20,000 or more, a 14-foot by 70 foot model, containing more than 800 square feet of fully furnished living space, retails for $7,500 to $9,900. This works out to about $10 per square foot, just about half the typical $20 per square foot cost of building a low-cost unfurnished conventional house.

—You don't have to find the money to buy land, for about half of all new mobile homes are set up in parks, where lot rentals range from $40 to $125 a month and typically $50 to $70.

—The personal property tax on an average mobile home is only about $150 to $200 a year plus, frequently, a small license fee — if the house is not taxed at a somewhat higher rate as real estate, and generally mobile homes are not taxed as real estate.

—Monthly maintenance and utility charges run only $25 to $50.

—When you buy a mobile home, you avoid altogether the customary (for houses) array of closing costs and legal feews.

—Financing for a mobile home is by no means easy or cheap today, but it is more readily available than for conventional houses.

—Of Crucial importance is that the cash needed to meet the down payment and other unavoidable moving-in costs is only about one-quarter as much for a mobile home as for a conventional house.

But there are many hidden expenses that can sharply raise the cost to you.

In fact, in a sophisticated comparative study not yet published, Philip Weitzman, assistant professor of economics at Herbert H. Lehman College of City University of New York, found that a two-bedroom mobile home cost only 11 per cent less to own over a 15-year period than a three room house. For merely 11 per cent more money, the house owner enjoyed a "bonus" in living space of over 35 per cent!

Also interest rates on mobile home loans are high, typically 12 to 14 per cent against 8½ to 10 per cent for conventional mortgages. Though newer models are more durable than homes produced in the past, relatively rapid depreciation of mobile homes is still a big minus. A well maintained mobile home on a good site can grow in value but the industry's own "blue book" indicates that a mobile home loses 72 per cent of its value in 10½ years.

If you live in a mobile home park, you'll normally have no lease and your rent may be increased at any time. The park may charge an entrance fee (perhaps disguised as a swollen "set-up charge") and an exit fee ("disconnection charge"). The park owner may require you to buy electicity, fuel oil, LP gas, or even milk from him or a friend at prices which unnecessarily lighten your wallet. At least some accessories like skirting, steps, a utility shed, and carport are needed to make the home liveable. "Extras" and accessories may add about 15 per cent to the cost of the home. To get financing, you may have to buy a costly credit insurance policy.

And because mobile homes are unusually vulnerable to fire and wind, comprehensive insurance is often comparatively expensive.

In sum: mobile homes are significantly cheaper over both the short and long-run. What's more, many of their cost handicaps could disappear in the future and increasing federal regulation should improve their overall quality.

Request Rejected By Ford

DETROIT (AP) — Rep. James J. Blanchard D-Mich said Saturday he had received a letter from the White House saying President Ford will not intervene in the Ferndale school integration case.

Blanchard wrote to the President last week asking as "a last resort" that Ford intercede to prevent the Justice Department from filing suit to force integration of the Grant Elementary School.

In a letter delivered to the Pleasant Ridge Democrat Friday, White House counsel Philip Buchen said it is the President's policy not to interfere in Justice Department law suits "except in the most unusual circumstances."

Buchen said he did not mean to discourage ongoing efforts by the Justice Department and school officials to settle the matter without going into court. "Indeed, it is the President's sincerest hope that such a local solution can be found which will be acceptable to those at the Justice Departmebt who must enforce our federal laws, Buchen said."

The Justice Department said March 7 it would file suit against the Ferndale school district to force integration, unless the school board agreed quickly on a compromise plan.

The school was found guilty by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) in 1967 on charges of building and maintaining Grant school as a segregated unit.

That finding was upheld by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Ferndale officials have declined to integrate the school even when threatened with the loss of federal funds. They insisted the school was all-black because it is located in predominanrly black Royal Oak Township and not because of any planning by the board.

The Federal Office of Revenue Sharing later threatened to cut off $90 million annually in grants to Michigan if Grant School was not integrated.

In his letter to Ford, Rep. Blanchard said, "It is totally incomprehensible to me how the federal government can now step in , unwilling to let the school board implement its plan and unwilling to see it work."

Kelley Has Plan To Save Rails

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The 1,400 miles of railroad track in Michigan which are earmarked for abandonment should be included in a rail reorganization plan, the state attorney general said today.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley offered a five-point plan to preserve "essential" railroad service in Michigan.

Milliken said Congress should appropriate more money, if necessary, to expand ConRail, which is being used to reorganize bankrupt lines.

The USRA said the 1,400 miles of Michigan track is too unprofitable to be included in ConRail.

The state attorney general said:

—All track of the bankrupt railroads, the Penn Central and the Ann Arbor, should be included in ConRail.

—After ConRail takes over, ConRail should then submit a plan for abandonment and consolidation to the ICC.

—The ICC's rail planning office should hold hearings on a state-by state basis.

—If the hearings determine a particular line is unprofitable, the federal government should determine the amount of subsidy required to put the line on a break-even basis.

—The federal subsidy for the unprofitable line should be 70 per cent and eventually should be eliminated.

The federal government has adopted a subsidy plan for abandoned track across the country, including the 1,400 miles in Michigan, that would last only two years.

Hitchhiker Accuses Motorist Of Rape

MATTAWAN — State police at Paw Paw arrested an Ann Arbor man on a charge of assault with intent to commit rape following a one-car accident north of here yesterday morning in which the man and a woman were injured.

Lodged in Van Buren county jail pending arraignment was Robert Carl Marr, 44, according to troopers. Both he and a 17-year-old Romulus woman were treated for cuts and bruises at Lake View Community hospital, Paw Paw, and released, according to police.

Police said the Romulus woman told them that she was hitchhiking and a man picked her up and drove to a spot on 27th street north of Red Arrow highway in Almena township where he attempted to rape her about 11:45 a.m.

At one point the man got out of the car and the 17-year-old managed to lock all of the doors and began to drive away. Police said they were told the man jumped on the hood of the car and blocked her vision, causing her to drive into a ditch.

Police said the woman lost control of the car which then rolled over, throwing the man against a tree.

GODFREY CAMBRIDGE

Country Life Not Peaceful

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Actor-comedian Godfrey Cambridge moved here from New York City's upper West Side "to find peace and safety and happiness in the country." Now he sits in his 14-room home armed with a pistol and complaints about his new neighbors.

Cambridge became the first black to live in a large house in this nearly all-white, affluent community about 40 miles northeast of Cambridge's old neighborhood.

So far, he says a youth in a car tried to run his wife off the road; one of his two teen-aged daughters was threatened with death if she attended a school dance, and his car was doused with gasoline while it was parked in his driveway.

"You hear stomping outside the windows. You hear gunshots on your property. People drive all the way up the driveway and then back out. The same, strange cars keep driving by the house. You get worried," he said in a weekend interview.

Cambridge has been carrying a gun for several years, ever since he began receiving threats because of one of his films about the dangers of drugs. He says there is no reason to give the gun up in Ridgefield.

He is unimpressed with local authorities, describing the police department as "largely ineffectual" in protecting his property. And he says state officials have been no help in trying to square away a collection of structural defects and confusing town hall records on his house, for which he paid $125,000.

He says he expects to spend $50,000 to renovate it.

Cambridge says when he bought the house, he was told it had only minor defects. But he says since he moved in, his foot has gone through the floor; he has found faulty plumbing and three defective furnaces, and he has yet to find the septic tank.

Despite all the problems, Cambridge says he intends to stick it out. He plans to fence in his property and grow a garden.

"I just want to walk down Main Street when I feel like it," he says. "I want to live by the side of the road and enjoy life."

Proxmire Likes To Jog To Work

'Limousine Law' May Save $13 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dozens of high-level U.S. officials use chauffeured government cars regularly to commute between their homes and work. But whether they are doing so legally depends on who is interpreting the law.

Among the officials are some senior law enforcement figures, such as Deputy Atty. Gen. Laurence H. Silberman, who resigned last week, and FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley. Others are Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb, some top officials in the environmental field, 18 at the White House and 45 Pentagon officials, civilian and military.

Congressional critics complain that bureaucrats who use chauffeured government cars between home and work are violating a specific provision of law that prohibits such practices except by officers of Cabinet rank and above.

Sen. William Proxmire, who often jogs the several miles from home to the Capitol, has introduced legislation to limit the privilege to about 27 individuals with permanently assigned automobiles. He says this "limousine law" would do away with a kind of "elitist" class among the bureaucrats and save the taxpayers some $13 million a year.

A check of various government agencies disclosed that many officials do indeed use chauffeured cars, either permanently assigned to them or drawn from motor pools, to travel between their homes and offices.

However, the Justice Department cites a law that it says allows the heads of "executive departments" to make decisions about the use of government cars by officials. The Justice Department interprets it to cover not only the 11 Cabinet-level posts but a wide array of subordinate and independent administrative and regulatory agencies as well.

As far as restrictions on using the cars to commute, a Justice Department spokesman said, "the law just has 'outs' all over the place."

Not true, said Howard Shuman, an aide to Proxmire.

"The law is clear and it couldn't be clearer," he said. "There is nothing in it giving such authority to these officials."

He said the law being given such broad interpretation by the Justice Department enumerates the persons allowed portal-to-portal chauffeuring privileges — the President, the vice president and Cabinet-level department heads.

Shuman said that in Senate committee hearings last year, the question of these alleged abuses was repeatedly posed to senior officials and "none of them had an explanation that would hold water."

Controversy over the use of government cars is a recurring one. It last drew major attention a year ago when William E. Simon, then federal energy czar who now is Treasury secretary, ordered a halt in the use of large, gas-guzzling limousines by most officials.

Simon set an example by using his own family car for commuting, but most officials who lost their limousines have turned to using Mercurys and other mid-sized cars owned or leased by the government.

Limousines, considered better for security purposes, still are used by a handful of senior officials, including President Ford, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Kelley.

Kelley, in fact, inherited two armored limousines originally built and used by the late J. Edgar Hoover when Hoover ran the FBI. He commutes in one in Washington and keeps the other in Kansas City, Mo., where he goes most weekends to be with his wife, who is ill. Hoover had a third limousine, but an FBI spokesman said it has been "surplused" and he wasn't sure where it went.

Former Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe sometimes used a limousine, but his successor, Edward H. Levi, has decided against it, spokesmen said. The car, a Cadillac, is being returned to General Motors Corp., which was leasing it. Its mobile phone and other equipment have been transferred to the Justice Department Mercury which Levi will use instead.

Gordon Yamada, director of management systems at the General Services Administration which keeps track of most government cars, said some recent reports have created a wide impression that hundreds of limousines still are in use by Washington bureaucrats.

"It simply isn't true," he said. "My car at home is better than most of the ones in use now."

Zarb uses a government car to travel to and from work regularly. An FEA spokesman, while conceding that Zarb does not have Cabinet rank, said that nevertheless "he spends more time with the President than perhaps any other member of the government, and if you saw his schedule you wouldn't complain about the car. He couldn't work without it."

At the Environmental Protection Agency, Administrator Russell E. Train and his deputy, John R. Quarles Jr., are the only officials with assigned chauffeured cars.

Russell Peterson, chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality, may be the only person in or out of government with a chauffeured Pinto. But an aide said it isn't for his exclusive use and he doesn't commute in it every day.

The usual explanation for these officials being driven to and from work is that, rather than simply reporting to their offices each day, then often must appear at hearings or meetings in the early mornings. Many government officials also are called on to attend functions in the evenings, aides said.

Another in this category is Donald C. Alexander, the commissioner of Internal Revenue, whom aides described as a "workaholic." One aide said Alexander is often on the phone in his 1974 chauffeur-driven 1972 Valiant as soon as he leaves his house in the mornings.

By contrast, there are other officials in key posts who drive themselves to work, such as John R. Bartels, head of the Drug Enforcement Administration, who tools to his downtown office in a sports car but uses an agency sedan on daily business.

At the White House, 18 senior aides to President Ford are on an "A" list that entitles them to use motor pool vehicles to go to and from work. Lesser aides on a "B" list can use the cars for "official business" but not for commuting, a policy that appears to conform to the law as cited by Proxmire.

At the Pentagon, a regulation dated last July 30 says that Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger is to designate persons with official-car commuting provileges. At the present time there are 44 of these, according to a Pentagon count.

These individuals, all with cars permanently assigned, include the secretary, his deputy, the secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force, about two dozen undersecretaries and assistant secretaries of defense and the services, the chairman and members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, their vice chiefs, the Pentagon chief counsel, the head of Selective Service and the commanders of the service material commands.

UNION BEACH, N.J. (AP) — "Daddy locks me up and I don't use anything to get out," says Dennis Burke Jr., a 4-year-old who specializes in Houdini-like escapes from ropes, chains and handcuffs.

The youngster learned his bag of tricks by watching his father, Dennis Burke, an amateur magician who performs with the boy at charity functions under the billing of Dionysius Burke & Co.

D.B. Jr., as his father calls him, recently amazed the audience at a March of Dimes telethon when he escaped from chains and two pairs of handcuffs in 40 seconds.

His father, a production worker at Tenco Co. in Linden, says the boy escaped from padlocked chains at a Cub Scout dinner in 14 seconds.i

Burke says Dennis first tried to imitate him by escaping from ropes and chains. Burke wraps his tiny son in one 11-foot chain and another 3-foot chain, padlocking both.

The father says, "As though mechanized, Dennis begins to jump and wriggle, sometimes using his teeth until the chains begin to loosen. His format varies from standing to sitting, but whichever is more comfortable, it seldom takes him more than seconds to release himself.

"Just to show that he was tightly secured, he shows you the impresssions left on his skin from the links."

Dennis, who often makes his escapes behind closed doors, insists he doesn't use a spare key. But he won't say how he does it. He'll only say, "It's all tricks."

Plainfield Police Chief Patrick McColgan, out of whose regulation police handcuffs Dennis managed to wriggle, says of the feat, "This is show business. But I'll admit it's an interesting trick for a lad so young."

Under New Jersey law, children under age are prohibited from collecting money for performances, so Dennis is pursuing an amateur career, planning next to perfect escapes from locked trunks.

Rock Island Can't Continue RR Veep Says

CHICAGO (AP) — The board of directors of the Rock Island Lines meets today to discuss the future of the railroad amid speculation that the company may shut down after U.S. Railway Association rejection of a request for $100 million in loans.

"There is no way known to me that the railroad can go on," said Rock Island Vice President John Mitros after the USRA turned down the railroad's request on Friday night.

However, the Rock Island will continue to run "as long as there's money to buy fuel and pay wages," he said.

PARTY NEWSLETTER IS NEW WEAPON

GOP 'Press' Attacks Third Party Idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican party leaders seeking to head off a conservative third party for 1976 have a new weapon in the party's monthly newsletter.

The latest issue of "First Monday," published by the Republican National Committee, devotes four of its 16 pages to downgrading the prospects for a successful third party move.

The national committee's publications chief, Jackie O'Connor, said in an interview that the special section is one of several the publication is planning and is in line with recent speeches by GOP chairman Mary Louise Smith and President Ford stressing the virtues of the two-party system.

Mrs. O'Connor said the White House had nothing to do with the articles.

The articles come at a time when moderate Republican leaders and most leaders among GOP elected officials have joined in a statement expressing support for a broadened party and praising Ford.

Mrs. O'Connor said the national committee had nothing to do with that.

The special section in "First Monday" contains three articles and an editorial that seek to minimize the third party threat.

"Third Parties in History: Often Spoilers, Never Victors," is the headline on one article, which declares: "The history of third-party presidential campaigns in this century is not such as to give much hope to persons contemplating a conservative third party in 1976."

"A Latent Majority? Not Likely," proclaims another headline. The article says the recent Market Opinion Research Inc. poll taken for the Republican National Committee "does not bear out the thesis of a latent conservative majority.

"The survey bore out the assertion that about a quarter of the people are on the right, about a quarter on the left with the rest in the middle or too uncertain to place themselves," it adds. The article concludes: "It would seem that a centerleft party and a center-right party would be much more viable than two highly ideological parties."

The main article in the section reports on last month's Conservative Political Action Conference, where there was considerable talk about a third party. The conference ultimately created a committee headed by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to consider alternative courses for conservatives.

"The conference made it clear, however, that third party enthusiasts of the right wing have neither a sufficiently prominent leader nor a firm grasp on the pocketbook issues that will determine the election of 1976," the article says.

The editorial stresses the need for Republican gains on the congressional, as well as presidential, level and contends that a third party would only hurt this effort.

It concludes that working within the GOP is "the only course for 1976 or any other year in the foreseeable future" for persons "who want accomplishment rather than rhetoric."

Plan To Kill Nixon Is Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet intelligence officer who defected to the United States has told the CIA that Soviet secret police had a contingency plan to kill Richard F. Nixon if he had been elected president in 1960, columnist Jack Anderson says.

Anderson said in a story today that the plot was described to the CIA by former KGB major Anatol Golytsyn, who defected from his post in Helsinki, Finland, in the 1960s.

Golytsyn attributed the plan to the late Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, Anderson said. At the time Nixon had a reputation as a staunch anticommunist.

Anderson also said Golytsyn told the CIA that Khrushchev had talked about eliminating ballet dancer Rudolf Nureyev after he defected to the West. Golytsyn tried to warn Nureyev, but did not know if his message reached the dancer, Anderson said.

The alleged plot to kill Nixon was kept secret for years, but was disclosed by CIA sources "after stories about the CIA's assassination attempts hit the headlines," Anderson said.

He said Golytsyn was one of the highest ranking Soviet defectors in CIA history. The United States paid him $200,000 in compensation and spent at least $500,000 more to protect him, Anderson said, quoting sources.

Anderson said Golytsyn has given American intelligence agents other valuable information which turned out to be accurate. "Our sources, therefore, believe his story about the Nixon assassination plan," Anderson said.

Anderson quoted sources as saying Golytsyn was last reported living in the United States under a false identity.

GODFREY CAMBRIDGE

Country Life Not Peaceful

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Actor-comedian Godfrey Cambridge moved here from New York City's upper West Side "to find peace and safety and happiness in the country." Now he sits in his 14-room home armed with a pistol and complaints about his new neighbors.

Cambridge became the first black to live in a large house in this nearly all-white, affluent community about 40 miles northeast of Cambridge's old neighborhood.

So far, he says a youth in a car tried to run his wife off the road; one of his two teen-aged daughters was threatened with death if she attended a school dance, and his car was doused with gasoline while it was parked in his driveway.

In addition, Cambridge says he has found mysterious footprints and heard gunshots outside his home.

"You hear stomping outside the windows. You hear gunshots on your property. People drive all the way up the driveway and then back out. The same, strange cars keep driving by the house. You get worried," he said in a weekend interview.

Cambridge has been carrying a gun for several years, ever since he began receiving threats because of one of his films about the dangers of drugs. He says there is no reason to give the gun up in Ridgefield.

He is unimpressed with local authorities, describing the police department as "largely ineffectual" in protecting his property. And he says state officials have been no help in trying to square away a collection of structural defects and confusing town hall records on his house, for which he paid $125,000.

He says he expects to spend $50,000 to renovate it.

Cambridge says when he bought the house, he was told it had only minor defects. But he says since he moved in, his foot has gone through the floor; he has found faulty plumbing and three defective furnaces, and he has yet to find the septic tank.

Despite all the problems, Cambridge says he intends to stick it out. He plans to fence in his property and grow a garden.

"I just want to walk down Main Street when I feel like it," he says. "I want to live by the side of the road and enjoy life."

Proxmire Likes To Jog To Work

'Limousine Law' May Save $13 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dozens of high-level U.S. officials use chauffeured government cars regularly to commute between their homes and work. But whether they are doing so legally depends on who is interpreting the law.

Among the officials are some senior law enforcement figures, such as Deputy Atty. Gen. Laurence H. Silberman, who resigned last week, and FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley. Others are Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb, some top officials in the environmental field, 18 at the White House and 45 Pentagon officials, civilian and military.

Congressional critics complain that bureaucrats who use chauffeured government cars between home and work are violating a specific provision of law that prohibits such practices except by officers of Cabinet rank and above.

Sen. William Proxmire, who often jogs the several miles from home to the Capitol, has introduced legislation to limit the privilege to about 27 individuals with permanently assigned automobiles. He says this "limousine law" would do away with a kind of "elitist" class among the bureaucrats and save the taxpayers some $13 million a year.

A check of various government agencies disclosed that many officials do indeed use chauffeured cars, either permanently assigned to them or drawn from motor pools, to travel between their homes and offices.

However, the Justice Department cites a law that it says allows the heads of "executive departments" to make decisions about the use of government cars by officials. The Justice Department interprets it to cover not only the 11 Cabinet-level posts but a wide array of subordinate and independent administrative and regulatory agencies as well.

As far as restrictions on using the cars to commute, a Justice Department spokesman said, "the law just has 'outs' all over the place."

Not true, said Howard Shuman, an aide to Proxmire.

"The law is clear and it couldn't be clearer," he said. "There is nothing in it giving such authority to these officials."

He said the law being given such broad interpretation by the Justice Department enumerates the persons allowed portal-to-portal chauffeuring privileges — the President, the vice president and Cabinet-level department heads.

Shuman said that in Senate committee hearings last year, the question of these alleged abuses was repeatedly posed to senior officials and "none of them had an explanation that would hold water."

Plan To Kill Nixon Is Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet intelligence officer who defected to the United States has told the CIA that Soviet secret police had a contingency plan to kill Richard F. Nixon if he had been elected president in 1960, columnist Jack Anderson says.

Anderson said in a story today that the plot was described to the CIA by former KGB major Anatol Golytsyn, who defected from his post in Helsinki, Finland, in the 1960s.

Golytsyn attributed the plan to the late Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, Anderson said. At the time Nixon had a reputation as a staunch anticommunist.

Anderson also said Golytsyn told the CIA that Khrushchev had talked about eliminating ballet dancer Rudolf Nureyev after he defected to the West. Golytsyn tried to warn Nureyev, but did not know if his message reached the dancer, Anderson said.

The alleged plot to kill Nixon was kept secret for years, but was disclosed by CIA sources "after stories about the CIA's assassination attempts hit the headlines," Anderson said.

He said Golytsyn was one of the highest ranking Soviet defectors in CIA history. The United States paid him $200,000 in compensation and spent at least $500,000 more to protect him, Anderson said, quoting sources.

Anderson said Golytsyn has given American intelligence agents other valuable information which turned out to be accurate. "Our sources, therefore, believe his story about the Nixon assassination plan," Anderson said.

Anderson quoted sources as saying Golytsyn was last reported living in the United States under a false identity.

It's Over For Cary And Dyan

CARY: Dyan is gone ....

PAT: Couldn't believe the stupidity.

CHRIS & JIMMY: Maybe a marriage.

NOW SEE HERE!
By Bert Bacharach

Faded Phrases: "I'll thank you to keep a civil tongue in your head" and "Let's skedaddle out of here". . . Powerful toy promotion from MEGO is based on the "Wizard of Oz" — with dolls representing the four leading characters in that epic film. . . Sandwich favorite of Bo ("Walking Tall, Part II") Svenson: A thick slice of cheese, curry powder, sliced tomatoes, a layer of sardines and four crisp bacon strips. . . Fabrege chief George Barrie is producing a film titled "Whiffs" — but it has nothing to do with perfume!. . . Attention all beautiful girls: The Obolensky "Model Showcase '75," being held at NYC's Waldorf-Astoria, May 27-31, has extended its application date till Mar. 21. . . Comedian Wayland Flowers saw "Earthquake" in a theater that shook, and "The Towering Inferno" in a theater that smoked and adds: "I can't wait for Raquel Welch's next movie.". . . Sign over a bank teller's window, "Smile — You're on Bandit Camera!". . . Evel Knievel has signed to do his stunts in England. (Will he try to jump the Atlantic?)

+ + +

Helpful Hints: A kitchen match with the tip moistened will remove most ink stains from your fingers. The inside of a banana skin should also work. . . To keep roses, carnations, tulips, etc., fresh longer, cut steps with a knife, not scissors.

PEOPLE
By Robin Adams Sloan

Q: Will Dyan Cannon and Cary Grant ever get back together because of their child? — O.P., Waco, Tex.

A: Not likely after their fierce misunderstandings. Anyway, Dyan has a new romance in movie director Hal Ashby, who has shot to fame as a result of "Harold and Maude" and most recently, "Shampoo." Dyan is so much in love with Hal she is acting more and more human every day, which is a relief to everybody who deals with her.

A: Washington reporter Kandy Stroud claims that a friend of Pat Nixon says of Watergate: "She couldn't believe the stupidity involved. She said the tapes should never have been used in the first place — it's something you just don't do." Mrs. Nixon, it seems, blames H.R. Haldeman for her husband's predicament. The former First Lady and Haldeman were never friendly and she believes he did many things without her husband's knowledge. Ms. Stroud claims Mrs. Nixon never saw Haldeman again after the business of the tapes was revealed.

Q: I see Chris Evert and Jimmy Connors are together again. What's the scoop? — K.H., Memphis, Tenn.

A: Well, after breaking their year-long engagement they had been apart for four months before meeting once more at a Florida tournament. Chris says she hated the separation, during which they never spoke to each other. She still loves the idea of marrying Jimmy and thinks the main trouble was the long engagement. She predicts that they will get married some day on the spur of the moment without all the lengthy preliminaries, "and that will be it."

BRIEF ENCOUNTER: We hear that Frank Sinatra was sedately eyeing a tall, beautiful blonde who happened to be sharing an elevator with him in Hollywood when she suddenly announced to him that he was her godfather. Frankie had failed to recognize 20-year-old Beatrice Welles, who had come from England to see her father, Orson, honored by the American Film Institute. Orson and Frank have been friends for years.

Q: You wrote recently that Burt Reynolds called Raquel Welch 100 per cent plastic. Was he referring to all the plastic surgery she is supposed to have had? What does she say? — B.K., South Bend, Ind.

A: Once again, Raquel has labeled as nonsense all the talk of her extensive plastic surgery and silicone injections. She has even offered to submit to a squeeze test to prove her assertion. She claims she just happens to have a gorgeous figure, although she thinks that Julie Christie and Candice Bergen have prettier faces. Fred Astaire, by the way, might be of some help in this controversy since he lives across the street from Raquel and is reputed to be a good man with a pair of binoculars.

Q: I saw a new picture of Barbra Streisand and she looked sort of plump and matronly. Does she have a weight problem? — J.D., Albany, N.Y.

A: Barbar does have to fight the fat and could go into half sizes if she let herself go, which she would never do. Right now she's making daily visits to the Ron Fletcher gym in Beverly Hills to drop that added poundage. That's the gym Ali MacGraw, Dyan Cannon, Cher and Raquel Welch swear by.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Widespread unemployment is closely tied to the continuing rise in crime, Gov. William Milliken said Saturday.

It's Over For Cary And Dyan

CARY: Dyan is gone ....

PAT: Couldn't believe the stupidity.

CHRIS & JIMMY: Maybe a marriage.

A: Not likely after their fierce misunderstandings. Anyway, Dyan has a new romance in movie director Hal Ashby, who has shot to fame as a result of "Harold and Maude" and most recently, "Shampoo." Dyan is so much in love with Hal she is acting more and more human every day, which is a relief to everybody who deals with her.

A: Washington reporter Kandy Stroud claims that a friend of Pat Nixon says of Watergate: "She couldn't believe the stupidity involved. She said the tapes should never have been used in the first place — it's something you just don't do." Mrs. Nixon, it seems, blames H.R. Haldeman for her husband's predicament. The former First Lady and Haldeman were never friendly and she believes he did many things without her husband's knowledge. Ms. Stroud claims Mrs. Nixon never saw Haldeman again after the business of the tapes was revealed.

Q: I see Chris Evert and Jimmy Connors are together again. What's the scoop? — K.H., Memphis, Tenn.

A: Well, after breaking their year-long engagement they had been apart for four months before meeting once more at a Florida tournament. Chris says she hated the separation, during which they never spoke to each other. She still loves the idea of marrying Jimmy and thinks the main trouble was the long engagement. She predicts that they will get married some day on the spur of the moment without all the lengthy preliminaries, "and that will be it."

BRIEF ENCOUNTER: We hear that Frank Sinatra was sedately eyeing a tall, beautiful blonde who happened to be sharing an elevator with him in Hollywood when she suddenly announced to him that he was her godfather. Frankie had failed to recognize 20-year-old Beatrice Welles, who had come from England to see her father, Orson, honored by the American Film Institute. Orson and Frank have been friends for years.

Q: You wrote recently that Burt Reynolds called Raquel Welch 100 per cent plastic. Was he referring to all the plastic surgery she is supposed to have had? What does she say? — B.K., South Bend, Ind.

A: Once again, Raquel has labeled as nonsense all the talk of her extensive plastic surgery and silicone injections. She has even offered to submit to a squeeze test to prove her assertion. She claims she just happens to have a gorgeous figure, although she thinks that Julie Christie and Candice Bergen have prettier faces. Fred Astaire, by the way, might be of some help in this controversy since he lives across the street from Raquel and is reputed to be a good man with a pair of binoculars.

Faded Phrases: "I'll thank you to keep a civil tongue in your head" and "Let's skedaddle out of here". . . Powerful toy promotion from MEGO is based on the "Wizard of Oz" — with dolls representing the four leading characters in that epic film. . . Sandwich favorite of Bo ("Walking Tall, Part II") Svenson: A thick slice of cheese, curry powder, sliced tomatoes, a layer of sardines and four crisp bacon strips. . . Fabrege chief George Barrie is producing a film titled "Whiffs" — but it has nothing to do with perfume!. . . Attention all beautiful girls: The Obolensky "Model Showcase '75," being held at NYC's Waldorf-Astoria, May 27-31, has extended its application date till Mar. 21. . . Comedian Wayland Flowers saw "Earthquake" in a theater that shook, and "The Towering Inferno" in a theater that smoked and adds: "I can't wait for Raquel Welch's next movie.". . .
